Brandeis Artistic Millinery

Brandeis assemblage of new millinery arrivals for spring is ready. Every new shape and idea that has found favor in Paris and New York is represented and there are scores of hats that can be seen nowhere else in the west.

The new "Coronation" hats, taking their name from England's great event to come, are favorites. The Coronation colors, such as purple, king's blue, Empire green and deep coral are much in vogue.

It is decreed that small hats must be snug and high, while large hats must be low and rolled off the face—a complete reversal of the mushroom idea.

The Empire Bonnet, the helmet hat and the Louis XI Turban are extreme novelties.

We present for Monday scores of ultra fashionable hats that are copies of expensive New York and Paris creations. They are exquisite, at $25.00.

We Present Hundreds of Stunning Millinery Models at $10

CLOSE OF DONAHUE OUSTER

Attorneys Review Evidence Brought Out in Case.

REFEREE WILL ASK INSTRUCTIONS

Failure of State to Corroborate the Charges Made for Split by Karbach Held Up by Mr. Connell.

The ouster suit case against Chief of Police Donahue came to its close about 5 o'clock Friday. An order was made by Referee Evans allowing Mr. Mullen ten days after receiving the evidence from the official reporter, to prepare a written brief, and showing Mr. Connell, if he desired it, ten days to file his reply brief. In view of the contention of Attorney Connell that all propositions of law as well as facts were for the referee to determine Judge Evans said he would personally interview the members of the supreme court and ascertain definitely just what he was expected to do.

The closing scene of the case was supervised by a clash between Mr. Connell and Mr. Mullen. Mr. Mullen had criticized Chief of Police Donahue for permitting disorderly houses to exist in Omaha, and for not absolutely preventing illegal sales of liquor and denounced opposing counsel for adopting methods and tactics which he pursued throughout the trial in the cross-examination of witnesses and making objections to testimony. In his argument Attorney Connell devoted most of his time to citing authorities in support of his contention that any failure or neglect of the chief of police to enforce any law was not willful and that before he could be removed it must appear not only that he neglected his duties, but that such neglect was a willful neglect. Mr. Connell also contended that no duty was imposed upon the chief to do the particular acts described in the complaint, and that such duties were expressly enjoined on other officers, namely, the county attorney, city prosecutor and the mayor. He also contended that the Board of Fire and Police commissioners have no authority or jurisdiction over the enforcement of criminal laws, and that therefore its resolution instructing the chief to do certain things was without authority and void.

Prosecution a Judicial Farce.

The concluding portion of Mr. Connell's argument relating to the charge of neglect of duty and scoring Mr. Mullen for indulging in "odious comparisons" is as follows:

"Congratulations are in order that we have reached the point of ringing down the curtain on one of the biggest judicial farces ever enacted in Nebraska. It has proved rather an expensive farce for the state, but notwithstanding, it is a farce all the same. It may have served the purpose of advertising Mr. Mullen, but it has not established the truth of any of the charges made in the complaint.

"The time occupied by Mr. Mullen was chiefly taken up in his trade against the chief of police for permitting prostitution to exist in Omaha.

"It is all very well to talk along that line, but I would like to have him tell this court, in his role of moral reformer, what he would do if he were chief of police in the way of suppressing houses of prostitution and eliminating them from the city. It is all very well to assert, as he has, that the chief has not been as vigilant as he ought to have been. If Mullen was chief what would he do? The great, powerful Mullen. Would he take the poor unfortunate woman, more sinned against than sinning, and drag her down to the Missouri river and throw her down into that muddy, turbulent stream? That seems to be his idea of the proper thing to do. The only defense of women he makes is in behalf of his star witness, Mrs. McCullough, who he says was abused by me.

Witnesses for State.

