Joe Leece Advertisises From His Jail Cell to Secure Ten Dollars

Everything Suggests Money to Man in Prison, but He is Unable to Grasp It.

Joe Leece has sat in his cell at the county jail since April 10, when he was bound over to the district court by Police Judge Callahan of South Omaha on a charge of forgery, awaiting in ever indifferent mood the trial. He is so sure of the fact that he is behind the bars at the jail with the doors of the penitentiary ready to unfold him, Joe's ambition, or it may be called a penchant, reigns.

The clock ticks and ticks and Joe sits and conjectures what he would be worth if each tiny detraction of a dollar, or even a penny—if his pocket, a spider web its web up in the corner of his cell and Joe, seeing no flies about, wonders if it doesn't expect a monetary gain thereby. There are nine steel bars in the door of Joe's cell and he would have to hypnotize him to make him think there are any more or any less, for he has counted them three times without number—ah, as if they were gold. Thus Joe Leece thinks of money and thus every little thing constantly suggested to him the idea of gain, so he wrote the following note to the penitentiary, as the authorities declare he is:

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN.

Men of Note from This Country and Abroad Address Students.

The spring lectures at the University of Wisconsin are bringing to the institution many men of note, both from this country and abroad. Baron Etourneaules de Constant, winner of the $60,000 Nobel peace prize, and Henry Oldys, the authority on experimental observation of birds, spoke at the university last week. This week three lectures are being given by Prof. L. T. Hobhouse of the University of London, England. Prof. Hobhouse is noted both as a psychologist and sociologist. He intends to remain in the United States six weeks, delivering lectures at the University of Wisconsin, the University of Chicago and Columbia university. The distinguished Swedish scholar, Dr. Svante Arrhenius, will also lecture during May. His talk will deal with the results of his recent researches on the composition of matter and the cosmic system. Dr. Arrhenius is now lecturing at the Lowell institute in Boston. The third speaker from abroad is Prof. Max Walter of Munich, well known for his inauguration in that city of the model schools. He will deliver two lectures setting forth the educational principles which his work puts into practice.

Notes from Wayne Normal. Dean Hahn addressed a meeting of the Dodge county teachers at North Bend Saturday afternoon. Miss Sara J. Killen is spending a few days in Chicago in the interest of the art department. E. A. Nordgren, a member of the present senior class, has been elected to the principalship of the Bellwood schools. The baccalaureate sermon this year will be delivered on Sunday evening May 23, by Dr. T. M. Shipper. Dr. Shipper is pastor of the First Congregational church at Lincoln. Friday evening in the chapel of the normal school occurred the annual debate between the Peru and Wayne Normal schools. The question for discussion was, "Resolved, That the United States Government should fortify the Panama Canal." Mrs. Britton, Mr. Hahn and Mr. Cross, representing the Wayne school, advocated the affirmative side of the question, and the negative was defended by Miss Bellas, Miss Mathis and Mr. Roberts, who spoke for the Peru institution. President Conn presided and the judges were Dr. Edwin Masey of the University of Nebraska, Superintendent F. D. Haddock and Prof. P. G. Hunt of the Sioux City, Ia., schools. The decision was announced in favor of Wayne, there being two affirmative and one negative vote. At the close of the debate a reception was given by the ladies of the dormitory in honor of the visiting team.

MONEY FOR MEDICAL EDUCATION

Nebraska Lines Up with Other States in Forward Movement.

After a long season of neglect, says the Journal of the American Medical Association, it seems that medical education is coming into its own in regard to financial support. Such benefactions as the recent gift of $20,000 from Dr. and Mrs. Robert W. Long of Indianapolis, the establishment of a teaching hospital for the Indiana University School of Medicine, indicate an increase of interest in the cause; and not only are private donors making generous contributions, but legislatures also are making more liberal appropriations for the support of their university medical schools. Word has just been received that in Alabama $100,000 has been appropriated for the support of the medical school of the state university for the next four years; and from Nebraska comes the news that a like sum has been appropriated to establish all four years of the university medical college of medicine on the campus in Omaha. A smaller but no less important appropriation was that of $30,000 by the Oregon legislature which has made possible a closer relationship between the University of Oregon and its medical department—a relationship which heretofore has been largely nominal. The university medical gifts of the country come tidings of substantial gifts or appropriations for medical teaching institutions that represent the higher standards of medical education. These appropriations give much encouragement to those who have been working for the development of higher standards and lead one to believe that even more liberal appropriations will be made in the future.

SCHOOL FRATS CUFFED AGAIN.

Exclusion from Chicago High Schools Affirmed by Board.

A change in the membership of the school board of Chicago was the excuse for seeking to rescind the rule against high school fraternities last week. The change in membership did not change the sentiment of the board, and the motion was rejected by the decisive vote of 11 to 2.

The crusade against the secret societies was led to a successful finish by Dean Wal. ter T. Sumner, chairman of the committee on school management. The cause of the Greek initials was championed by Dr. J. B. McPatrick, president of the board; Frank I. Bennett and George B. Swift.

Under the rule of the board no secret society in any city high school will be permitted in any circumstances. Pupils must either resign from societies or be expelled from their schools.

Dean Sumner said he had compiled statistics showing conclusively that secret societies were not good students. In one school in which were 12 members of societies and fraternities the average standing of these members was 74.5 per cent.

"And it cannot be argued that these children were not normal," said Dean Sumner. "Generally they are from the best homes of the city and should be expected to be well near the top of their classes. But they are not good students, because their society affiliations tend to hinder them from doing good, or even acceptable, school work."
