Detroit Ideal

The Detroit Ideal has a reputation for three things which has been strengthened every day of the twenty-five years it has been on the market. It is an extraordinarily quick worker, consequently is economical. It is an exceptionally heavy stove, consequently a long laster. Being extra heavy it keeps an even equal temperature so necessary to fine baking. These things have been proven by the twenty-five-year test that the Detroit Ideal has been through. The patent one-piece shallow drilled burner, which makes the combustion perfect, and the result is the hottest flame made by gas, and reduces the gas consumption because of the extra amount of air used. It is patented, and consequently no other burner can be made like it. The eighteen-inch oven and broiler style weighs 230 pounds, while no other stove weighs more than 170 pounds and many as low as 125 pounds. That means durability and that the Detroit Ideal lasts twenty years is proof. Other makes are worn out in five to ten years. The weight is all put where it is needed, around the oven, which retains the heat and makes the gas consumption in the oven so light. The oven flues circulate the heat, which keeps the baking from drying like the light stoves. A chain is only as strong as its weakest link. This applies to gas stoves same as anything else. Profiting by weaknesses shown in others the Detroit Ideal builders have a strong stove. Buyers are of two classes: One buys price and value, the other buys price and size. The former get the real bargain and buy from us.
