MORTON PROUD OF HIS FRIENDS

Dead President of Equitable Had Warm Friends in Omaha.

SPENT HIS BOYHOOD DAYS HERE

Worked for Years with Many of the Leading Railroad Men of Omaha, Who Mourn His Sudden Death.

Many of the railroad men of Omaha were among the personal friends of Paul Morton and a general sorrow over the death of the former member of their profession was to be found in the highest positions in the offices were personal friends of Mr. Morton and had worked with him.

L. W. Wakely, general passenger agent of the Burlington lines west of the Missouri was perhaps the closest friend of Paul Morton, not only in railroad circles, but in all the different branches of work that Mr. Morton took up in his life. The two were lifelong friends, having lived in the same house when the tiniest of infants and continued the acquaintance through all the following years.

In 1884, the year in which L. W. Wakely was born at De Soto, his family moved to Omaha to spend the winter at the old Herndon house, then the social center of the west and now the Pacific headquarters. Paul Morton was then a year and a half old and all that winter the Morton family, the Wakelys, the Lyman Richards and the George L. Miller family lived at the Herndon house.

Associated with Morton. Mr. Wakely was associated with Mr. Morton at times while the two grew up and for years the two worked together on the Burlington railroad.

In the death of Paul Morton there are many men and women throughout this country who have lost a sincere and valued friend. It requires the highest standard of intellectual and lovable qualities, to make such enviable friendships as Mr. Morton made in all parts of this country during his short lifetime," said Mr. Wakely, speaking of his friend's death.

"I have known Paul Morton all my life, and for fifteen years, in Chicago, I was closely associated with him; his rapid advancement in the railroad profession, and the esteem in which, as a very young man, he was held by the greatest men of commercial and political affairs in Chicago and the east, was a confirmation of his remarkable and attractive personality.

"At the dinner given to him at Arbor Lodge, during the summer of 1904, by his brothers, Joy and Mark, upon the occasion of his selection as secretary of the navy, in reply to the sentiment offered in his honor, Paul Morton, looking over his thirty guests, many of whom were men of great commercial or professional success and of national prominence and indicative of the position in the world that Mr. Morton had won for himself, and ignoring all reference to his own honors, replied, 'I am more proud of my friends than of anything that has come into my life.'

"His nature was immaculate; clean; his ideals were of the highest; his heart was big and his love for his family deep; in turn he was similarly adored by every member, old and young, of the several Morton families.

Many Mourn His Death. Others of the railroad men in Omaha, although not perhaps so great personal friends of the deceased were none the less grieved at his death.

Well known Mr. Paul Morton for thirty odd years," said A. L. Mohler, general manager of the Union Pacific. "His elevation to important positions amply demonstrates the qualities and character of the man. His death comes to us as a shock and is a great loss to the country, to his company and to his friends."

General Manager G. W. Holdrege had worked on the same lines as Mr. Morton and knew him when he was hardly starting in railroad work.

"Mr. Morton started railroad work in our offices at Plattsmouth, as an office boy and clerk under Thomas Miller, then general freight agent. He later reached the position of general freight agent at Chicago, and when Mr. Ripley went to the Santa Fe to be president there, he accompanied him and was made vice president. He was always considered one of the best of railroad officials, and I valued his friendship highly," remarked Mr. Holdrege.

"I knew Mr. Morton both in a business and social way, as we were both in Omaha when young men," said T. M. Orr, assistant general manager of the Union Pacific. "Not a man who ever knew Mr. Morton, in either business or in pleasure, but what valued his friendship highly."

FUNERAL SERVICES SATURDAY

Body Will Be Buried in Woodlawn Cemetery, New York.
NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The business world in general and life insurance circles in particular were slow in recovering today from the shock caused by the sudden death last night of Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society and secretary of the navy in President Roosevelt's cabinet.

Mr. Morton's family were aware that he was in a serious condition physically and had prevailed upon him to take a vacation. He was to have sailed for Europe on February 22.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from St. Thomas Protestant Episcopal church. The burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery here.

The honorary pallbearers will be Thomas P. Ryan, Theodore P. Shonts, E. J. Berglund, J. P. Harris, Thomas Spratt, E. B. Thomas, F. E. Wilther, James McMahon and S. H. Zender.

It was reported in financial circles that a successor as president of the Equitable Life Assurance society would be among George W. Perkins, Gage E. Tarbell and William A. Day.

KIERMAN DENIES APPOINTMENT
New York Attorney Says No Meeting Was Arranged.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Paul L. Kierman, member of the New York law firm of Kierman, Nicholas & Moore, with whom Paul Morton was said to have had an engagement at the Hotel Seymour, when he was stricken with apoplexy Thursday, expressed surprise at that report here today. He was in Chicago several hours in consultation with members of the law firm of Sheriff, Dent, Dolyns & Freeman, the western correspondents of Mr. Kierman's firm.

Members of the Chicago firm, Mr. Kierman denied that he had had an appointment with Mr. Morton or that he had been associated with him in any way.

"Mr. Kierman told me positively he had had no appointment with Mr. Morton, did not know why their names had been associated," said Fletcher Dolyns, a member of the Chicago law firm.

which both firms are interested and with which Mr. Morton was in no way connected. He arrived here in the morning as we had expected, the business was discussed and he returned to New York. Mr. Morton's name probably would not have been mentioned in the visit here, except for the surprising report from New York.

Mr. Kierman departed at 2:45 o'clock on the Pennsylvania special and will reach New York at 9:40 o'clock tomorrow morning.

SENSATION SPRUNG IN KETCHEL MURDER TRIAL

Defense Says Dead Pugilist Was Son of R. P. Dickerson, at Whose Ranch He Was Killed.

MARSHFIELD, Mo., Jan. 20.—A sensation was sprung at the trial of Walter A. Duple and Goldie Smith, charged with the murder of Stanley Ketchel, today, when attorneys for the defense announced that they would attempt to show that R. P. Dickerson, the wealthy ranch owner, of whose place Ketchel was killed, is the reputed father of the dead pugilist.

Several witnesses were asked today if they knew of the alleged relationship between Dickerson and Ketchel. The court ruled the questions out as improper at this time, as Dickerson has not yet testified in the case.

Dickerson has been summoned as a witness, but the state may not call him to prevent the defense from questioning him regarding the alleged relationship. The defense intimates that it would subpoena Dickerson if the state failed to call him to the stand.

George Nuelan, an employe of the Dickerson ranch, testified that Ketchel, after being shot, said: "Well, I guess they got me." The defense insists that this statement referred to Duple alone. The state contends that there was a plot between Duple and Goldie Smith to kill Ketchel.
