DISCOURSES ON IRISH THEMES

The People of South Omaha Were Hopes of Erin Are for Future—Funeral of Harry A. Tracy to Be Held Today.

Exercised Friday in South Omaha made reference to the shamrock and of St. Patrick had come to earth with it would have preferred for him to go—wonderment at the people who have now spoken the narration of the latest lead. "We see you have a friend," said a true-born Irishman whom he saw a gaily dressed percentage on the street, and friend he was, but all the same he was paying homage to Ireland's particular saint.

If one and eight wanted to find the next object of immediate connection with the "old country" or with traits of Irish blood in another he would have had to look to the high school auditorium. There it was that the class gathered and with songs and oratory kept green the memory of the day.

The speaker of the evening was T. J. Doyle of Lincoln, who sketched the history of Ireland and indicated the hopes of the future, which he said looked bright with the conditions at present prevailing in England.

The entertainment was given by Division No. 2 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and Attorney Winters in the chair. Rev. Father Ahern also spoke and the program was continued by the Hibernian band.

Mrs. Mae O'Brien, accompanist of Mrs. W. J. McCormick, received a bouquet of roses from Erin. "Mae," remembers Mr. McCormick, "had written to me, 'God save Ireland,' and she did."

Local clubs selected Thomas German, Mr. Rock, director.

SHAMROCK IS HER DEFENSE

aged woman in Police Court for Detaining Guests Away on Patriotic Plan.

Just a tattered old shamrock was the only defense offered in police court to Mrs. Bright Riley, an aged woman arrested for drunkenness.

"It was 12 o'clock," she said, seeking safety at Judge Crawford's office.
