

THE OMAHA DAILY BEE

FOUNDED BY EDWARD ROSEWATER.
VICTOR ROSEWATER, EDITOR.
Entered at Omaha postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
Sunday Bee, one year, $2.00
Daily Bee (without Sunday), one year, $1.20
Daily Bee (including Sunday), one year, $1.50

DELIVERED BY CARRIER.
Evening Bee (without Sunday), per week, 10c
Evening Bee (with Sunday), per week, 15c

Advertising rates and other information available upon request from the office.

Subscription rates and terms of sale for the paper.

Information regarding advertising rates and contact details for the office.

Details regarding the paper's circulation and distribution network.

Information about the paper's ownership and management structure.

Details about the paper's printing process and quality control.

Information about the paper's historical background and its role in the community.

Details about the paper's commitment to journalism and public service.

Information about the paper's contact information and subscription services.

Details about the paper's advertising and marketing strategies.

Information about the paper's financial stability and business operations.

Details about the paper's commitment to ethical journalism and fair reporting.

Information about the paper's role in promoting local and national news.

Details about the paper's dedication to providing accurate and timely information.

Information about the paper's commitment to transparency and accountability.

Details about the paper's history of innovation and leadership in journalism.

Information about the paper's commitment to serving the community and its readers.

Details about the paper's dedication to providing a platform for diverse voices.

Information about the paper's commitment to promoting social and environmental issues.

Details about the paper's role in fostering a sense of community and shared values.

Information about the paper's commitment to providing a platform for local talent and voices.

Details about the paper's dedication to providing a platform for diverse perspectives.

Information about the paper's commitment to providing a platform for local news and events.

Details about the paper's dedication to providing a platform for diverse voices and perspectives.

Dolliver and the Presidency.

How near the late Senator J. P. Dolliver came to being president of the United States was well recalled in the memorial speech upon the Iowa statesman delivered by his successor, Senator Lafayette Young.

Senator Dolliver had been suggested, we believe, first by The Bee and then by other western papers for vice president in 1900, and the suggestion was carried to Philadelphia by his Iowa friends.

Senator Dolliver had been suggested, we believe, first by The Bee and then by other western papers for vice president in 1900.

And the rest is history, one of the most interesting and thrilling chapters ever written of this country.

The rumor from the front that Jack London had surrendered seems to be a fake pure and simple.

The good roads movement is all right, but it should go hand in hand with a clean streets movement.

An exchange asks whether Lillian Russell or Nat Goodwin won the stakes. It was declared a draw.

The question remains whether an extra session of congress will be included in the list of March storms.

Tom Watson fears assassins? What Tom really fears is being excluded from the limelight of front page publicity.

Out of sympathetic consideration, Captain Peary has not had Congressman Macon arrested for assault and battery.

With all these royal connections to look out for, Mr. Gould would have had no time left for his Missouri Pacific, anyway.

Only a few more days for the introduction of new bills at Lincoln. No signs of failure of the bill crop on the home stretch.

One can easily imagine Senator Tillman had to use his coat of arms when Senator Lorimer told of the time he went to the rescue of Hinky Dink.

That man named Michael Angelo McGinnis, serving a ten-year term in the Missouri penitentiary, should be able to paint a plausible picture of his innocence.

The Iowa legislature has declined to follow Nebraska with a deposit guaranty law. Iowa evidently wants to let someone else do the experimenting and foot the bills.

Trade and traffic steadily congesting New York harbor, coupled with the increasing size of ocean liners, are pushing to realization the old dream of a short-cut harbor on the ocean side of Long Island.

Around New York

Stipples in the Current of Life as Seen in the Great American Metropolis from Day to Day.

Trade and traffic steadily congesting New York harbor, coupled with the increasing size of ocean liners, are pushing to realization the old dream of a short-cut harbor on the ocean side of Long Island.

It transpires that the charges filed by Police Commissioner Karbach, out of which the ouster proceedings against Chief of Police Donahue have grown, were really directed against his colleagues on the board and that the chief is merely the goat for other people's personal grievances.

The Real Estate exchange has just waked up to the fact that the pending charter amendments would raise the limit for taxation in Omaha $400,000, making possible an increase of nearly 40 per cent in the city tax rate.

John P. St. John, who rode into the governorship of Kansas on the crest of the prohibition wave, which he was largely instrumental in creating, comes out of retirement after about twenty years at the age of 78 years to preach woman's suffrage in the Sunflower state.

A bill has been introduced at Lincoln, "by request," requiring the fumigation of houses by owners in the interval between one reenter moving out and another moving in.

Judging from the crowds at the Auto show, and the interest manifested in the exhibits, there is no reason to apprehend any lull in the business of the state officer who issues numbers for the registration of new cars in Nebraska.

Postmaster General Hitchcock could prevent several magazine publishers from using the mails at all if he put into print exactly what they are thinking.

The Persian parliament has voted to engage five American financial advisers. How can any American with first-class financial ability be induced to live in Persia with the opportunities which await him in his native land?

