Edward Rosewater School Formally Dedicated

THE NEW EDWARD ROSEWATER SCHOOL

HONOR EDWARD ROSEWATER

Eminent Educators and Business Men Pay Tribute to His Memory.

SCHOOL BUILDING IS DEDICATED

Dr. Avery, Robert Cowell, Dr. Davidson, Dr. Holovitchiner and Victor Rosewater Make Addresses.

Eminent educators, business men and leading citizens of the city, members of the Board of Education, and patrons of the public schools united Saturday afternoon to do honor to the memory of the late Edward Rosewater...

Dr. Samuel Avery, chancellor of the University of Nebraska, Robert Cowell, a lifelong friend of Mr. Rosewater, Victor Rosewater, his son, Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, Dr. E. Holovitchiner, a member of the Board of Education, Alfred Kennedy, president of the Board of Education, Miss Clara F. Cooper, former principal of the old Forest school, and Mrs. Martha W. Christianity principal of the new school, participated in the program of speaking.

Early Struggles Recalled. The early struggle of Mr. Rosewater, his battle against seemingly overwhelming odds; how he successfully overcame them all and by sheer force of genius and hard work rose to a position of prominence...

Dr. Avery's Glowing Tribute. Chancellor Avery speaks on the relation of the university to the schools and city. In prefacing his address he said:

"In view of the fact that others are to speak who knew intimately this distinguished educator, it would be to honor the building is named, it would be superfluous for me to begin with words of tribute. 'I must express my feeling, however, that the Omaha Board of Education has done a most fitting thing in naming this school after one of Omaha's distinguished citizens. Not only is it peculiarly fitting that the metropolis should set a worthy example, but it is also peculiarly fitting that this building should bear the name it does for Mr. Rosewater's life was essentially that of a publicist. Those who have studied his career recognize, I think, that interest in public affairs and public welfare dominated his entire life. In all his career as a member of the legislature he showed that he was fully abreast of the times. Dr. Avery then also reviewed the work of the state university, saying that among the sisterhood of states Nebraska is unique in having a university that is, in fact as well as in name, the apex of its educational pyramid. Dr. Avery pleaded for universal education. In the course of his remarks he criticized certain universities for holding entrance examinations in Omaha, declaring that such methods did not show proper respect for the Omaha high school, which he declared was much better than many so-called colleges. Next to a Miracle. Victor Rosewater opened his address with a brief account of his father's schooling and educational equipment, thus leading up to the ideals he held concerning public school education as the channel for his principal bequest. 'It is wonderful,' he said, 'to contemplate what in other days would be regarded as next to a miracle, that by the will of his own personality a poor boy, born in a small village in a distant country across the sea, where a totally different language was spoken, should here be acclaimed with a memorial more valued than tablets of bronze or shafts of stone. The commemoration of his name in a building like this,' said Mr. Rosewater, 'in referring to the naming of the Edward Rosewater school 'was never dreamed of by him, although I know that he would have appreciated it more than any other honor that ever came to him, and if he had been consulted he would probably have indicated a preference for this very school. 'For it is a school to which many children are sent who, like himself, are of foreign born parentage, and who by their own efforts will have to work their way up in the world. His work, I have been attracted by this school because the children taught here come from the families of workmen, and he always preached the nobility of honest toil. 'I am pleased to see such a gathering as this, met to do honor to the memory of a man who did as much for the up-building of Omaha and the development

Plans are now under way at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., which contemplate the erection of some twenty new buildings, the whole to conform to a general architectural plan now being prepared. The site for the new Methodist university which is to be located in Texas has been decided upon and the school will be erected in Highland park, one of the most beautiful and healthful sections of Dallas. The city of Dallas offered lands and cash to the extent of $1,000,000.

A great group of laboratories for the study of chemistry at Harvard college is planned and the first building will be erected this summer. About $1,000,000 will be needed to build the new school to be built. About $100,000, already raised, the group will occupy a site on the west side of Divinity avenue, Cambridge.

Two new quadrangles are to be added to the dormitory system at the University of Pennsylvania. So great has been the number of students applying for rooms in the dormitories that the trustees have decided to change their plans for the development of the present system, so that five new houses will be grouped according to the system followed at the Universities of Cambridge and Oxford.
