Goodrich of the Goodrich hotel and the family doctor has been working on Mr. Goodrich more or less since Thursday afternoon. The trouble arose from a rear end collision between the auto and a Greek bakery wagon from Omaha. The accident occurred on Twenty-fourth street and Broadway. Mr. Goodrich was approaching the wagon, which was moving along at a good clip, and tried to pass it. At the same moment the driver of the horse pulled out in the same direction to cross to the other side of the street, making a collision inevitable. The contact was so violent that the iron axle of the wagon was snapped, the vehicle overturned and the man and horse both slightly injured. The entire front part of the auto was smashed by the impact. Mr. Goodrich's face was painfully cut in a number of places by bits of flying glass from the broken wind shield, and he was otherwise bruised.

BURNS TAKES DATA BACK

Returns to Kansas City With Material for Large Amount of Computation.

Clinton S. Burns, the city's water works expert, has returned to Kansas City after four days' work of physical examination of the local water plant. He acquired sufficient data to keep his office busy for several days working up.

He will not return before the middle of next week, and may not consider it necessary to return until within a few days before the reconvening of the court of condemnation on St. Valentine's day. In the meantime City Engineer Rhyne is continuing the work of examining the water pipes.

Excavations were made yesterday on Benton, Harmony, North First and Second streets, all paved streets, to expose the pipes. It has been found that the ground is frozen only a short a foot beneath the paving foundation, and the excavations have been made more rapidly than was anticipated. City Engineer Rhyne is keeping accurate data showing the condition of the pipes. It is said that a long section of wrought iron pipe has been discovered by the excavations on Harmon street, where the Kleistert investigator show cast iron. All such pipe is now characterized as "valves," and will be held to be practically worthless by the city's experts.

HORSE STEPS ON STEVE SCOTT

Proprietor of Feed Barns May Die of Severe Injuries.

FALLS IN STALL NEAR ANIMAL

Frightened Creature With Sharp Calks Repeatedly Tramps on Helpless Man's Face and Chest—Weak From Illness.

Steve Scott, proprietor of the Neumayer hotel feed barns, is in Mercy hospital suffering from wounds that are feared may prove fatal. He fell at the heels of a strange horse in one of the stalls and the frightened animal repeatedly stepped on his face and chest.

The accident occurred shortly after 11 o'clock Thursday night. Mr. Scott had been ill for several days and Thursday afternoon was the first time he had been able to leave his bed in the barn since Monday. There were a number of teams in the barn whose owners had driven in from the country and nearby towns to attend the Masonic school for instruction. Among them was a team belonging to John Wilds, residing east of the city. At 11 o'clock Scott accompanied Wilds to the barn to take out the team. Other barn men were busy and despite their protests Scott started to bring out the team. He stepped into the stall and put his hand on the back of one of the animals, speaking kindly to it. In his extremely weak condition Scott leaned toward the horse. It shrank away from him and the man fell heavily at its heels. This frightened the creature and it sprang ahead until it struck the manger and then backed quickly, planting both its hind feet on the side of Scott's face as he was in the act of turning to roll away from danger. The contact with the protrude form increased the fright of the horse and it again lunged forward and back, again stepping both feet on the man's upturned face. This was again repeated before assistants could drag the injured man away.

The horse was sharp shod and the calks of the shoes made frightful wounds. The cheek bone on the left side was crushed, the jaw broken and nearly all of the teeth knocked out. The cheek and upper lip were cut through in several places and the bones of the upper jaw fractured, the chest injured and one shoulder broken.

The Woodring ambulance was called and the injured man was hurried to Mercy hospital. He was in an unconscious condition nearly all day yesterday, and in the fore part of the day the physicians had no hope of his recovery, but late in the afternoon he was resting more quietly.

Mr. Scott is 33 years old and unmarried. He has had the lease of the barn for a dozen years and was well known and very popular. His former home was on a farm near Weston, but his mother and several family relatives reside here.

Officials Take Tramp

Along Tortuous Line of the Nishnabotna

County Auditor Hannan and Mr. Children Get Exceedingly Weary From Tramp of Twenty Miles.

County Auditor Hannan returned to town yesterday weary and footsore after a long trip along the shores of the Nishnabotna river from Oakland to Carson. He accompanied the Board of County Supervisors on their journey along the streams to meet and confer with the farmers for the purpose of ascertaining their real sentiments in relation to the proposed establishment of the $10,000 drainage ditch project designed to straighten the tortuous channel of the Nishna from Oakland to the Mills county line.

A map of the stream would make a good sketch of a woman in frightful convulsions. In threading its course through the rich farm lands its convolutions go through every form of convulsions except a full loop, the letters "a," "g" and "d" being the plan most generally followed. Following the course of the stream the distance from Oakland to Carson is fourteen miles and only six in a straight line. This fact was a powerful argument in impressing the members of the board with the practical desirability of straightening the channel. The members had to walk the entire distance and when the additional detours to outlying quarter sections were counted it made the total distance tramped more than twenty miles. It was easy for some of the farmer members of the board, but for Auditor Hannan and Member Children of Council Bluffs, who got most of their exercise by swinging on a revolving office chair, it was a feat equal to a great military achievement.

Auditor Hannan left the party at Carson and came home to put in force a plan that was devised in the field. He sent out postal cards to every land owner who will be affected by the proposed ditch, asking him to vote yes or no on the proposition to establish the ditch. This was found to be distasteful on account of the difficulty of meeting all of the interested parties. These cards will be canvassed at the meeting of the board next Tuesday and if all reply the question of establishing the ditch will be solved. The board members expected to continue the journey down one side of the stream and back on the other, making a distance of more than forty miles, a formidable tramp even for the most hardy. When Children returns he expects to spend some comfortable hours in a Turkish bath.

Sioux Cityans Win in Their Debate Here

Local Debaters Win From Sioux City in Sioux City—Sioux Win at Fort Dodge.

Council Bluffs High school debaters were defeated in the debate with Sioux City at the local high school last night by a vote of two to one of the judges. The debate was conducted before the largest audience that has assembled in the school auditorium for many months. The judges were Prof. Edwin Maxey and Prof. L. E. Aylesworth of the Nebraska State University and Attorney H. H. Baldridge of Omaha. The timekeepers were D. G. Hunt for the Sioux City and Allen Sayles for Council Bluffs.

The subject debated was: "Resolved, That a graduated income tax with $3,000 exemption would be a desirable addition to the federal taxation scheme." Council Bluffs took the affirmative, and the young debaters, Messrs. Theron Greiser and Kenneth Bayler and Miss Beatrice Tinley, handled the subject so well and made such a favorable impression upon the audience that the public sentiment was almost a unit in favor of awarding them the victor's honors. The judges, however, thought otherwise.

Henry Peterson was chairman of the meeting. A brilliant musical program formed part of the pleasing entertainment. Council Bluffs debaters also engaged in a forensic battle with opposing teams at Sioux City and Ft. Dodge at the same hour last night, debating the same subject. Word came at 11 o'clock last night that Sioux City also won at Ft. Dodge and Council Bluffs at Sioux City, giving Sioux City the victory in the final contest.
