

Britain and the congress of the United States join to insure the peace of the whole world."

President Taft returned to Washington immediately after the meeting.

Address of Andrew Carnegie. President Taft, as the leader "who has laid the axe to the root of international war," was eulogized by Andrew Carnegie in an address before the Third National Peace congress here today.

"I rise with diffidence," said Mr. Carnegie, "to address the members of our various peace societies here assembled in the presence of the great peace conference, the bearer of the message from on high, who, through his trumpet with one blast, has blown down the stronghold of international war, which lay in the fallacy that nations could not submit to arbitration questions affecting their honor or vital interests without losing their sovereignty, which only meant, however, their fancied dignity, the truth being that the nation which could not submit any and every question was already bereft of sovereignty, which means power to do what it pleases. When a nation agrees to settle all disputes, it possesses its sovereignty."

To President Taft's appeal to the world, in which both his heart and head went forth for one Great Nation to join his country in proving their sovereignty by agreeing to submit all disputes to peaceful settlement, behold there came such response across the sea from the other branch of our English-speaking race as had never been made to any appeal before. The leaders of parties in Britain sunk the partisan in the patriot, touched by the president's appeal. The nation was unanimous; all parties fused into one. To-day the representatives of the two lands are forming the treaty, and here British knows nothing of party, for all parties cooperate, a sublime spectacle, proving that party issues fade in the presence of the high moral issue which leads nations to peace. What of our own statesmen, leaders of party? Are they to emulate the champions of Britain? My prediction is that they will, and that our republic will prove to the world that politics with us are only skin deep, and that our statesmen rise above party when a great moral world-wide victory is within our grasp."

CONGRESS STARTS SEVERAL PROBES

Woolen trust was asked today by Representative Francis of Ohio, a democrat, who offered a resolution providing for a committee of nine to investigate the American Woolen company of Boston.

The resolution directs the committee to report facts and circumstances which require appropriate action by the proper executive officers whether to dissolve or prosecute the corporation if warranted. Over-capitalization is to be inquired into, as are ownership of subsidiary companies through stock combinations, fictitious capitalizing, speculation in stocks, control of the price of labor or lowering of wages by combination, blacklisting of employees or employment of child labor.

BOSTON, May 3.—President William M. Wood of the American Woolen company issued the following statement today:

"The total capital invested in the United States is $400,000,000. Our company having about one-seventh of the capital does about one-seventh of the business and manifestly in no sense of the word is it a trust or monopoly."

JUDGE LEE DISMISSES DRAINAGE ASSESSMENTS

Reduces One Charge and Says Many Robberies Are Committed Under Cover of Statute.

WEBSTER CITY, Ia., May 3.—(Special.)—"There are more robberies committed under the drainage laws of Iowa than under any other law in this state," said Judge C. G. Lee in the district court here this afternoon in reducing the assessment of Rev. Barrett Bibber by more than $600 on 128 acres of land in the Roskopf drainage district. The statement created consternation among attorneys and others in the court room.

The decision was so sweeping and the denunciation of the law so drastic as to certain to mark an epoch among the drainage decisions of Iowa. But not only did Judge Lee characterize the drainage laws as a cloak for so-called robbery, he went further and said the reason so few farmers appealed from drainage assessments was the long established custom of the confirmation of these assessments in the courts of this state.

The ruling of Judge Lee will create widespread interest over Iowa and by many attorneys will be considered little short of revolutionary. An appeal will be taken from his decision to the state supreme court. The original Bibber assessment was a little more than $4,000. Judge Lee cut it to an even $2,000.

KARL BICKEL IS ON TRIAL

Divinity Student Contends that Girl's Illness Stopped Plans for Wedding.

OLATHE, Kan., May 3.—The jury which will hear the case of Karl Bickel, the Kansas City divinity student, charged with the murder of Miss Frances Peters here last September, was secured today and the taking of testimony started. A. E. Moll, proprietor of the hotel where the couple eloped while here, and Dr. R. O. Moore, who attended Miss Peters, were examined.

That the sudden illness of Miss Peters had stopped plans of the couple to be married secretly is the contention of the defense.

The prosecution, however, will attempt to prove that Bickel induced Miss Peters to accompany him to Olathe from Kansas City on the pretense of hearing a sermon, which he was to preach.

House Will Order Investigation of the Steel Combine

Committee on Rules Reports Resolution Inquiring Into Its Relations with Banks and Railroads.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Investigation of the United States Steel corporation, charged with being a trust, was practically assured today, when the committee on rules voted to report favorably the Stanley resolution for a special committee of nine to conduct such an inquiry.

The Stanley resolution originally contained a provision that all violations of anti-trust and other trade statutes should be investigated, but, as agreed to, the steel corporation was made the specific target. It is said, however, that an inquiry into the American Sugar Refining company later may be ordered.

