SHRIVER INVESTIGATES LAW

Pirat Applicant to Make Request for Institution for Consumptives-North Platte Wants Agricultural School.

LINCOLN, May 1 (Special) - County As nessor Shriver of Douglas county called at the capital today to inquire into the Smith bill relating to the taxation of mortgages, s measure which was passed and approved during th erecent session of th elegislature. Mr. Shriver declared that a wrong impression seemed to have gone out in Douglas county in regard to the bill and he desired to have an opportunity to examine the enrolled copy of the act. The Omaha man found out that the bill carried no emergency clause and that it will go into effect on July 7 as regularly provided for in the statutes.

The bill, so the Douglas county assessor says, does not apply to mortgages now in existence, but only to those issued subsequent to July L. There is nothing in the measure to prevent the mortgagor and mortgages from entering into a new mortgage and filing it after July I, when it will be assessed under the new law. The effect of the new law, it is said would be to exempt mortgages from taxation, but that part, it is claimed, will still have to be proved.

FULLERTON—Mr. I. D. Sturteyant passed away Saturday morning after a prolonged illness and his body was taken to Howell for interment. A daughter from that part, it is claimed, will still have to be proved.

We have 1,20 acres here which is well equipped with buildings, implements and cattle horses and hogs. The experimental work has been successfully carried on for a number of years. The regents of the university in planning the buildings, upon this farm, have so located and planned with reference to the building and operation of an agricultural school on it in the future.

Because of the topography of the country, the small part of the state in the southern tier of counties is practically inaccessible from four-fifths of the western part of Nebraska. We feel, therefore, that the school ought not to be located in an inaccessible territory, but ought to be located in the central part of the great west where it will do the most good and can be operated and managed for considerable less money than at Holdrege, which is now in the south central part of the state. which is now in the of the state.

A letter from Benator Hoagland relating to the matter reads as follows:

NORTH FLATTE, Neb.—Hon. Addison Wait. Georetary of State. Lincoln. Neb.—My Dear Mr. Weit: I am enclosing you herewith resolutions which were adopted by the Commercial club and business men of the city of North Platte. Neb. Inviting the board of public lands and buildings to locate the agricultural school for western Nebrasks on its experimental farm at this place. I am also sending copies of theirescolutions we desire to consider as the invitation of North Platte to have the school located at this place. The resolutions recite the advantages of this place for this school. We believe the location of this school on the farm at North Platte will not only be more advantages for the state, but from an economical standpoint.

The management and operation of an agricultural school takes a great deal of many. The appropriations made by the last legislature show that the demands of the legislature appropriated $15,000 for an experimental farm at Culbertson, therefore the southern tier of counties is supplied with the funds to start a small agricultural farm.

The agricultural farm at North Platte is the large farm at which the experiments is supplied with the funds to start a small agricultural farm.
