ERDMAN DEFENCE NEARS END

Expected that Talmer Will Rest His Case This Afternoon—Witnesses on Minor Points.

John O. Talmer, attorney for the defense in the trial of Frank Erdman, who is charged with attempting murder by placing a dynamite bomb on the porch of Tom Dennison's home last May, will probably rest his case this afternoon.

At the noon adjournment all but one or two of the long list of witnesses called by the defense had been examined. Tuesday morning a number of witnesses were called on minor points, but no testimony very important or different from that brought out in the first trial was given.

Whether or not the defense will waive arguments as in the first trial is a matter that is the cause of some little speculation.
