SCHOOL OF SALESMANSHIP

Business Men of Omaha Assist in the Organization.

TRAVELING MEN MAY ENROLL

Outlook for the Success of the Enterprise is Said to Be All That Could Be Desired.

Fifteen prominent business men met at the Commercial club at noon to help and advise in the formation of a Young Men's Christian association school of salesmanship. The principal talk was made by F. W. Heron, president of the Royal Indemnity company of Omaha, who will be the instructor of the school.

Those present included—C. G. Baldwin, David O'Brien, J. Clark Cott, C. S. Hayward, Joseph Kelley, G. N. Peck, C. C. Rosewater, R. E. Sunderland, H. B. Weller, Dr. J. P. Lord, G. F. Gilmore, Paul Kuhns, J. Clark, E. F. Denton and N. Miller.

Mr. Gilmore, as president of the Young Men's Christian association, presided. Mr. Kuhns, Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Miller were other speakers. Nearly all present made suggestions, some of which were discussed at length.

Oral instruction, use of the best textbooks, lectures by successful business men, demonstration sales before class and discussion of practical problems arising during each week in members' experience—all these methods will be used by the class which will meet every Monday night at the Young Men's Christian association from 8 to 10 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with many neighboring associations so that any traveling man who is a member of one of these associations may enroll in the local class. The Young Men's Christian association school will start with a large enrollment and the outlook for its success is all that could be desired. The new term will begin January 3.

Says New Plumbing Ordinance is Ignored

Inspector John C. Lynch Reports that Jobbers Regard Orders as a Joke.

Plumbing Inspector John C. Lynch is complaining that the wholesale jobbers in Omaha are inclined to regard the new plumbing ordinance as a joke and are not getting in the proper fittings to allow the journeymen to follow it. New sizes in pipes, vents, and other plumbing accessories were ordered by the ordinance and the changes are rather radical, so different, in fact, from the custom that some of the men who deal in fittings have ventured to think them absurd. The master plumbers are unable to get supplies in accord with the law and no progress can be made in enforcing it.

Mr. Lynch is now making a complete inspection of all hotels, lodging houses and public buildings to see that a general reform is made before he leaves his office to become county commissioner. A report will be made to the city council to show the general condition.

WANDERING BOYS WHO GAVE WRONG NAMES IDENTIFIED

Police Find Out Correct Names of the Youngsters Caught on Train and Tell Parents.

As the result of an investigation by the Omaha police it was learned Thursday morning that the three small boys who were caught on the blind baggage car of a train at Marshalltown, Ia., Wednesday had given fictitious names. The real names were finally obtained and the parents of two of the boys in Omaha have been found. The latter will send transportation for their boys to come home on.

The lads are reported as Harry Hoffman, 2523 South Eighteenth street; Fred Johnson, 210 Leavenworth street, and Elmer Groves, 205 South Fifth street. The parents of the Groves had not been located.

Commissioners to Take Seats Saturday

County Clerk Declares Them Elected and Will Issue Their Certificates.

George Hauptman and Peter Elsassner, county commissioners-elect, will take their seats on the Board of County Commissioners when the board meets Saturday, succeeding County Commissioners Trouton and Grant.

Following the completion of the official canvass of the Douglas county vote the canvassing board declared them elected Friday and County Clerk Haverly issued to them certificates of election.

While the footings on county commissioner have not yet been verified, it appears that both Hauptman and Elsassner have margins that a few small errors, if they have occurred, could not wipe out.

The board will complete its footings Saturday.

Hauptman and Elsassner, under the law, begin their service immediately after election. Commissioners-elect O'Connor and Lynch will take office January 1, O'Connor succeeding Hauptman and Lynch succeeding Bruning.

MAJOR M'CUNE DELIVERS INDIANS SAFELY AT HOME

Carries Large Amount of Gold with Him with Which to Pay Off the Braves.

