MRS. PRATT COMES TO FIGHT

Seeks Her Share of the Estate of the Late Colonel Pratt. MAY COME TO OMAHA TO LIVE Asks Fifty Thousand Dollars Under Her Pre-Nuptial Contract and One Thousand Dollars for Attorney's Fees.

War against Wayland W. Magee, Jerome P. Magee and Margaret Pratt Olson, heirs under the will of the late Colonel James Harvey Pratt, was declared by Mrs. Julia Montgomery Pratt, widow of the late colonel, through her attorney, Benjamin S. Baker, Monday afternoon. For $20,000, which she claims under her pre-nuptial contract with Colonel Pratt, for $1,000 attorney's fees, and for an unspecified sum for her maintenance since she and Colonel Pratt ceased to live together, Mrs. Pratt will fight in the courts. Colonel Pratt's will, which bequeaths one-half his estate to his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Pratt Olson of Sweden, and the other two-fourths to his grandchildren, Wayland W. and Jerome P. Magee, will be attacked on the ground that at the time it was executed the colonel was of unsound mind and was incompetent to make reasonable and just disposition of his wealth.

Mrs. Julia Montgomery Pratt reached Omaha from her home in Boston Monday morning and took apartments at a fashionable hotel, keeping her name off the register or registering under an assumed name in order to escape the newspaper reporters. When called upon for an interview at her hotel, Mrs. Pratt said: "I haven't anything to say. If you want to know anything about my plans regarding the Pratt estate, you must see my attorney."

May Live Here. "My plans are quite unsettled now," said Mrs. Pratt. "I sold my home here, as you probably know. I don't know where I shall make my home. I like Omaha. It is good to be here again. I have been in Boston most of the time since I went away, but I have been in the south some and I like it there very much. I have more friends in Omaha than anywhere, and so you needn't be surprised if I decide to live here."

Attorney Baker said the first step of Mrs. Pratt will be to have the will of the late colonel declared invalid. This is not for the purpose of providing ground upon which Mrs. Pratt may stand and demand her "widow's third," but simply to place her in position to demand a reasonable portion of the estate. This done, Mrs. Pratt will go into the equity division of the district court with a suit for $20,000, which under the pre-nuptial contract became hers upon the death of Colonel Pratt. Another action in equity will be started for $1,000 attorney's fees for Mrs. Pratt in her divorce fight with the colonel and for maintenance. Colonel Pratt's will bequeaths nothing to Mrs. Pratt and gives as reason that the colonel has paid her considerable sums in settlement of any and all claims against him she may have.

Craig and Campen Forget Credentials

Wire to Mayor Dahlman Before They Can Get Seats in the Convention.

George S. Craig, city engineer, and George Campen, assistant city engineer, who left for New York Saturday morning as delegates to the annual meeting of the organization for the standardizing of paving, went without their credentials and thereby hangs a story. Craig and Campen landed in New York all right. But they couldn't land a job in the convention. They had credentials and they didn't. The credentials were in Omaha and they were in New York. So something had to be done. Monday morning Mayor Dahlman received a telegram from the outcasts. He set things right by a wire to the convention chief and now everything is serene in New York. Craig and Campen have their credentials and their seats.

Mr. Craig is chairman of the asphalt committee, having been appointed last winter at the annual meeting in Chicago.

Supreme Court Says Breweries Cannot Sell Beer at Retail

Decision is that Breweries Should Not Have Been Granted a License.

Meitz Bros. Brewing company should not have been granted a wholesale liquor license in 1905, according to a decision handed down by the Nebraska supreme court today in the matter of the remonstrance of J. M. Ledy of Omaha, district superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, against the granting of the license. Mr. Ledy's contention that a wholesaler cannot legally sell beer by the case to consumers is sustained. While the decision comes too late to have any effect on the specific case in which the remonstrance was made, it is important in that it establishes the legal fact that a wholesaler of liquor operating under a wholesale liquor license can sell only to persons holding retail liquor licenses. Since Ledy's objections were made, the Meitz Bros. Brewing company and other brewing companies have abandoned the retail business and now sell only to agents, who have retailers' licenses, and retail the beer by the case or keg. The brewing companies are now complying with the law as interpreted by the supreme court.

