SOUTH OMAHA TO ENTERTAIN

Will Be Host to the Visiting Editors for a Day.

BANQUET AT THE EXCHANGE

Business Meeting and Election of Officers at a Meeting at the Exchange Building—C. C. Rosewater to Talk.

South Omaha is in competition with Omaha to see which city can do the most for the members of the Nebraska Press association, as most of the day Tuesday, June 6, will be known as "South Omaha day."

The arrangements for the entertainment of the press association in South Omaha have just been announced by Senator J. M. Fanner of the Nebraska Daily Democrat, who is vice president of the state association.

Chartered street cars will take the newspaper men to South Omaha noon after 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Divided into four parties the editors and their wives will be escorted through the packing houses and stock yards, each party visiting one packing house. Guides furnished by the stock yards company, the packing houses, local newspaper men and South Omaha bankers will escort these parties on the trips.

Dinner at the Exchange

Returning to the Exchange hotel at noon the entire party will be served with a dinner, the like of which has seldom been served anywhere. It will be a cross between a barbecue and a banquet and there will be plenty of music and flowers.

Following this dinner, the women of the party will be entertained at a luncheon for a ride which will include a trip to Fort Crook, where it is hoped to have the regimental band out for a short concert and perhaps a drill of some of the companies.

While the women are automobile riding the business session will be called to order in the Exchange auditorium. Senator Tanner presiding. Two addresses will be given in South Omaha, one by C. C. Rosewater, general manager of The Bee Publishing company, and by Will M. Maupin of Lincoln, publisher of "Will Maupin's Weekly."

The election of officers for the coming year and the selection of the next place of meeting will also take place at this session.

At 4:30 the entire party will take chartered cars for Omaha, and will leave the Masonic Temple at 6:30 for an automobile ride about the city, given by the Omaha Commercial club. This ride will be followed by the annual dinner at the Field club, arrangements for which are being completed by the entertainment committee of the Commercial club.

Jack Johnson Goes to London Soon

NEW YORK, June 2.—Jack Johnson, who will sail for England in a few days, has received a cablegram from Hugh McIntosh offering a big guarantee for a twenty-round fight with Bombardier Wells, the English heavyweight champion. Johnson has not accepted, but he says that when he arrives on the other side he will agree to terms if there is enough money in sight.

Engineer's Rig Extracts Doggie from Sewer Manhole

Red Light Gang Goes Out to Pull Exploding Puplet Back to Region of Daylight

Judge Lee Estelle is the proud possessor of a little canine of questionable nationality, which, like its illustrious owner, is of an investigating mind. But unlike Judge Estelle, it is not given to an investigation of legal questions. Instead it prefers to roam about the neighborhood.

Doggie started out on one of his tours Thursday afternoon and wound up in a manhole at Forty-first avenue and Cass streets. How doggie got there no one knows, but how he got out is familiar to everyone in the neighborhood.

When Mrs. Estelle missed doggie, she started out on a still hunt for the pet. His yelps finally directed her to his abiding place. There he was, down at the bottom of the pit. How to get him out was the problem.

She tried the police. "Nothing doing," came the response over the telephone wire. Then she resorted to the humane office. She was greeted with a similar reply.

Then she tried the city engineer's office. The warm-hearted officials of the city listened to her pleadings. The red light brigade of the street department was dispatched to the scene. The brigade consists of H. Utmost and a horse. But the combination was equal to the emergency and doggie was safely extricated from his perilous place.

WORK ON THE NEW POWER HOUSE IS BEING RUSHED

All is Now Ready for the Installation of the Necessary Machinery.

All is ready now to put in the machinery in the new power house of the street railway company at Fifth and Jackson streets. The big brick building is complete and some of the machinery for the making of power on the grounds and other parts of the dynamic system on the road to Omaha.

In spite of the fact that all is ready except the machinery it will be September 15 or October 1 before it is possible to put the power plant in operation. The setting up of such complex machinery and so much of it takes months.

Two big steam boilers are already practically installed, having been in use with the old power plant since last December. A chain grate system of firing, automatic stokers and coal and ashes conveying plants, the condenser, the fuel economizers, the turbine, the rotary converter, the transformers, and all the switchboard apparatus are to be put in and connected before the making of power for Omaha street cars can begin.

"We are rushing the work as fast as is possible," states E. A. Leusser, assistant general manager of the company, in telling of the progress of the work. "It will take a long time to complete, but the spending of $200,000 would naturally take a few months."

CLASS CONFIRMED AT TEMPLE

Eighteen Receive Certificates from Rabbi Frederick Cohn.

IN CELEBRATION OF SHEBUOTH

Hebrew Holiday Observed with Pretty Ceremonial—Musical Program and Reading from Prayer Book Held.

Temple Israel, Twenty-ninth and Jackson streets, was the setting for a pretty scene Friday morning when Shebuoth, an Hebrew holiday, was celebrated with the introduction of a class of eighteen confirmands into the faith.

Rabbi Frederick H. Cohn delivered the address and awarded the certificates of membership in the church. The services were conducted in the following order: Organ prelude, music by the choir, the reading of the Shebuoth service from the prayers, the entrance of the confirmands, Rosenbergs, 708 North Thirtieth street; Lorine Rosenstock, 326 Harney street; Libby Snyder, 170 Glenn Avenue; Council Bluffs; Sam Feiler, 256 Franklin street; Arthur Friedman, Victor Ganz, 2822 Harney street; Leadore Mushkin, 700 North Twenty-fourth street, South Omaha.

