GUMMINS FOR THE AGREEMENT

Iowa Senator Speaks for Reciprocity Before Union League Club.

SAYS ATTITUDE NEVER IN DOUBT

Progressive Leader Asserts Additions Should Be Made to Free List and Declares Canada's Consent Is Unnecessary.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa spoke in advocacy of the Canadian reciprocity agreement before the Union League club of Brooklyn tonight.

"I am not for every trade arrangement that may be proposed under the name of reciprocity just as I was for the system of protection in 1905, but I was not for the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

Will Not Affect Farmers. "I am not one of those who believe that the free admission of agricultural products into the United States from Canada will materially affect our farmers, but I do believe that while we are admitting free the things which the farmer sells we should also admit free some of the things the farmer buys.

holding voters to submit the question of license or no license in any small village as often as they desire.

Sale to Minors. McKintick of Gage has a bill which might be taken as to a certain extent favorable to the liquor dealers as it relieves a saloon keeper of liability for selling liquor to a minor if the minor signs a statement setting forth his age falsely as over 21, and in that case the crime is shifted to the minor himself and he can be fined for falsely representing that he is over 21.

All of these bills are important legislation and if any or all of them are passed the liquor traffic will be banished and hindered and in the opinion of some men the anti-traffic law in particular will, if enforced, make the selling of intoxicating drinks much less profitable than it is now.

Letter Against Reciprocity. The Canadian reciprocity treaty is not to be dropped by the members of the Nebraska legislature who are interested in it, and William Colton of New York, the republican who introduced the resolution asking that Nebraska members of congress be instructed against the bill, having been defeated in that effort by the democratic majority has sent a letter to the Washington men asking them to work for the farmers and against the bill. The letter, which is signed also by I. D. Evans of Adams county, generally recognized as the republican floor leader, sets out to prove that signing the treaty would work great injury to the wheat farmers of this section and would affect also the butter market, which is of so much importance to this section of the country. The inquiry is made as to the consistency of asserting that the farmer will not be injured and in the same breath asserting that the high cost of living will be reduced. The only way in which the treaty would affect the high cost of living would be in lowering the price of things which Nebraska farmers raise, and that would certainly do the farmer no good.

ARCHBISHOP RYAN DIES PEACEFULLY

was young and his youthful education was received from the Christian brothers at Arles. Young Ryan studied at the Carlow seminary and later came to this country, going to St. Louis where he was appointed a professor in Carondelet seminary. On September 8, 1853, he was ordained a priest by Archbishop Kenrick. In 1856 he was made rector of the St. Louis cathedral and four years later was placed in charge of the church of the Annunciation. In 1872, Father Ryan was consecrated coadjutor bishop of St. Louis, with the right of succession and in 1884 he was appointed archbishop of Philadelphia.

Life in Philadelphia.

During his twenty-seven years residence in Philadelphia, he was an important figure in the life of the city, participating in many of the public functions held in that time. The university of Pennsylvania gave him the degree of L. L. D., an honor which he had previously received from the university of Missouri.

Two great works of the archbishop were, what he did for the Indians and his establishment of the protectors for homeless boys. The labors of the archbishop in behalf of the Indians was recognized by President Roosevelt, when he appointed him one of the board of indian commissioners.

Under the administration of Archbishop Ryan the Catholic church in this diocese has more than kept pace with the growth of the city and country. The arch diocese embraces Philadelphia and nine adjoining counties.

Born in Ireland.

Archbishop Ryan's memories reverted to the great days when Daniel O'Connell was the uncrowned king of Ireland. Born in the ancient ecclesiastical city of Thurles, in County Tipperary, Patrick John Ryan was sent to school in Dublin. The school was on the South Circular road, on the borders of the pretty suburb of Rathmines. O'Connell had won his great victory for Catholic emancipation in 1829, had entered the Parliament at Westminster, and had gradually developed the agitation for the repeal of the union with England. "Monster meetings" were held throughout the land, at Tara Hill a quarter of a million people took part. The Dublin Castle authorities were alarmed, and proscribed the meeting at Clontarf. In October, 1847, O'Connell was subsequently arrested, confined and confined in Richmond Bridewell close to the future archbishop's school. Dr. Ryan told the story of his meeting the great liberator with infinite interest and humor. His schoolfellows decided to present an address of sympathy to the imprisoned patriot, and Patrick Ryan was deputed to present it. This he did, to admiration. When O'Connell's appeal was decided in his favor by the House of Lords, and he was liberated a few months later, the schoolboys on the South Circular road decided once more to present him with an address, this time of congratulation. A great mass meeting was to be held at the Rotunda, and hundreds of addresses were to be presented. The schoolboys sought in vain for a ticket for their delegate, when Patrick Ryan asked the great liberator through the open door of the library. At the suggestion of a bystander he made his way in and confronted the uncrowned king of Ireland. O'Connell recognized him, greeting him heartily thus: "Are not you the red-headed boy who presented an address to me when I was in prison?" The future archbishop admitted his identity and O'Connell got him the coveted ticket.