The opinion was prepared by Chief Justice Reese. Three judges concurred. Judges Sedgwick, Barnes and Fawcett dissented.

Employment Agents Accused of Selling Jobs that Are Not

Operator of Labor Brokerage Shop is Arrested on Complaint of Alleged Victims.

When you suck eggs, hide the shells—Missouri proverb. Operation of an employment agency more productive than efficient caused the arrest of J. H. Cook, proprietor, and Wesley Willis, clerk of the establishment at 204 Harney street. They were given ten days in jail by Judge Crawford in police court Monday morning. "The man who came back," exposed the same and caused the suppression of the alleged employment agency. Steve Kirschbaum paid $1 for a job in Riverton, Ia., and his transportation and went after the job. Saturday Mr. Kirschbaum came back with a letter from Rankin & Cowden, general contractors, calling the attention of Chief Donahue of the police department to the apparent fraud. "We have never had dealings with the employment agency in question and have no order out for men," the letter said. Then Charles Redman and J. S. Hamilton went through a similar experience at Payne, Iowa. They came back without a job, but full of complaint. The employment agency at the City hotel on Harney street has been in operation for several months.

For Mr. Van Dell, arriving late Sunday night, went to a hotel by himself and registered and slept and left his baggage there. He got up for breakfast and took a walk. Then he started to walk back to his hotel. He is still walking.

Building alterations involving an expenditure of $10,000 to $15,000 will soon be undertaken by the Nebraska Clothing Company. Contractors are now figuring on the specifications. NORTHWEST TO LAND SHOW

Representative Cities on Hand with Men and Exhibits.

RAILROADS SHOW BIG INTEREST An Effort Being Made to Show in a Comprehensive Way Resources of That Growing Section of the Country.

"The big northwest is coming to the land show," said Louis W. Buckley, who arrived Sunday from a tour of the country to be represented at the Omaha exhibit. "Representative cities throughout the country are interested in the show as a step toward the development of their resources and possibilities. The railroads, as factors in that development, are taking a vital interest. The attitude of the railway powers of the northwest is well illustrated in the welcome of the land show idea by L. W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, and J. W. Hansford, first vice president of the Northern Pacific. They are encouraging the interest of the farmers along their lines in the land exhibits. The country traversed by these lines is to be strongly represented at the show."

Mr. Buckley is in charge of the department work of the land show in connection with the special days devoted to emphasis on the advantages of the various sections covered by the show. "Miles City, Mont., is already preparing to get into the land show next year," said Mr. Buckley. "Time available would not permit the preparation of exhibits for the show of this year. Livingston and Rosman will have grain exhibits representing the bumper crop of that section of the last season."

Billings Has an Exhibit. "An exhibit building near the railroad station in Billings is typical of enterprise of the boosters of the city. There they show grains and grasses and many preserved products of their soil. H. W. Savidge is president of the Billings Commercial club. Exhibits will be sent to the land show directly from the Billings products museum collections.

"Helena and Great Falls will have perhaps the most complete and general display among the northwest exhibits. A large part of the display which these towns will send to Omaha comes from the Montana state fair. Among the boosters who will come to the land show to have charge of the exhibit are W. R. Meade, secretary of the Helena Commercial club; Oliver W. Holmes of Great Falls, and Samuel Teagarden of the Arizona Stock Lands and Farm company, and Charles J. Kelly of Butte. "Butte will send down a miniature smelter plant the property of the Guggenheim Smelter products and ores will be shown by an extensive collection.

"Statistics gathered by the Butte Commercial club show that $1,000 an hour was spent for freight in that city for every day in the year for 1910. The mining payrolls of Butte run from $750,000 to $1,000,000 a month. "Eleven commercial clubs in the Snake river country are to make a big display. The railroads are doing a great deal out there."
