HOT CONTEST OVER AUTHORITY

County Commissioners and County Surveyor Still Squabbling.

ALL ROAD WORK MUST WAIT

McBride Says He Will Do Nothing Until the Members of the County Board Recognize His Authority.

Until the Board of County Commissioners and George McBride, county surveyor, who becomes highway commissioner by a law passed by the last legislature, can end their squabble as to the respective authorities of each all work on the county roads is very likely to go a begging.

McBride refuses to order Godfrey Westphalen, a road foreman appointed by the commissioners Friday, to go to work, and until McBride issues the order Westphalen cannot do so. The commissioners on the other hand refuse to pass a resolution, which McBride requests, recognizing his right to employ the men and have general charge of their appointment.

McBride contends that if he is to be responsible for the bills and for the work that he ought to have the appointment of the men whose bills he has to endorse. He is making a test case out of Westphalen and says that he has nothing against him personally.

"However," says McBride, "there will not be a man to go to work on the roads until I get recognition."

Oscar J. Pickard, chairman of the committee on roads and bridges, is just as positive that McBride will not get the recognition he wants, and the board is prepared to fight it out. The matter will, in all likelihood, be decided in the courts.

Husband Declares Wife's Property.

The wrath of a divorced husband was fanned by the county commissioners Saturday morning when they ordered the assessor to cancel the schedule of personal property handed in for Mrs. Francis J. Allison, declaring her property at $30,474. The declaration that Mrs. Allison "never had any such amount of property," and that the declaration had not been made by her.

W. G. Shriver, county assessor, was authorized as a delegate to the national convention of assessors to be held in Philadelphia, May 16, 17, 18, with his expenses paid, amounting to $120.

The assessor was also given authority to hire a special deputy at $2 a day to inquire into the value of automobiles, many of which are declared at suspiciously low figures by their owners.

Resolutions proposed by an executive committee from the Manufacturers' association were passed in which the board agrees to favor home made products in all matters where other conditions of price and quality are equal, and to direct all subcontractors to do the same.

Letters from architects on the Youngstown and Cleveland, O., court houses, where Colorado-Yule marble was used in the construction, heartily endorsing that product, were placed on file by the board. The Cleveland court house was a $4,000,000 building. Although George W. Caldwell, the contractor, and J. F. Manning, manager of the marble company, were on hand, the board reached no final decision as to the new marble.

Schroeder Would Have Dollar Gas

Says He Opposes Move of Some of the Councilmen for Dollar Ten Cents Gas.

"A movement is on foot among councilmen to fix the price of gas at $1.10 a thousand, instead of $1," says Fred Schroeder, when the ordinance fixing the price of gas comes up for consideration in the amendment to be offered, striking out the dollar clause and substituting one which calls for ten cents more.

"I shall fight the proposition from the jump," says Schroeder. "The city attorney has told us that we can regulate the price of gas. Now if we are going to regulate it, the thing to do is to regulate and not make a half hearted attempt at it. We can name it as easily as $1.10. If it's legal for us to fix the price, the rate will not be considered unreasonable by any fair-minded man."

TO ENTERTAIN THE TRAVELERS

Real Estate Men Will Be Host to the Land Men Passing Through Omaha.

The Omaha Real Estate exchange is preparing to entertain a large delegation of Chicago and eastern realty men in July. Invitations have been extended to several boards to stop here on their way to Denver to attend the national convention, and the Chicago Real Estate board has sent its acceptance. The Chicago men will go west in a special train. The Omaha exchange has appointed a committee to plan the entertainment.

Craig Objects to Having His Men in Municipal Parade

Says it is Foolish to Have Day Laborers March Through the Streets.

Declaring that the participation of his men in the municipal parade on May 25 will be of no benefit, either to the city or to the department, George Craig, city engineer, has declared himself against the project. Mr. Craig contends that the city will be a big loser if his men are taken from their work on that day.

"I can't see where any benefits will accrue from such a procedure," said Craig Saturday morning. "The expenses of this department run in the neighborhood of $500 a day. Just where the city would be benefited by having these men trail up and down the streets when they should be at work is beyond my comprehension."

"I am decidedly opposed to it. However, if the resolution, as passed by the council last Tuesday night maintains the department will be represented in force. But I think it a great mistake."

A resolution, passed by the city council, directed the heads of all departments to participate in the parade and to provide all apparatus that belongs to the various departments.

