Arriving home one Saturday night with a pocketful of such letters and fearing to take them home lest a curious wife would find them in his pockets, he enclosed them in new envelopes and mailed them to himself at a town which he would visit the next week. This led to the detection of the matter and was the cause of his indictment by the grand jury.

Poker Game in Court. The case of the state against William Ainsly of Elwood, charged with engaging in a poker game, was argued and submitted to the supreme court this afternoon. Assistant Attorney General Frank E. Edger, representing the state, called the attention of the court to the fact that Ainsly had set out 500 assignments of error, but that his attorney had forgotten to allege that the lower court erred in overruling a motion for a new trial. In civil cases the ruling of the supreme court is in such matters that unless this allegation is made the assignments of error are not to be considered. Whether this ruling applies to criminal cases is a question before the court which will have considerable bearing. Attorney Wolff of McCook, representing Ainsly, asked leave to amend his petition in error by inserting an allegation to the effect that the court in overruling the motion for a new trial, this motion the court took under advisement.

Eclectics to Test Medical School Bill, Alleging Class Law. Voting of Money to Recognition One School of Medicine to Exclusion of Another Asserted Illegal.

From a Staff Correspondent. LINCOLN, Neb., June 5.—(Special Telegram)—Representatives of the Nebraska Electric Medical society have engaged legal counsel and are preparing to test the legality of the Grossman bill appropriating $100,000 for the construction of a building at the Omaha Medical college.

Tibbets and Anderson of this city will fight the case for the organization and will probably start the proceedings by securing an injunction to prevent the expenditure of the money as provided for in the bill.

Chief among the reasons assigned is that the voting of money for this part of the university medical school is class legislation, because it recognizes no school of medicine, eclectic and homeopathic being given no representation in the institution. Those who are preparing to fight the bill assert that the diverting of funds for furthering instruction in an institution such as this is wholly without legal warrant and they propose to take such steps as are necessary to prevent it.

The bill which takes effect July 7, may not be actively fought until that time, though some who are against it, are deterring of brooking no delay in the matter.

Friends Conclude Important Work of Yearly Gathering Bible Training Department to Be Added to Nebraska Central College.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., June 5.—(Special.)—All the important business of the fourth annual session of the Nebraska Yearly Meeting of Friends was concluded Saturday. The sessions began Wednesday afternoon. The Friends are commonly known as the Quakers.

The council was organized with the election of George D. Weeks of Denver as presiding clerk; Mattie Hadley, recording clerk; Alice M. Coleman, reading clerk; Ellis A. Wells, announcing clerk. The nominations were made by the nominating committee, which also recommended the re-election of Rev. Frank W. Dell as superintendent of evangelism and church extension work. This is the highest position in the Friends yearly meeting, the authority vested in the superintendent being similar to the duties of a bishop in other church organizations. Other nominations made by the committee and endorsed by the meeting were as follows: Editor Nebraska Friend, Mattie M. Hadley; associate editor, Wilfred D. Gibson; business manager, Frank Roberts; trustees of yearly meeting for expiring terms, Raleigh Townsend, Harrison Myers, Curtis Hockett; trustees of Nebraska Central college for expiring terms, Elihu Roberts, Everett Myers, Tuerner Abel and John H. Hadley.

Nebraska Yearly meeting owns and controls Nebraska Central college and much of the most important business of this year's session was in regard to the college. It was determined to add to the college a department to be known as the "Bible Institute and Training Department" for Christian workers. The plan contemplated is to eventually develop a strong theological school in the college and eventually to provide a separate building for this department. The storm which broke over the college was precipitated by the fact that the Friends had pledged toward this project, one delegate and his wife pledging one-half of that amount.

Another move launched on behalf of the college was the creating of a contingency fund to be used as an income for the institution until a student endowment has been accumulated to provide a larger income. This plan is to secure $35 yearly pledges from 100 persons extending over a period of three years, thus providing an annual income of $3,500 for that period.

Another feature in connection with the college was the dedication of the new Hord hall, the agricultural and gymnasium building, Friday afternoon. The yearly meeting pledged $2,000 to the Friends American Board of Foreign Missions. Notable visitors present at the session of the meeting were Miss Ines Tabor, a returned missionist from Japan; David Sampson from North Carolina and Eli Parham from Battle Creek, Ia., both big men in the Friends organization, and the latter a former president of Nebraska Central college.
