action for making the presence of the Ad club known at the Land Show on Monday night.

Orders for Ad Club.

He will, early today, issue instructions to the Ad club men in the following terms:

"We want you to meet with the rest of the Ad club crowd Monday night for an evening of 'stunts' at the Land Show.

"The management of this land exposition has named Monday, January 23, as Ad Club night and has asked the club to attend the show.

"Will we come?

"We certainly will, and more than that, we will make it a 'quick and devilish' affair—typical of the Ad club.

"Thousands of out-of-town guests are here to see the exposition. We want them to be as favorably impressed with the Ad club as they are with the Land Show.

"Therefore—

"The members of the club will meet at the Hotel Rome at 7:45 Monday evening to rehearse songs and stunts and go over to the Auditorium in a body at 8 o'clock, where we will inject Cayenne into the proceedings.

"It is not to be a solemn parade, neither is it to be a rough house, but a night of entertainment to boost two good things—the show and the club.

"Dimick's Flapdoodle band and a troupe of real Indians will assist us.

"It will not take long. It will be good sport and we want live ones on the job.

"That's why we ask YOU.

"OMAHA AD CLUB.

"P. S.—Bring your voice."

Prof. Shaw to Speak.

Prof. Thomas Shaw, Aberdeen, S. D., editor of the Dakota Farmer, will arrive today to begin a series of lectures at the Land Show.

"In ten years I will make the Dakotas winter wheat states," is the enthusiastic promise of Prof. Shaw.

The extension of the winter wheat belt northward is one of the missions to which Prof. Shaw is devoting much of his efforts. He is accepted as an authority on the agriculture of the northwest.

GOD MANIFEST AT LAND SHOW

rive at such a conclusion. He does not even need to be a student of history—all one needs is an observing eye, an open mind and a receptive heart. Luther's catechism teaches us that God hath made himself known to us partly through his works, but mainly through his word. And when we come to consider the works of the Lord, we just look about us, our eyes catch a glimpa of the rising or setting sun which no artist on earth could produce; the forest trees, the flower bedecked prairies, the rolling rivers and rushing catavacts, the snow-capped cloud piercing mountains, the numerous lakes and the great oceans and the thousand and thousand products of the soil—and the beasts of the field and the fowls of the air and the fishes of the sea. O, the inspired Psalmist expresses my thought in such superior language that I can not refrain from using the very words.

He Sendeth Springs.

"'Bless the Lord, O, my soul for thou art very great. He sendeth the springs into the valleys, which run among the hills. They give dring to every beast of the field; the wild asses quench their thirst. By them the fowls of the air have their habitation, which sing among the branches. He watereth the hills from His chambers; the earth is satisfied with the fruit of thy works. He causes the grass to grow for the cattle, and herb for the service of man; that he may bring forth fruit out of the earth and wine that maketh glad the heart of man, and oil to make his face shine, and bread which strengtheth man's heart. The trees of the Lord are full of sap; the cedars of Lebanon, which He hath planted where the birds make their nests. As for the stork, the fir trees are her house. The high hills are a refuge for the goats and the rock for the conies. He appointed the moon for seasons, the sun knoweth his going down. Thou makest darkness and it is night; wherein all the beasts of the forest do creep forth. Man goeth forth unto his work and to his labor unto the evening. O, Lord, how manifold are thy works; in wisdom thou has made them all; the earth is full of thy riches. Thou sendest forth thy spirit, and thou renewest the face of the earth. The glory of the Lord shall endure forever; the Lord shall rejoice in His works. He looketh upon the earth and it trembleth; He toucheth the hills and they smoke.' And the Psalmist concludes, and do you wonder, with these gladsome words of great rejoicing, 'I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live; I will sing praise to God while I have my being. My medation of Him shall be sweet; I will be glad in the Lord. Bless the Lord O my soul. Praise ye the Lord.'

God Cares for His Children.

"We have here a general delineation of the glorious providences of God in His creating a demand and providing the supply for His numerous creatures with their varied and peculiar characteristics and wants. In the beginning man received the supply direct from God to sustain life and develop and engender strength. Food for the body was taken from the sea and the forests and dug from the earth—the natural growth—produced without man's co-operation and assistance—sufficient for the stage of development and agreeable to the prevailing simplicity of life.

