Tuesday afternoon the freshmen of the Omaha High school engaged in a lively debate. The debate was held in the new auditorium and the room was filled by many of the freshmen class and also some of the mothers of the debaters. Even a few of the seniors, who generally hold themselves aloof from freshmen meetings, were in evidence, and also a part of the faculty

The income tax as opposed to the proteclive tariff formed the nucleus of the debate, and all of the youthful debaters had formed a clear, logical idea of the question. From the ten freshmen who ascended the platform and dehated, three were chosen to form the freshmen debating squad. The successful speakers are as follows: Gilbert Kennedy. Harold Torrell and James Westerfield. Mr. Anderson, who is in charge of debating at the school, seemed pleased with the outcome of the debate and said that the freshmen debates, if carcled on under proper conditions, might be made as interesting as the regular school debates.

A medal for the best freshmen debater will probably be given at the close of the school year, similar to the medal given last year.