"It is claimed by Mullen that when this woman was on the stand I asked questions tending to degrade her and impeach her character and thereby terrify the good women of Omaha from coming into court and giving testimony against Chief Donahue. God forbid that any decent woman in Omaha would come from her home into this court to give testimony of the character given by that Mrs. McCullough—a woman who admitted that she was the keeper of a resort for crooks and lawbreakers of the most vicious and dangerous character. The empty beer bottles found without number in her place she tried to account for by the statement that they were lodged in clandestinely by these notorious crooks who were arrested in her house and that they had obtained them at some other place. This arrest was the cause of her animus. If I am not justified in raising by cross questions and in argument, a woman of that character, I would like to know what is expected of me in this case.

"And how with reference to Rev. Clyde? Mr. Mullen says I did not allow even the preachers to escape. I did not abuse Rev. Clyde. I did not even ask him if he had ever been arrested. I asked him merely what business he had formerly been engaged in and where he had formerly lived, and let it go at that. And what was the testimony of Rev. Clyde? It relates to a sleuthing tour of that reverend gentleman through the red light district of Omaha, as late as December, 1909, to obtain evidence to be used against Chief Donahue. Now, what has that to do with the charges in this complaint filed as early as August 6, 1907?

Companions of Erdman.

"Take another witness for the state. Take this man Nelson, this running mate of Dynamiter Erdman, who went on a sleuthing tour hand in hand with Erdman to get evidence to remove Chief Donahue. Birds of a feather flock together. It is this class of witnesses that Mr. Mullen in his efforts to remove the chief has brought here. Dynamiter Erdman, as well as Rev. Clyde, was sent out to get evidence for the state. Dynamiter Erdman, who, thank God, by the verdict of a jury last returned will soon be put beyond the perpetration of another crime such as he endeavored to commit; who sought not only to murder the man who he regarded as his enemy, but to kill innocent children and to blow up an entire neighborhood with the most dangerous explosive known to science.

"Go through this list of witnesses and you will find that those who have testified regarding these sleuthing tours are of a kind that might well be the associates of Dynamiter Erdman.

"Undoubtedly this dynamiter and his pals would be glad to have Chief of Police Donahue removed. But, how about the good people of Omaha? Where, oh, where are the business men of Omaha? Where is the great uprising that was to come to Mullen's relief? Where is the great audience that was to listen to his star-gazing speech scheduled to be made at the close of this case?

"How with regard to some of the other witnesses? Why, take this man Karbach! I can hardly speak his name without an accent of utter contempt! It is a dirty bird that befores its own nest! This man was a member of the Board of Fire and Police commissioners. He went into executive sessions of that board and was obligated according to every principle of loyalty and fairness to hold inviolate the secrets of these executive sessions. What did he do? He went out of those meetings and became the chummy to convey information he received in these executive sessions to the governor. How did this prosecution originate, your honor? Who is the complaining witness? Why, it is this man Karbach! This man who was so lost to decency that he induced his own son, a mere boy, to go out with one of these miserable sleuths and visit saloons and vile resorts to get evidence against Chief Donahue. That is the character of the man. It is with him that this prosecution originated. It was Karbach who filed the complaint with the governor. Who of the decent business men ever went before Governor Shallenberger to urge the removal of Chief Donahue for neglect of duty? Not one!

"I would have been very glad with the ringing down of the curtain to have had this case close without any unkind references of counsel, one to the other, but Mr. Mullen in his concluding argument, as well as throughout the trial, has indulged in personalities and charges unfair and untrue. I will not further notice them except to make a slight comparison. In this battle of the past three months the great state of Nebraska has had two representatives, Assistant Attorney General Ayers and ex-Oil Inspector Mullen—the one a lawyer, the other a pettifogger; the one a gentleman, the other a bull-dog; the one a man of fairness, ability and moderation; the other inexperienced, petulant and abusive; the one, who, when he arose to address the court—perhaps unconsciously so far as your honor is concerned—brought to your face a radiant light of pleasure and expectancy; the other, when he rose clothed your face with an expression of disgust and distrust. It is this man who was permitted by your honor to examine certain records and who secretly and stealthily took extracts from them—he had no right to take—who makes these assaults upon the chief and myself.

"Now, when the battle is finally over, and the smoke has all cleared away, we will remember in future years the one with pleasure and delight, and the other we will try to forgive and forget."