"But as civilization had advanced and man has developed further demand has been created and through the instrumentality of mankind there has been produced the supply of the newly created demand. God has been leading man on and on just a little bit farther as century after century has passed into history. And as man has grown, his knowledge of God has increased, and today there is a higher conception of the character of the Supreme Being, a greater faith and a more sublime trust and confidence on the part of man in God than in any age of the world's history. And this has been wrought in many by centuries of divine guidance, constant and diversified manifestations of His glorious attributes. So full of confidence is man with regard to God's nature and interest in Him, that he ventures now to co-operate with God in the furthering of the welfare of the human race in the discovery of His use, and the development for His service of all which has become within the range of his increasing knowledge.

God Manifest at Land Show.

"How and in what way does God manifest Himself in this Land Show? First, I would say in the exhibition of His works; in the showing of the people the power of His works. No one can behold the product of the soil, the result of God's being favorable to the land, without beholding or recognizing the hand of God in it all. Paul may plant and Appolis water, but God must give the increase. God's glorious sunshine, warming the soil and thus causing germination and growth, withheld for a few days at a certain period of development, makes impossible a crop from the planting of man.

"In the great west man has diverted the streams and has directed their waters in the irrigation of millions of acres of land to great and bountiful productivity. But who furnishes the supply of the stream? Trace it back to its source and you will find the great source, the one and only ultimate source—God. With man's control of the water and his bringing it to the soil to supply the necessary moisture does not of itself assure a crop. And here, after all, God holds man a dependent upon His will. You never heard of a man storing up sunshine and allowing its rays to fall at will upon his growing crops.

"Hod dependent man is upon God after all! The richest soil, the most modern equipment, with all the scientific skill in agriculture, without God is nothing. And the first thought that comes to the thoughtful, considerate, well-developed man, as he beholds the exhibition in the Auditorium, is how wonderful is God. The works of the Lord are great. He showeth the people the power of His works.

"Second there is manifested in this great exhibition the wonderful achievements of man co-working with God. Products of the field are brought forth from parts of the United States, which a few ago was considered worthless. Man with his ever searching and inquiring nature has by a succession of experimentation wrought a wonderful work on the broad prairies of the great west. Where it has been possible he has provided a way of utilizing the great streams of water to bring moisture to his crops, and in those districts where there is little rainfall and water is a scarcity, he has developed a scientific system of dry farming—so that these great semi-arid belts are being made to blossom like the rose and great heretofore unknown resources have been discovered and are ready for the people.

People Make the Country.

"People make a country prosperous; all the rich land in the world, with plenty of rainfall and sunshine to produce the best of crops is valueless without man to till the soil, plant the seed and cultivate the crops.

"Again man in his labor ng together with God has performed wonders in the way of the development of plant and vegetable life. In this land exhibition we see how, man by co-working with God, has improved the flowers, fruits and vegetables of all kind and how also new species have been developed. Compare the dinner of a savage under his native palm with the products of this great agriculture exhibit and the marvelous effects of man's skill and ingenuity appear.

"I stopped at the Burbank display the other day and was much interested in the gentleman in the booth and his fine explanation of what the great plant wizard of California is accomplishing in the realm of plant life. First with regard to Burbank himself. He is a man of strong will power, industriously engaged in the pursuit of a work which he thoroughly enjoys. He lives in his work. He cares nothing for popularity and praise. He works because he loves to work and especially because he loves the kind of work in which he is engaging his time. He lives among the plants.

"The representative of Mr. Burbank was very earnestly describing the development of the cactus plant as a food product. You know that the word cactus is the title of a plant which named with sage brush has been used to describe the worthlessness of the barren American desert. Yes, that land is no good; there is nothing on it except sage brush and cactus. What has Burbank done with that worthless plant? By care and cultivation he has stripped it of its offensive growth and has given it a value as a food plant for cattle, horses, mules and other animals. And the fruit of the plant is a food substance for man.

Cactus to Eat.

"A gentleman hearing the story, said: 'Let me taste some of it,' adding 'I have eaten rattlesnakes, but I never yet have tasted cactus.' Well, we all were given a sample of cooked cactus and it was very palatable, something like a fig. This gentleman also showed us how the great wizard had developed the plumcote, which is a cross between the plum and apricot, partaking of the flavor of each, and also how he is now seeking to perfect the pomato, a cross between the potato and tomato.