Between the factions Champ Clark, who is scarcely betraying speakerly qualifications, and the mischievous Representative Bennett, who does not return to congress, timid souls in the House of Commons are given great concern as to annexation designs on Canada by the United States.

Magazines would not be driven out of business if postal rates were increased. They could still sell through the news-dealers in every town. The most successful magazine, a weekly, sells for 5 cents, and has reached an enormous circulation in that way.

Adams county, Pennsylvania, claims the oldest active miller in the state. He is Charles Prosser of Latimer, and he was 96 years old last week. He owns a saw and grist mill along Latimer creek and he has been operating the mill unaided for more than sixty years.

Major General Daniel B. Stielow was born more than eighty-five years ago. He learned the printer's trade, studied law, was a member of congress longer than any other person now living, lost a leg at Gettysburg, served as minister to Spain, and is still in sufficiently good health to make a trip to Albany from his New York home and address the assembly.

At the age of 92 years and undoubtedly the oldest white woman in the world, Mrs. Laura Kilcrease is dying at the home of her daughter, a centenarian, a few miles west of Longview, Tex. Mrs. Kilcrease was born in North Carolina when the Revolutionary war broke out, and three years later she saw George Washington. She is the only living person who has seen General Washington.

A Pennsylvania representative has introduced a bill in congress providing $15,000 for the removal of the body of General Winfield Scott Hancock from a neglected tomb in Nantuxton to Arlington cemetery in Washington. There has been local objection to this in the past, but none is likely to be manifested now.

Judging by a report to congress, the people are not so far off in lining up "the lumber trust," if there is such a thing, as that character of organization which would, without compulsion, cut down and market the weeping willow in a cemetery.

The Bee's Letter Box

Contributions on Timely Subjects Not Exceeding Two Hundred Words Are Invited from Our Readers.

Des Moines Register and Leader: Governor Carroll is to be congratulated on one thing in connection with his veto of the senatorial election bill—he does not assert his right as governor to review the discretion of the legislature.

Interrogated the housewife as she handed each of the wanderers a wedge of pie: "Yes, mum," responded the dusty spokesman, with a low bow, "we every settler we come to."

Mr. Knies—Did you ask your wife to wear one of those hobble skirts? Mr. Styles—Oh, no. It looks as if she had done it with her own will and a care—Yonkers Statesman.

And you are really settled here? Interrogated the housewife as she handed each of the wanderers a wedge of pie: "Yes, mum," responded the dusty spokesman, with a low bow, "we every settler we come to."

It was a glorious chance we lost right after our war of the rebellion, when we had a million of the best soldiers in the world and a great navy and a splendid cause, to take British North America from England on account of its destroying our commercial navy with the Alabama and other English ships.

An Eleventh Commandment. OMAHA, Feb. 23.—To the Editor of The Bee: You reprint an item from the Chicago Record-Herald about the reason the ecclesiastics of England wanting to revise the tenth commandment, being that they think a man no longer has the right to list his wife with his ox and his ass as a chattel.

There was $100 in the left trousers pocket," panted a white faced man as he all but fell into the little tailor's dressing and cleaning shop.

After a minute the new arrival got his breath, but lost his temper. "I say there was $100 in the left trousers pocket," he repeated, shaking his fist.

"Well, did I see't dere van't?" the little tailor asked. "Dere is de pants. Mobey de de de yel," pointing to a pair of trousers on a nail.

Mrs. Catherine Mueher of No. 5 Broomstreet, while trying to bite her hair through a piece of steak of high resistive power, dislocated her jaw. Her husband, who was having dinner with her, wondering at the long break in the conversation, looked up and found his wife looking at him in an agonized way, her mouth wide open.

I changed my mind about the courtesy of New York men and conductors after I began carrying a child around with me, observed the young mother, quoted by the Sun. "As a business woman of course I was in the cars every day before I got married, and many a weary time did I stand from Rector street to Harlem when nobody cared. But now? Oh, my! When I would appear in the doorway with the baby in my arms three or four men or even women would offer me a seat, and now that the little fellow can walk it's just the same. The conductors always stops for me to lift the boy on or off. Talk about the independence of the unattached female! A woman with a child has a lot easier time getting around this town."

Des Moines Capital: Governor Carroll has not only saved the state from the jeopardy and the expense of floundering under a law clearly unconstitutional, but he has saved the republican party from a calamity as well.

St. Louis City Journal: There is a singular lack of familiarity with the constitution on the part of one who pretends such generation for it. In his statement that presidential electors have a constitutional right to "vote for the candidate of their party," it is rather presumptuous for a man so ignorant as to make that statement to lecture legislators for their lack of respect for the constitution.

St. Louis City Journal: The reason that Governor Carroll assigns for vetoing the Oregon primary bill is that it evades the federal constitution by virtually taking the election of United States senators away from the legislature. The Oregon plan does this, but so does our present method of electing presidents, and the responsibility away from the electoral college, where the constitution lodges it. And so it goes.