The Stanley resolution specifically directs the committee to ascertain whether the steel corporation has relations or affiliations in violation of the law with the Pennsylvania Steel company, the Cambria Steel company, the Lackawanna Steel company or any other nonaffiliated independent steel company.

The committee is further directed to inquire into the relations of the corporation with the Pennsylvania Railroad company or any other railroad company, coal company, or with national sinking companies, trust companies, insurance companies or other corporate organizations or companies.

Special inquiry is directed as to whether the business relations of the steel corporation with other concerns has resulted in violation by the latter of the anti-trust laws.

The committee is authorized to sit during the recess of congress and hearings may be continued through the summer.

Violent Scenes in Camorra Trial

Nicola, Denounced as Assassin, and Accuser, Exhausts Language Expressing Hate and Contempt.

VITERBO, Italy, May 3.—Nicola Morra, denounced by Gennaro Abbatemaggio as one of the actual assassins of Gennaro Cuccolo and the latter's wife, faced his accuser in court today and their exchanges provoked a scene so violent that President Bianchi was compelled to suspend the sitting.

As was the case yesterday, the informer and the defendant stood before the judge's bench, and appeared to be prevented from springing at each other's throat only by the intervening carabinieri. Morra's associates in the prisoners' pen alternately cheered him and cursed his "traitor."

Again Abbatemaggio described the murders, indicating minutely the part taken by Morra, who frequently interrupted with denials. The informer first rejoined with ridicule, but anger soon possessed him, and the rising tide of invective finally silenced the voice of the states' star witness.

"Your whole story is absurd," shouted Morra. "The truth is that you are a miserable epileptic, now in an abnormal condition. I can prove my own assertions of innocence by witnesses who will be called at an opportune moment. I do not mention them now, because if their identity were known to the carabinieri the latter would intimidate them."

Then followed a verbal duel between the informer and the accused, in which they exhausted their knowledge of the Italian language in expressing their hate and contempt for each other. As the combat raged the other prisoners behaved like mad men.

Antonio Cerrato, another of the alleged actual murderers, pried his head through the steel bars of the cage attempting to reach Abbatemaggio, who turned and spat in his face.

The priest, Ciro Vitoli, looking as though he was on the point of apoplexy, screamed at the informer:

"Thief, thief, thief." The prisoners within the cage, cursed, gesticulated and beat their mangled hands against the steel bars. Unable to proceed, the court declared a recess.

DISMEMBERED BODY IS FOUND

John Poole of Fowler, Ind., Charged with Killing Farm Hand.

SAYS THAT IT WAS ACCIDENTAL

Two Other Men Disappeared from the Farm Several Years Ago and Sensation It Hinted At—Once in Indiana Hospital.

FOWLER, Ind., May 3.—John Poole, wealthy, who has been charged with the murder of his farm hand, Joseph Kemper, whose body was found on the Poole farm yesterday, today admitted killing Kemper, but contended it was accidental.

Poole, according to the sheriff, said he killed Kemper while out rabbit hunting on December 12, 1908. He said that they were climbing over a fence when the shotgun was accidentally discharged, the shot taking effect in the back of Kemper's head and killing him instantly.

The farmer said he then cut the body into pieces and buried it with the refuse from the killing of hogs.

When asked why he had not told of the accident Poole is said to have answered that he feared public opinion was against him and that he would not be believed, as he had shot a man several years ago.

Poole was brought here and placed in jail today. Two other farm hands who were employed by Poole have been missing a number of years, and today a systematic search of the Poole farm near here was begun, and in the excitement here there are wild rumors of a second Belle Gunness farm.

The two men whose absence has never been accounted for are Charles Clark and Charles Mack.

Elmer Poole, 13-year-old son of the accused man, started the investigation of Kemper's disappearance several weeks ago and found the body yesterday. One arm and both legs had been severed as with an axe and the skull was broken. A hole in the forehead indicated that the man had been shot with a shotgun at close range.

The elder Poole was released from an insane asylum several years ago after he had been found not guilty, on the plea of insanity, of having shot a neighbor, according to the county officials.

Taking Testimony Begins in Dietz Case

Defendant Makes Brief Address, in Which He Charges State with Offering False Testimony.

HAYWARD, Wis., May 3.—Taking of testimony began today in the Dietz murder trial. The prosecution considered nothing but the killing of Deputy Sheriff Oscar Harp.

In a brief opening address, John Dietz charged the state with having offered false testimony and the so-called "lumber trust" with having its seal on Sawyer county. Sheriff Madden, a witness, under cross-examination by all three defendants, was taken to task for not trying to serve his warrants before.

District Attorney J. Williams, opening his argument today, in the case of John Dietz, wife and son, Leslie, for the murder of Oscar Harp, said the state had decided to limit its case to the Harp killing and would not go into earlier troubles in which Dietz had been involved.

Mr. Williams said the state intended to prove that no deputy sheriff could have fired the bullet that killed Oscar Harp and that Harp's body had been found after three shots had been heard from the roof of the Dietz barn.