"And so, as the great Californian is now doing systematically and scientifically has been going on in the development of plant life as civilization has increased and the knowledge of man has become more and more comprehensive. And in the land exhibition in the Auditorium the great result of God working with man or man and God laboring together may be seen. And with the Psalmist truly the thoughtful man would declare, 'The works of the Lord are great, sought out by all who have pleasure therein. He hath showed His people the power of His works.'

"Again God is manifest in the enterprise itself. The great world is the workshop of the human race. It is large enough, well enough furnished, containing sufficient opportunity for the sustenance, comfort and happiness of mankind. Opportunities undreamed of by our forefathers have been discovered and are being utilized by us; opportunities of which we have been ignorant and concerning which we have been in darkness are brought to our attention in this exhibit.

Back to the Farm.

"The high cost of living and the destitute millions of our land have given to the world the significant declaration or appeal, "Back to the farm." The farm dominates the busines of the world. No agriculture, no business; no farm products, no city enterprise. The farmers fail and the city folks starve. And the realization of the absolute necessity of the farmer has changed the cry, 'away from the farm,' to 'back to the farm,' until today there are men of the trades giving up their work in the city and applying their energy to the plow and the hoe; there are business men who have sold out their merchandise and have entered into the enterprise of fruit culture; and professional men, men of the law and medicine, and even some from the calling of the ministry, have gone out upon the homestead or ranch to conduct a revival of chicken raising, etc.

People Ready to Respond.

"The cry has fallen upon receptive ears and men have considered that there is nothing in all the life of the world so important just now. Men and women living in the tenement houses and districts in a starving condition, with unsanitary surroundings, breathing the foul atmosphere which such conditions create; this class of people especially should be made to hear the cry and should be made to see the grand opportunities which this old earth holds for all who desire to work and be industriously engaged. And now if after these great land exhibitions in St. Louis, Pittsburg, Chicago and Omaha, a way could be planned to help those people to help themselves to take advantage of the opportunity, there would come to the individual, as well as to the government, a great blessing.

"And this is a matter, it seems to us, for the government to undertake. Along with the experimental station should be established training schools for the teaching of agriculture, and as men are trained they should be given a chance on government land to make good. It would be an expensive proposition you say. I believe that eventually such a proposition could be made profitable even to the government. At any rate it would encourage industry, develop character, which after all is fundamental in the prosperity and perpetuity of any nation. Let me ask why should the government allow its citizens to starve and pine away amidst the unhealthy and unsanitary conditions of the tenement districts of the city, when we have only touched the hem of the garment of our resources?

"The land exhibit brings to the attention of man these wonderful opportunities and as we catch a glimpse of these we are inspired to cry out with the Psalmist, 'The works of the Lord are great, sought of all them that have pleasure therein; He hath showed His people the power of His works.'" and sometimes are unacquainted with present laws and legal forms.

WORK AHEAD OF LEGISLATURE

One-half of the bills which have been introduced in the house this session are said to have been drawn wholly or in part by Mr. Sheldon and his assistants. As a result one-fourth more bills have been introduced this session than at any previous session and the representatives and senators have been saved much needed time and nervous energy. Incidentally it may the total number of bills introduced during the forty days in which they may be introduced up to 1,200 or 1,500 measures of various kinds and degrees of importance.

First Apportionment Bill.

The first apportionment bill to make its appearance on the floor will probably be the Hoagland bill, which is scheduled for presentation Monday in both houses. Senator Hoagland has based his division on representation on population as nearly as is possible. It provides twenty-nine senatorial districts. There will be the same number of members in the senate as all of these districts will have one senator, excepting Lancaster and Douglas. Lancaster will have two as now and Douglas will have four instead of three.

The apportionment in the house will be over seventy-six districts. Douglas county will have fourteen instead of nine as now and Lancaster will have six instead of four. The other counties and districts will have one each, excepting Gage, Dodge, Adams, Hall and Custer, which have two each and Seward and York, which will have one extra one between them.

Nebraskans Prosper in the Big Horn Basin

Son of the Lincoln Postmaster Visits Land Show—Grows Alfalfa in the West.

