C. S. Stebbins Defeats Old Rival at Spelling Bee.

HONORS REST ABOUT EASY plans for the handling of the Land show PLAN TO REACH FORT DODGE Two Aged Men Who Competed in 1875 Settle Conclusions in Contest Held at Y. M. C. A. Assembly Room.

One spring night in 1875 the best spellers of Omaha met at the Presbyterian church. At last only C. S. Stebbins and J. B. Bruner remained on the floor. Finally much excitement Mr. Bruner was acclaimed the champion speller of the city. Some time later in the same year the two spelling glants met again, but this time Mr. Stebbins was victorious. Thus the tle stood until Friday night when Mr. Stebbins defeated his old rival.

An old fashioned spelling bee was held in the assembly room of the Young Men's Christian association. David Cole, president of the Commercial club, and C. C. Belden chose sides. As it happened Mr. Stebbins and Prof. Bruner were both chosen by Mr. Cole and pioneers who recalled the spelling battles of early times feared that opportunity would not be given to prove who was the better man. Sixtyfive men, women girls and boys lined the walls of the great room, when E. A. Berson began propounding the words Hard words came and many fell by the wayside, but still the two gray haired veterans, both 72 years old, remained. More fell as longer and more involved words were fired at the spellers, but the two old men never faltered. With unerring sureness they clearly enunciated the letters and Mr. Benson was compelled to say "right" each time.

Cole's Side Wins. At length only one young man of the opposing side remained. A peculiar word came and he, too, retired, giving victory to Mr. Cole's side. The crowd was for Mr. Benson continued to fire words. Both feet and Mr. Bruner was fatigued. He also asked that honors be divided. It was largely because of his weariness that when the word, reminiscence, came the gray haired man faltered. He pronounced the word several times and started to spell healtatingly. His caution was his undoing, for he called an "e" where there thirty-five years' standing was settled. However the bouquet was divided and Prof. Bruner promised another battle