"I am heartily in accord with the parade, as far as the police and fire departments are concerned," continued Craig. "The men of these departments, uniformed, will present an imposing sight. But to have a lot of laborers trailing along behind is out of the question; to my way of thinking."

URGES LONGER VISIT OF BOOSTERS AT SIDNEY

Oberfelder Asks Commercial Club for Change in Trade Excursion Schedule—Refused.

Joseph Oberfelder, banker, Sidney, Neb., was here Saturday to plead with the promoters of the Omaha trade excursion for a longer stay in his city than has been scheduled. The excursionists will be in Sidney May 22, and it is the desire of the citizens of that town to entertain the Omahans in fine style. If boosting alone would have brought about a change in the excursion schedule he would have won, but the club has decided that it will be impossible to make any change in the arranged running time of the train.

JUDGMENT FOR HYDRANT RENT

Water Company Wins in Suit Against City of Omaha.

CITY IS EXPECTED TO APPEAL

Webster, Attorney for Defense, insists that the Company is Only Entitled to "Reasonable" Sum for Services.

Five judgments, aggregating $26,182.60, were rendered against the city of Omaha in favor of the Omaha Water company Saturday morning in Judge T. C. Munser's division of federal court.

The amount covers water hydrant rentals and interest from July 1, 1905, to January 1, 1911.

John Lee Webster, attorney for the water board, in opposing the claims, argued that the water company should be forced to bring its books in court and judgment rendered on the basis of actual service to the city. The suits were brought under a contract with the city, which expired on September 3, 1908, fixing the amount of hydrant rentals.

Webster contended that as the contract had expired the water company could collect only on a reasonable cost of service. Judge Munger held that the contract price should prevail and gave judgments. Through the notice of appeal has been filed. H. C. Lakin, attorney for the water company, says the city will appeal.

Laborer Pinned Down by Big Landslide

Has Narrow Escape from Death When Bank Caves In on Him—Saved by Quick Work.

Several tons of clay caved in upon Frank Hadlick, a laborer, employed at the Corner brick yards Friday afternoon and would have suffocated him but for two of his companions, who immediately set to work and dug him out. He escaped injury excepting body bruises. He was attended by Dr. Connell, who ordered him taken to St. Joseph's hospital.

Hadlick and his two fellow workmen, Philip Gilken and Fred Wend, were digging clay for the kilns. The earth above them slid down without warning and Hadlick had no chance to leap from under it.

Lineman Touches a Live Wire and Life is Gone in a Flash

Charles Witt Meets Sudden Death Working on Pole with High Tension Lead.

Swift and silent death overtook Charles Witt, a lineman working on a power lead at Thirteenth and Leavenworth streets Saturday afternoon, when by an accidental touch he shunted two powerful currents through his body.

Witt touched a line carrying 2,300 volts and as his body arched, reached across another lead carrying 5,000 volts. Death was practically instantaneous.

The dead man was 32 years old. His home is in New York, and he is unmarried. The body was lowered from the pole by other linemen using insulated ropes. An examination by a police surgeon showed that Witt had been instantly paralyzed by the power electric shock.

Cotton Plantation at Detention Home

Plot at City's Reformatory is Planted to Real Crop from Dixie Land.

Visions of a waving field of cotton blossoms are filling the minds of the children at the Detention home, Tenth and Bancroft streets, for a small plot in "their" garden has actually been planted to that product. John Williams, a negro, who has taken an interest in the children, has an interest in a cotton plantation near Vicksburg, has procured the seeds, and at his request Mrs. Roy Byrne, the matron, allowed a small portion of the ground, otherwise useless, to be plowed up. Mr. Williams insisted that the seeds had to be planted in this "moon," and did so late yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Byrne says that she looks upon the cotton as an educational experiment.

Feeble Condition of Connelly Saves Him from a Trial

County Attorney English Dismisses Action When He Looks at the Man.

James Connelly, aged 41 years, has his rheumatism and general feeble appearance to thank for the fact that he is not under arraignment now in district court for forgery. He came up for arraignment on that charge before Judge Estelle Saturday morning, but James P. English, county attorney, took one look at Connelly's pained, shaking figure and immediately "nolled" the case and laid aside the information he was about to read.

Connelly was arrested two months ago charged with attempting to pass a forged check on Owen McCaffery.