William A. Sizer, son of Poostmaster Edward R. Sizer of Lincoln and Mrs. Sizer, who was formerly Miss Edith Shedd of Ashland, came in yesterday from Basin, Wyo., to attend the Land Show. Some four years ago Mr. Sizer took up his home in the Big Horn Basin and associated with Harry and George Shedd of Ashland, has extensive interests in that section. The alfalfa farm consiting of 400 acres, which these young men together with Gilmore Hartigan, formerly of Hastings, have developed midway between the towns of Basin and Greybull, is considered the show farm of the Big Horn valley. Commodious farm ifprovements in the bungalow style have been erected, natural gas is to be utilized shortly and the entire 400 acres are producing immense crops of alfalfa under irrigation. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sizer state that nothing could persuade them to return to city life in Nebraska after their experiences in the wonderful new Big Horn basin. The glorious climate, if nothing else, is enough to keep them there permanently.

FISH ATTRACT THE CROWDS

Great Interest in the E hibit from the Nebraska State Hatcheries.

Fish at the land show are attracting a world of attention and W. J. O'Brien is receiving high praise on all sides for the extensive exhibit he has made of the work which is being done in Nebraska in the way of fish culture.

Trout are being artificially hatched at the land show and the crowds which watch the exhibit and listen to the talks made by the lecturers often block the isle. This is the season of the year for the trout to hatch and the show is being held just at the hight time to give all an opportunity to see just how it is done.

Trout do not thrive well in the eastern waters of Nebraska, but in the west and northwest sections there are streams especially adapted to their culture and here each year the Nebraska fish commissioner plants thousands of fry, which soon grow into fish of a size for table use.

Fish are becoming recognized as one of the valuable products of the west, and several private ponds have been stocked and several private hatcheries are in operation, which yield a good income each year to their owners.

Pure water used in the huge tanks give the visitors at the show an opportunity to see the large varieties of fish which are on exhibition.

MAY WITHHOLD DRAINAGE TAX

Attorney General Martin Makes Ruling on This Question.

MATTER UP FROM PAWNEE

Ole Neilson, Stockholder in Farmers and Merchants Insurance Company, Files Suit, Claiming He Was Deceived.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Jan. 22.—(Special.)—Attorney General Martin has given out an opinion in which he holds that a taxpayer may demand a receipt for his general taxes and withhold the amount of his drainage taxes if he cares to protest them. This question was brought up in a letter from S. J. Graham, county attorney of Pawnee county, where a dispute had arose as to the right of a county treasurer to accept payment of a general tax when the payer held out the amount of a protested drainage tax. The attorney general holds that to accept the rest of the money does not in any way prejudice the validity of the drainage claim.

Sues Farmers and Merchants.

Ole Neilson, a stockholder in the Farmers and Merchants' Insurance company has filed suit in the district court against the company for $2,900. He asserts that the agents of the company knew it was not in good condition when they sold him his stock.

Word has been received from the south that more successful negotiations for the purchase of the insurance company may be expected this week and the re-insurance of the company's accounts is expected.

George L. Turner, a prominent business man here, is now on a business trip to Iowa and has been authorized by the Commercial club to investigate certain plants which have been successfully operated in that state for many years.

Ralph Johnstone, Jr., Displays Heritage of Courage When Lost

Little Lad, Son of Ill-Fated Aviator, Searches Crowded Broadway for His Mother.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(Special Telegram.)—The 9-year-old son and namesake of Ralph Johnstone, the aviator who was killed in Denver November 17, proved his heritage of courage in time of trouble, today. The little fellow became separated from his mother in a crowd on Broadway and Thirty-fourth street during the evening home-rush of the shoppers. In their endeavors to find each other they only went farther apart.

Women shoppers were attracted by the sight of the boy walking along and calling, "Mother!" Mother!"

They stopped him: "Are you lost, dear?"

"No, ma'am, my mother is lost and I've got to find her."

"Where do you live?"

"In Sixty-fourth street, No. 21, west."

"Well, I'll take you home," cried a kindly woman.

"No, ma'am; I've got to find my mother."

An automobile stopped at the curb. The owner said:

"Jump in, and I'll take you home."

"No, thank you sir," said Ralph. "I can go home, but I'm looking for my mother."

"I can't find my mother. I want a policeman," and he ran across the street to where Policeman Merritt was guiding the traffic.

