

CITY AND COUNTY TO DEPORT

Agree to Rid the City of Dependent Poor When Possible.

NEW START IS ALREADY MADE

Family of Six to Sent to Pennsylvania, Where Father is Located—City and County Officials in Conference.

Chronic charity seekers will have to give Omaha a wide berth hereafter. After a conference between Miss Ida V. Jontz, secretary of the Associated Charities, and Peter Elkaner, the new chairman of the county board of charities, it was decided to deport chronic charity seekers, as they are termed, whenever possible.

By chronic charity seekers are meant persons who have been seeking and obtaining help from the local charities for a period of more than six months. There are many in Omaha and South Omaha who have been on the books of the association for two or three years.

This is deemed best to deport. The scheme is to deport these undesirable and the method that will prevail will be to ascertain the whereabouts of the relatives of these unfortunates and to send them there, the charity association to furnish transportation.

The scheme was put into practice immediately after and a family of six will be deported Thursday morning. Transportation was secured Wednesday morning and the mother and five little tots will be put on the train for a little town in Pennsylvania, where the father has been located.

This family has been dependent on charities for more than two years. Last fall the father deserted his wife and offspring. He has been located in Pennsylvania with his parents. After numerous letters were exchanged between the local office of the Associated Charities and the grandparents of the children, the former agreed to furnish a home and see that support was provided if the Omaha office would send the family there.

You have no idea of the number of people who are able to work, who try to impose on the association," said Miss Jontz Wednesday morning. "Often times we help these people and they get the idea that they are on the roll for life and make no effort to help themselves.

"This is the case of people who are after, as well as those who apply for help as soon as they hit the town. The tendency of these people would be to make Omaha the dumping ground of persons who are not averse to accepting assistance, even though they can make their own way."

COUNCIL AND PARK BOARD SIDESTEP PAVING BILLS

Each of Them Denies Liability for Jobs that Have Already Been Done.

Somebody steered paving bills to the amount of $4,736.55 through the wrong channel Tuesday night when a resolution was presented to the city council asking the payment of this amount. The report was referred to the park and boulevard committee and now that body will have to take the kinks out of the tangle.

Some time ago bids were let for the paving of Woolworth avenue from Thirtieth street to Thirty-sixth street, California from Sixteenth to Twentieth streets and Poppleton avenue from Thirty-second to Thirty-sixth street.

As their part of the paving the Board of Park Commissioners has been asked to pay $4,736.55. In her report to the council Mrs. C. D. C. Jewett, secretary of the Board of Park Commissioners, states that there is no money at present to pay this amount and if there was it is her opinion that the board should not pay for these improvements.

The assessment is for the paving of streets which touch the boulevards and which should be paid by the city. It is not a bill to be paid out of funds in the park board, according to the report.

A difference of opinion exists as to whether the park board should pay these bills or the city should pay them. In either event, the city foots the bill, but now the question is which department must stand the expense.

"Eventually the city will have to pay the bills," says Councilman Herka. "The work is done and it must be paid for. Of the amount Hugh Murphy, paving contractor, wants $5,566.06. The other creditors are Charles E. Panning, $212.14; Bryant, Ford & McLaughlin, $660.14; Omaha Cement and Paving company, $283.71, and the city engineering department, $22.48.

YOUTH MAKES A HEROIC FIGHT FOR HIS LIFE IN VAIN

Physicians Say that He Must Succumb to the Ravages of the White Plague.

Encased in a plaster cast from head to hips, so that he could not move a muscle, and given up to die at any moment for the last four months, Walter K. Martin, 23 years old, through sheer force of will power, is keeping himself alive at the Clarkson Memorial hospital. The most heroic treatment that could be devised by surgical experts of the city has been used to save the young man from the death he is facing from tuberculosis of the spine, but his survival through the ordeal is declared to be merely a matter of hours and due simply to his mental power.

Mr. Martin became ill two years ago and was operated upon under the impression he was suffering from appendicitis. His ailment then was thought to be rheumatism of the back and for fifteen months he received treatment for that disease.

It was not until Dr. J. P. Lord, in consultation with several other physicians, investigated the case six months ago that the true nature of the patient's affliction was discovered.

It was found that his disease had caused the young man's frame to double and become emaciated in length. He lives at O'Neill, Neb.

City Fusses for the Payment of Its Rent

Is After Property Owners that Are Using Streets and Alleys of the City.

Some of the firms in Omaha pay their rentals for the use of city property and others do not. The city comptroller's office has been trying to find out why the Board of Trade building, the Devey estate, and Fred Vogel, Jr. have not paid for the use of city property used as arcades.

The taxes have been delinquent for nearly a year. Twice the comptroller has asked the city attorney to investigate the reason, but so far nothing has been heard from the attorney's office.

Though these amounts are small, altogether they total $3, the city comptroller contends that these firms should pay regularly, as do the larger firms.

The Board of Trade building is charged with $30 as rental for its part of the arcade between the Board of Trade building and the Schilz hotel. Gus Vogel, Jr., who owns the lot on which the hotel is located, is indebted in the sum of $15 as rental on the other end of the arcade.

The Devey estate is charged up with $25 as rental for the arcade between the Devey and Stone Furniture Company building and the Omaha Crochery building.

The Board of Trade Building company contends that it is not liable for the payment, and that the Commercial club, which rents the building, should pay. But the comptroller can't see it that way. The Devey estate refuses to pay because it does not occupy the building.

Vogel has paid the sum of $5, but has failed to come across for the last three quarters.

The amount of rental is governed by city ordinance. Under this ordinance the Boston store owners pay into the city coffers the sum of $1,500 annually, while Hayden Bros. swelled the exchequer $200 last year.

Permits Held Up, as Estimates Too Small

Building Inspector Holds Up Permits on Three Residences for Revision of Cost.

Permits for the erection of three dwellings, among which was that of Barton Millard, who is going to build at Thirty-eighth and Burt streets, were held up by the building inspector Wednesday morning.

The contractors failed to bring plans and specifications, and the stated cost of the Millard residence, $12,000, which was considered too small, were the reasons for holding up the permits.

The contractors agreed to bring in the plans and specifications and boost the price Wednesday afternoon, when the permits will probably be granted.

C. B. Havens & Co. and the Havens-White Coal company have consolidated their wholesale and retail coal businesses in Omaha and will move into their new offices on the ground floor of the Bee building February 1.

C. B. Havens & Co. was organized in 1886 as a co-partnership by Charles B. Havens, George W. Megeath and John McGovern. Mr. Havens and Mr. Megeath being prominent railroad officials, the company was incorporated in 1891 with Mr. Havens as president and treasurer, H. T. Lemist vice president and George P. Cronk secretary. The company at that time owned and controlled 500 box cars and was the most extensive shipper of coal in the west.

At $5c—50 pairs of ladies' suits, all small sizes, from 2 to 2 1/2—made to sell at $2.00.

At $1.98—Box calf shoes for boys, in sizes 2 1/2 to 5 1/2—very dressy—that were made to sell at $2.50.

You are promised rare shoe values among these stocks, of course, an early morning visit would be a good plan.