Major William M'Cune, western manager for Colonel W. F. Cody, hastily returned from the Pine Ridge agency where he took the Indians who were out with the Buffalo Bill Wild West show. Under an agreement with the government, Colonel Cody must hold out part of the Indians' salary to pay them when they reach the reservation. This Major M'Cune carried in person and although he had to make a thirty-mile drive across country, with his load of gold, he delivered the money in safety. Mr. M'Cune has been making this trip into the reservation for twenty-seven years, in the spring to get the Indians and in the fall to return them to the reservation.

Colonel Cody will arrive in Omaha December 7. He is now in Arizona looking after his large mining interests. He is already making arrangements for his show for next year, it having already been decided that he will open in Philadelphia and close in Omaha, the city where the show gave its initial performance, twenty-seven years ago.

Omaha Boy Gains Wealth in the West

L. L. Work, Formerly with the First National Here, Now Has Bank of His Own.

L. L. Work of Concoquilly, Wash., is in Omaha visiting his uncle, Dexter L. Thomas, the veteran real estate man. Mr. Work is a striking example of an Omaha boy who took Horace Greeley's advice several years ago, and who has richly profited thereby.

Many old timers in Omaha will recall that eighteen or twenty years ago Mr. Work as a teller in the First National bank, this city. He was an energetic clerk and he might have become a permanent fixture in the service of the bank, but ambition prompted him to quit working for the other fellow and to get a bank of his own, instead. Accordingly, he left Omaha and acquired an interest in a bank at Gordon, Neb. It wasn't the biggest bank in the state by any means, but it was managed along progressive lines, and the genius of Mr. Work was largely accredited for the success that came to the Gordon institution. Later he left Gordon and penetrated the then undeveloped Washington state.

Gradually, the interests of the former Omaha expanded until now he is interested in a chain of six banks, owns large ranch and orchard properties, is a ruling factor in several large irrigation projects and otherwise is a man of large affairs on the Pacific coast.

"I am happy to state that many golden opportunities are still open in the west," said Mr. Work, "and that the young men of the Missouri valley—and old ones, too, for that matter—can make no mistake in going to Washington, Oregon or Idaho. I am impressed with what I have heard of The Bee's proposed land show, and I believe it will do much toward inducing new settlers. We have the climate, the soil, the resources and all else—except that we need more people. This country and further east has too many people, so there is ample opportunity for a mutually advantageous adjustment. I shall always have a warm spot in my heart for Omaha, because I spent many happy days here; yet for money making opportunities, I can not praise the Pacific northwest too highly."

Mr. Work is a delegate to the Transmississippi congress at San Antonio. He will remain in Omaha several days with his relatives and friends.

Wealthy Ranchmen Visit Many Jails

Comstock and Jameson Seek Suitable Quarters in Which to Serve Their Sentences.

Comstock and Jameson, the wealthy ranchmen of northwestern Nebraska who, with several other associates are under sentence to serve time in jail as punishment for alleged irregularities with reference to public lands, are still outside of battle walls.

The mandate from the court of appeals in which the sentence of the lower court is affirmed and which makes it final that these men, despite their wealth, must go to jail, gives them until December 7. On that day they must, in accordance with terms of the mandate, go behind the bars. There is at present a most anomalous preliminary to incarceration in progress, such anomaly being a critical investigation of various jails with a view to the selection of the one deemed most pleasant, and the investigating is being done by the prospective prisoners. It is perhaps the first time in the history of Nebraska that men doomed to jail go out on a "house hunting tour" like a housewife goes in search of apartments when she decides that it is time to move.

It is said that Messrs. Comstock and Jameson, as representatives not only of themselves, but of their associates as well, have visited a dozen or more Nebraska jails.

Comstock was a visitor at the federal building Friday morning and had a conference with Marshal Warner.

"I have nothing whatever to do with this case," said the marshal, "until I receive commitments to cover the sentences of the defendants. Then it will be time for me to act. It makes no difference to me what jail is chosen."

The sentence of the court specifies the Douglas county jail, but as previously published the defendants object to serving their sentences here, and a search for some more desirable jail is in progress. District Attorney Frowell has recommended the Hastings jail as a substitute, and it is most likely that his recommendation will be endorsed by the attorney general, to whom the matter has been referred.