"My mother's lost," said he.

"Well, son," said the officer, "I'll fix that all right. Come with me."

At the West Thirtieth station Merritt lifted the boy up on the high desk, where Lieutenant Dempsey could see him.

"What's the trouble, my lad?" said Dempsey.

"I've lost my mother. I'm Ralph Johnstone. My father was the flying man, but he died out in Denver."

Mrs. Johnstone, who had reached home in a state of collapse, sobbed with joy when she heard over the phone that the little fellow was safe.

"Is she all right?" demanded Ralph, as Dempsey hung up the receiver.

CONGRESS MAKES GOOD PROGRESS

committee. Mr. Fitzgerald, whose principal opponent in the fight for the appropriations committee is Mr. Burleson of Texas, is one of the twenty-three democrats who voted against the party in the rules fight during the extra session of the present congress, but this defection is said to have been forgiven.

The republicans, under the spur of the leaders and no-quorum insistence of Mr. Dwight of New York, the republican whip, who purposes to force the attendance of members, are continuing the high speed pressure on appropriation bills. The post-office appropriation bill, which will be passed early this week, will give way to the agricultural bill and the District of Columbia, fortifications, naval and diplomatic and consular appropriation bills are all ready to be taken up, with the military academy and sundry civil supply bills soon to follow.

Congressional Reapportionment.

The problem of a congressional reappointment in the light of the recent census figures will be placed squarely before the house if Chairman Crumpacker of the census committee has his way. He purposes asking the house to take up his bill, the effect of which would be to fix the house membership at a little more than 430 members, as a priviledge measure at the first opportunity.

The ways and means committee will bring in a bill this week to provide for a continuance of the work of the tariff board, giving that body a permanent status. The republican members finally have agreed on the bill, which they will pass over to the minority members of the committee for inspection Tuesday and then report the measure to the house.

The Bates bill for signal honors to Captain Robert E. Peary for his polar achievements, will be brought up in the house probably this week. Another subject which probably will engage attention this week is the controversy between San Francisco and New Orleans as to which will be designated as the Panama canal exposition city.

Morgan's Niece May Be Made Vicerine

Lewis H. Harcourt in Line for Peerage and American Wife May Share the Honor.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(Special Cablegram.)—Mrs. Lewis H. Harcourt, an American woman, niece of J. Pierpont Morgan, may be the next vicerine of Canada.

The idea of sending the duke of Connaught, Prince Alexander of Teck or some royal prince to succeed Earl Grey has about been abandoned, and in semi-official circles it is understood that the post will be offered to Mr. Harcourt, who is now minister of the colonies. If it is, and he accepts, he will undoubtedly be raised to the peerage.

He undoubtedly would be very popular, and his wife, the daughter of Walter H. Burns (who married a sister of J. P. Morgan), is a very charming woman and would make an excellent vicerine.

Mr. Harcourt is doubly connected with America by marriages. His stepmother is a daughter of John Lothrop Mottley, a distinguished historian and at one time United States minister to England.

Paul Morton's Body Will Be Brought to Arbor Lodge Later

Noted Men Attend Funeral Services in New York—Fifth Avenue Thronged.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Double funeral services for Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society and former secretary of the navy, were held yesterday. The public service, at St. Thomas' Episcopal church on Fifth avenue, was attended by his many former associates at Washington and by leading financiers and business men here.

Theodore Roosevelt, who appointed Mr. Morton to his cabinet in 1904, Victor H. Metcalf and General Benjamin F. Trace, both former heads of the Navy department, Rear Admiral Silas W. Terry, U. S. N. (retired); J. P. Morgan, Jacob H. Schiff and Whitlaw Reid, ambassabor to England, were among those who attended.

The widow, Joy Morton, her brother-in-law, and a score of relatives were the only persons at the home service. Fifth avenue was thronged during both services and the flowers sent to the church filled six carriages. Most of them were distributed among the hospitals after the funeral and the body was removed in a special funeral car to Woodlawn cemetery, where it was placed in a vault.

It is expected it will be transferred later to Arbor Lodge, Nebraska City, Neb.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—As a mark of respect to the memory of Paul Morton, former secretary of the navy, a special order was issued today by Secretary Meyer, directing that the flags of the navy yards and stations and vessels in commission in home waters be displayed at half mast from 8 a. m. to sunset on the day after the receipt of the order.

