Such a man is Mr. Good of Iowa. Concealed under the undistinguished name of Beer-W. C. Beer-Mr. Good discovered the nefarious work of the nost formidable enemy of the nation, in the shape of a contribution to the democratic national congressional committe which was of "double the amount of that made by any other democrat in the United States. Having stated the portentous fact of Mr. Beer's great contribution, Mr. Good wound up in this dramatic fashion. "That contribution was made the day be fore election, and at that time W. C. Beer was the confidential man of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co." The "applause on the republican side" with which this revelation was greeted will ever remain, in the pages of the Congressional Record, a proof to the future historian of the soundness of the great heart of America in the year 1911. He may afterwards, indeed, be a little puzzled when he finds that the amount of the contribution was only $1,000. But he will still be bound to feel that the traditions of the republic were in fine shape, though he may conclude that the

Somebody has to take a lot of pains to produce anything as fine as

But we do that part. We take the trouble and care to grow the finest tomatoes, select the choicest materials of every kind, and prepare and blend them into this perfect soup.

Your part is to insist on having it when you ask for it.

Do you take pains with that?