The members of the class were: Dorotee Adler, 3229 Harney street; Edythe Alpersen, 2323 Webster street; Jennie Friedman, 2010 North Twentieth street; Hannah Graetz, 121 South Twenty-seventh street; Rosaline Kohn, 323 South Twenty-second street; Juliet Levy, 1315 North Seventeenth street; Goldie Melcher, 94 South Thirty-third street; Lillian Meyer, 3223 Harney street; Bianche Monheit, 1046 North Thirty-fourth street; Isabelle Rudman, 3221 Franklin street; Clara Rofsky, 1604 Cass street; Marguerite Rosenberg, 708 North Thirtieth street; Lorine Rosenstock, 326 Harney street; Libby Snyder, 170 Glenn Avenue; Council Bluffs; Sam Feiler, 256 Franklin street; Arthur Friedman, Victor Ganz, 2822 Harney street; Leadore Mushkin, 700 North Twenty-fourth street, South Omaha.

TWO SUE BECAUSE THEY FELL OFF STREET CAR

Total of Seven Thousand Dollars is Asked of Company Because of Tumblers.

Two suits for damages against the street railway company, alleging assaults by conductors, were filed in district court Friday. In one, Martin D. Vieno asks for $2,000; in the other, James W. Cosgrove places the amount of his alleged damage at $5,000.

Vieno alleges that the conductor, after he had run for the car, beat his hands from the rail and pushed him from the car, and as a result he rolled down an embankment and was caught by two women, much to his own humiliation. The incident happened near Riverview park last Thursday.

Cosgrove's case of assault, although it happened last August, was almost identical in the details with the circumstances alleged by Vieno. Cosgrove avers that he was thrown from the car and injured after his family had gotten safely aboard.

Wright Puts Dinner Guests to Work in His Alfalfa Field

Loan and Building Association Director Gets His Associates to Do Some Real Work.

W. S. Wright of the Wright & Wilhelmy Company, is, in a nice, genteel way, one of the men who most enjoys life as it is lived in this booming modern day. He is, among other things, a director in the Omaha Loan and Building association, and so his fellow directors did not think twice about accepting an invitation to be his guests at a dinner at his home Thursday evening.

Captained by George Loomis, the other directors proceeded to the Wright home at the appointed time. In the bunch was C. E. Hinek, "Billy" Adair, secretary of the association, M. M. Robertson, Scott King, "Samson" Penfold and John Butler. When they had laid aside their visiting manners and were just prepared to sit down in a cool place and be entertained, Mr. Wright solemnly produced a bundle of nice new pitchforks, that had never been used.

"Come with me," he said; and he took the husky, muscular directors of the moneyed institution out to a rich patch of alfalfa that had been carefully prepared for cooking. The glowing blades of the gold-bearing crop all nodded a genial welcome to the astonished harvesters and seemed to laugh with fat chuckles of anticipatory glee.

"Fall to, boys," said Mr. Wright. "I know from your personal tales of former prowess that every man of you was raised on a farm and won his way to success by hard toil. To him who proves the best hand with the fork shall the greatest credit fall."

"There they were—up against it right. What could they do? Not a thing but pitch in and pitch alfalfa. Mr. Loomis, the most experienced farm boy in the group, set the example; and "Hatty" Hinek, who invented the easiest way to work a farm when a very young man, was close behind. Mr. Wright watched the workers closely, encouraging the laggards and saying nice things to the laborers who had the nerve to keep on smiling. Then, when the perspiration had begun to flow, he signaled the house, and forth came a fair maid with a bucket of barley water, just as it happens in the old stories of the harvest field. Each man was allowed a big drink of the soothing and strengthening beverage, and told to hustle along and finish as soon as might be, before the threatening rain came.

Mr. Wright saw to it that every stray word of the precious forage was carefully gathered, and then gave another high sign to the house. At once a horn blew, and recalled fond memories of the old days on the farm to every gleaner in the field. After cleaning up, having carefully put their forks away, the men were given a farm dinner that rejuvenated their long-abused stomachs, and then were permitted to smoke and tell their prize stories of early stunts on other agricultural fields.

At the proper time they thanked Mr. Wright profusely and with a fine courtesy, then went home and doctored their blisters and began to plan ways and means of reciprocating. But Mr. Wright is watching them very carefully.

three weeks, Kansas farmers have called for 12,000 harvest hands. Charles Harris, director of the State Free Employment bureau, said that the bureau expected to ask for from 15,000 to 18,000 men this year.

Little Surprises

"Yes, I've been thinking lately that I ought to take out some life insurance. I'm glad you hinted up, young man."
"Mrs. Chiggers, here's the cup o' coffee man borrowed from you the other day."
"I congratulate you on your hair, old chap; they're finer than anything I've got."
"I don't know how the story ends, Fan; I haven't looked at the last chapter."
"Mother, you're tired—let me do the dishes."
"Thank you just the same, sir, but the boss doesn't allow us to accept tips."