EX-COUNTY TREASURER SUED

Calhoun County Board Brings Claim for Alleged Shortage in Funds.

LAKE CITY, Ia., Jan. 22.—(Special.)—The Calhoun county board of supervisors has instituted proceedings against former county treasurer, T. W. McCrary of Rockwell City and his official bond, for the recovery of about $900, which it is alleged is due the county. The claim is made that there was this amount of shortage in the county funds during McCrary's treasurership. The matter has been discussed for several years and has never been brought to a head until now. The shortage in the funds was discovered by an expert some ago. The general opinion seems to prevail that the county was never wronged out of a penny intentionally and the bringing of the case to court will be the means of straightening up the matter, to the satisfaction of all.

INSIDE HISTORY

Some Self-Explanatory Letters.

Battle Creek, Mich. Jan'y. 7, '11.

Dr. E. H. Pratt,
Suite 1502, 100 State St.,
Chicago, Illinois.

My Dear Doctor:

"Owing to some disagreement with——magazine several years ago they have become quite vituperative, and of late have publicly charged me with falsehoods in my statements that we have genuine testimonial letters.

"It has been our rule to refrain from publishing the names either of laymen or physicians who have written to us in a complimentary way, and we have declined to accede to the demand of attorneys that we turn these letters over to them.

"I am asking a few men whom I deem to be friends to permit me to reproduce some of their letters over their signatures in order to refute the falsehoods.

"We have hundreds of letters from physicians, but I esteem the one that you wrote to me in 1906 among the very best, particularly in view of the fact that it recognizes the work I have been trying to do partly through the little book, "The Road to Wellville."

"I do not sell or attempt to sell the higher thought which is more important than the kind of food, but I have taken considerable pains to extend to humanity such facts as may have come to me on this subject.

"In order that your mind may be refreshed I am herewith enclosing a copy of your good letter, also a copy of the little book, and if you will give me the privilege of printing this over your signature I will accompany the printing with an explanation as to why you permitted its use in publication in order to refute falsehoods, and under that method of treatment I feel, so far as I know, there would be no breach of the code of ethics.

"I trust this winter weather is finding you well, contented and enjoying the fruits that are yours by right.

With all best wishes, I am,"

Yours very truly,
C. W. POST.

Dr. Pratt, who is one of the most prominent and skillful surgeons in America, very kindly granted our request in the cause of truth and justice.

Chicago, Aug. 31, 1906.

Mr. C. W. Post,
Battle Creek, Mich.

My dear Sir:—

"I write to express my personal appreciation of one of your business methods, that of accompanying each package of your Grape-Nuts production with that little booklet, "The Road to Wellville." A more appropriate, clear headed and effective presentation of health-giving autosuggestions could scarcely be penned.

"Grape-Nuts is a good food in itself, but the food contained in this little article is still better stuff. I commend that practice because I know that the greed and strenuousness, the consequent graft and other types of thievery and malicious mischief generally can never be cured by legislative action.

"The only hope for the betterment of the race rest in individual soul culture.

"In taking a step in this direction, your process has been so original and unique that it must set a pace for other concerns until finally the whole country gets flavored with genuine, practical Christianity.

"I shall do all that lies in my power to aid in the appreciation of Grape-Nuts, not so much for the sake of the food itself as for the accompanying suggestions.

"Visiting Battle Creek the other day with a friend, Dr. Kelly of Evanston, Illinois, while I was consulting with Mr. Gregory, my friend visited your factories and came back greatly amazed, not only at the luxurious furnishings of the offices generally and the general equipment of the place, but with the sweet spirit of courtesy and kindness that seemed to fill the air with a spiritual ozone that was good to breathe.

"The principles expressed in the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," I well know are practical and they work in business of all kinds, including sanatariums, as will be fairly tested before time is done.

"I know you will not regard this letter of appreciation as an intruding one. It is simply a salutation of good fellowship to you from a man who, although he has never seen you, feels drawn to you by the kinship of thought.

"The only thing that makes a man live forever in the hearts of his countrymen and his race is the the good that he does. Your position in this respect is an enviable one and I wish to extend my congratulations."

Yours respectfully,
E. H. PRATT.
