JUSTICE WHITE IS INSTALLED

always been a comparatively unostentatious occasion. Instead of an escort from the capital to the White house composed of gaily attired civic organizations and seasoned military commands, a new chief justice has only his black-robed brethren on the bench in procession from the robing room to the court room; instead of his approach being heralded by the loud huzzas of cheering thousands, the advance to power of a new chief justice is announced by nothing more than the solitary tones of the court crier.

The dignity resting in the customs found on the swearing into office of John Jay, John Rutledge, Oliver Ellsworth and John Marshall, and perfected in the days of Roger B. Taney, Salmon P. Chase, Morrison R. Waite, Melville W. Fuller was not materially disturbed today by radical innovations.

Text of the Oath.

The ceremonies of elevating an associate justice of the court into the chief justice of the nation began in the secret confines of the court's robing room. It is here that the oath of allegiance is administered, just before the court takes its place on the bench. The oath prepared for today's occasion followed the form prescribed by law. It read:

I, Edward Douglas White, do solemnly swear that I will support and defend the constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion, and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I about to enter.

It was a similar oath of allegiance that created such a tempest in the court, back in reconstruction days. Hence unusual interest was centered in its administration today to the first chief justice, who had borne arms in the cause of the confederacy by the senior associate justice of the court, Justice Harlan, who had borne arms at the same time in the cause of the nation.

What Other Justices Did. Doubt had existed before the ceremonies as to whether the new chief justice would halt at the clerk's desk in the court room to take the oath there as most of the men who have occupied positions on the bench have done, or whether he would assume his usual place on the bench and take the oath there, as Chief Justice Chase did.

The oath which the new chief justice subscribed to in the open court is known as the judicial oath as distinguished from the oath of allegiance. It read:

I, Edward Douglas White, do solemnly swear that I will administer justice impartially and respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich, and that I will faithfully and impartially perform all the duties incumbent on me as chief justice of the United States according to the best of my ability and understanding, agreeably to the constitution and laws of the United States. So help me God.

STUDENTS MAY BAR CABBIES

Question of Abolishing This Form of Expense to Be Considered by Interfraternity Council.

LINCOLN, Dec. 19.—(Special.)—The question of abolishing the custom of "cabs" for formal parties at the University of Nebraska has come to the limelight during the last few days and the school is apparently divided.

A movement to do away with cabs started at a meeting of the interfraternity council last week when a motion was made to force all fraternity men to use the street cars going to and from the dances.

Strike on Missouri Pacific Called Off. Formal Announcement of Settlement of Differences Made After Long Struggle.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 19.—The strike of the machinists, boiler-makers and blacksmiths of the Missouri Pacific-iron Mountain system, has been called off. Formal announcement to that effect was made tonight.

Occupational Diseases.

At the closing session Alice Hamilton, medical investigator of the Illinois commission on occupational diseases, will submit a paper on "Lead Poisoning in Illinois." Frederick L. Hoffman contributes a paper from the statistical standpoint on "Industrial Diseases in America."

Factor Brown will leave for Nebraska on Wednesday to spend the holidays with his family. He will accompany Senator Cummins as far as Des Moines and after a visit with his parents will go on to Kearney.

Boosting for Kenyon. That the next senator from Iowa will be William S. Kenyon, assistant to the attorney general, is the best bet according to knowing Iowa politicians here.
