RIGBY, Idaho, May 24.—The Snake River valley has the best outlook for crops in the history of the agricultural development of this section. There has been an ample supply of water to prepare the soil and fill the reservoirs. The town of Rigby has experienced prosperous growth. A number of fine new blocks of brick and stone are being erected.

IDAHO LOOKS FOR BIG CROPS

Charles J. Sinsel Says Frost Damage Is Light and Prospects Are Good. BOISE, Idaho, May 24.—(Special.)—Seventeen years of observation of horticultural interests in Southern Idaho lead me to the prediction that the 1911 crop will establish a record for this section," says Charles J. Sinsel, an Idaho fruit grower. "The frost has done but very little, if any damage. Apples, peaches, pears, plums and nectarines as well as the berry family all indicate a full crop. Our horticulturists are giving special attention to the cultivation, spraying and trimming of their trees, so that our fruit buyers can depend on getting carloads of No. 1 fancy stock from this section."

POCATELLO, Idaho, May 24.—(Special.)

Water will be available on the Fort Hall tract, north of this city, June 1. Work is being rushed to completion on the government ditch. Superintendent Grayville declares that those who need water will be able to get it as soon as it is required. The reservoir is now filling satisfactorily. The knowledge that water will be available has stimulated those clearing the land. Steam plows are at work on the land already cleared. Notices of the Agricultural show at Pocatello have been distributed over Bannock county and general interest among the farmers has been awakened. They view the show at Pocatello as a preliminary for the selection of exhibits for the Land show at Omaha and the western development exhibition train, which is to spread the fame of the state on its way east.

SUTHERLIN VALLEY GROWING

Stock Pasture of Three Years Ago Becomes Center of Agricultural Activity. SUTHERLIN, Ore., May 24.—(Special.)—The history of the Sutherland valley is characteristic of the rapid development in this section. Three years ago the valley was used as a stock pasture. It has been converted into a territory including a prosperous little town of 500 inhabitants, with an irrigation system serving 5,000 acres and twelve miles of boulevard road. The town is electric lighted by water power. The increase of settlers has been particularly heavy in the last three months. The surroundings are picturesque and the soil is willingly productive to the man of industry.