St. Louis City Journal: The reason that Governor Carroll assigns for vetoing the Oregon primary bill is that it evades the federal constitution by virtually taking the election of United States senators away from the legislature. The Oregon plan does this, but so does our present method of electing presidents, and the responsibility away from the electoral college, where the constitution lodges it. And so it goes.

does our regular primary method of nominating senators involve the same principle of constitutional evasion—in only slightly less direct degree. So far as the constitution is concerned, anybody who can put up with the ordinary senatorial primary ought to be able to stand for the Oregon primary plan. There is certain to be search for a political motive in addition to the one assigned by the governor.

Des Moines Register and Leader: Governor Carroll is to be congratulated on one thing in connection with his veto of the senatorial election bill—he does not assert his right as governor to review the discretion of the legislature. He raises the one question that may properly concern the governor—the constitutionality of the proposed act. Having said this much however, there is nothing further to be said for his veto message.

And you are really settled here? Interrogated the housewife as she handed each of the wanderers a wedge of pie: "Yes, mum," responded the dusty spokesman, with a low bow, "we every settler we come to."

Mr. Knies—Did you ask your wife to wear one of those hobble skirts? Mr. Styles—Oh, no. It looks as if she had done it with her own will and a care—Yonkers Statesman.

And you are really settled here? Interrogated the housewife as she handed each of the wanderers a wedge of pie: "Yes, mum," responded the dusty spokesman, with a low bow, "we every settler we come to."

It was a glorious chance we lost right after our war of the rebellion, when we had a million of the best soldiers in the world and a great navy and a splendid cause, to take British North America from England on account of its destroying our commercial navy with the Alabama and other English ships.

An Eleventh Commandment. OMAHA, Feb. 23.—To the Editor of The Bee: You reprint an item from the Chicago Record-Herald about the reason the ecclesiastics of England wanting to revise the tenth commandment, being that they think a man no longer has the right to list his wife with his ox and his ass as a chattel.

There was $100 in the left trousers pocket," panted a white faced man as he all but fell into the little tailor's dressing and cleaning shop.

After a minute the new arrival got his breath, but lost his temper. "I say there was $100 in the left trousers pocket," he repeated, shaking his fist.

"Well, did I see't dere van't?" the little tailor asked. "Dere is de pants. Mobey de de de yel," pointing to a pair of trousers on a nail.

Mrs. Catherine Mueher of No. 5 Broomstreet, while trying to bite her hair through a piece of steak of high resistive power, dislocated her jaw. Her husband, who was having dinner with her, wondering at the long break in the conversation, looked up and found his wife looking at him in an agonized way, her mouth wide open.

I changed my mind about the courtesy of New York men and conductors after I began carrying a child around with me, observed the young mother, quoted by the Sun. "As a business woman of course I was in the cars every day before I got married, and many a weary time did I stand from Rector street to Harlem when nobody cared. But now? Oh, my! When I would appear in the doorway with the baby in my arms three or four men or even women would offer me a seat, and now that the little fellow can walk it's just the same. The conductors always stops for me to lift the boy on or off. Talk about the independence of the unattached female! A woman with a child has a lot easier time getting around this town."

Des Moines Capital: Governor Carroll has not only saved the state from the jeopardy and the expense of floundering under a law clearly unconstitutional, but he has saved the republican party from a calamity as well.

St. Louis City Journal: There is a singular lack of familiarity with the constitution on the part of one who pretends such generation for it. In his statement that presidential electors have a constitutional right to "vote for the candidate of their party," it is rather presumptuous for a man so ignorant as to make that statement to lecture legislators for their lack of respect for the constitution.

St. Louis City Journal: The reason that Governor Carroll assigns for vetoing the Oregon primary bill is that it evades the federal constitution by virtually taking the election of United States senators away from the legislature. The Oregon plan does this, but so does our present method of electing presidents, and the responsibility away from the electoral college, where the constitution lodges it. And so it goes.

St. Louis City Journal: The reason that Governor Carroll assigns for vetoing the Oregon primary bill is that it evades the federal constitution by virtually taking the election of United States senators away from the legislature. The Oregon plan does this, but so does our present method of electing presidents, and the responsibility away from the electoral college, where the constitution lodges it. And so it goes.

Small Deposits WE ENCOURAGE them because many large accounts began in a small way. The small depositor of today becomes the large one of the future. More people would be bank depositors if they realized how it would help in building their credit and their success. First National Bank of Omaha Thirtieth and Farnam Streets

Gold Dust Makes Dazzling White Dishes If you could see your dishes and household utensils through a microscope you would realize that mere soap and water is insufficient to do more than wash off the surface. GOLD DUST not only cuts dirt and grease with scarcely any rubbing, but is an antiseptic that cuts deep after every hidden impurity and germ. GOLD DUST sterilizes your kitchen things, and makes them wholesome and sanitary. GOLD DUST is the greatest labor-saver known.