Irish Nationalist.

Dr. Ryan ever since was an ardent advocate of Irish nationalism, and bore testimony to the marvelous growth of the national spirit in Ireland in the last few years. His grace took part in one of the Gaelic league celebrations at Lisdoonvarna, when he was in Ireland a year ago.

Dr. Ryan was firmly convinced that the Gaelic revival has come to stay. He directly contradicted the view, sometimes rather lightly advanced, that it is only a fancy, a passing fad. A fact, said Dr. Ryan, may bring about the acceptance of some new thing, some talking novelty; but the Gaelic revival is no new thing, it is rather the return to a very old thing, to the oldest thing in Ireland's national life. It is therefore the expression of deep-seated inherent qualities, and, as such, necessary permanent.

Dr. Ryan graduated from Carlow college in his twenty-second year, was ordained subdeacon, and came to America. He was assigned to St. Louis, and became professor of English literature and eloquence at the Carondelet Theological Seminary, and one of the cathedral preachers. He was ordained deacon there, and, one year after his arrival in this country, was ordained priest. In 1863 Archbishop Ryan celebrated the golden jubilee of his priesthood, and on that occasion the great place he fills in the Catholic church in America was made conspicuously manifest.

In St. Louis Cathedral.

After his ordination, Dr. Ryan was attached as assistant to the cathedral at St. Louis, becoming rector in 1856. During the civil war, Dr. Ryan, then rector of Annunciation church, acted also as chaplain of the Great street military hospital and prison. Shortly after the war he went to Rome, and delivered the Lenten lectures in English, on the invitation of Pope Pius IX. This was in 1868. Four years later, a titular bishopric was conferred on him, that of Tricomina in Palestine, and he was, at the same time, appointed coadjutor bishop of St. Louis with the right of succession. In 1882, Dr. Ryan was promoted to be archbishop of Salamina in paribus in fidem; and in June, 1884, was transferred to the See of Philadelphia. Since that time Dr. Ryan has taken a part in the life of the city, which has won general esteem and admiration, his voice carrying great weight on all questions, civil and religious alike. He treated all questions with practical wisdom and large-hearted tolerance, touching them always with genuine and kindly humor.

Strategy Board is to Direct Movement of the Rebels of Mexico

Juarez, Where a Battle Has Been Promised, Recovers Accustomed Poise—Business Resumed.

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 11.—(Special Telegram.)—The strategy board of the insurgent army has been made up, it will direct the general movement of the army and the present officers will continue to hold their present commands. The board of strategy consists of Colonel Jose De La Tuz Soto, who commanded the victorious insurrection at Ojinaga, Eduardo Hays, a graduate of Notre Dame university; Giuseppe Garibaldi, grandson of the great Italian liberator; Captain Alvarez Morales, a graduate of the Mexican National Military school; and Captain Viegla, a former Mexican army officer.

A heavy fog hung over Juarez and its vicinity and afforded excellent opportunity for attack, but none developed. General Navarro and reinforcements are now expected in Juarez tomorrow, according to official statements in that city.

Many Mexicans are feeling ahead of the advancing Navarro army, declaring that Navarro is attempting to impress them. With no signs of rebels within many miles of Juarez, that town which has gone through all the throes preparatory to a sacking during the last week, is rapidly recovering its accustomed poise and business as usual.

The insurrection, under General Orozco and Castillo, has withdrawn to Rancho Flores in order to find pasture for their horses, and save for the federal soldiers, in the city, and the band had battlements on the roofs of buildings, it would never be suspected that there was any war around here.

RUPTURE IS CURABLE

Says Seelye, Who Fitted the Car of Russia—Now at the Henshaw.

"Rupture is not a tear or breach in the abdominal wall as commonly supposed, but is the stretching or dilating of a natural opening," said F. H. Seelye of Chicago, who is now at the Henshaw hotel and will remain in Omaha several days.

The Spermatic Shield Trust, as now used and approved by the United States government, will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete relief, but closes the opening in ten days on the average case, producing results without surgery or harmful injections. Mr. Seelye has documentary references from government, Washington, D. C., for inspection. All charity cases without charge or any one interested will be shown the treatment if desired.
