IN WOMAN'S WORLD

For the Baby Camp

The baby camp of the visiting nurses, with its dozen wee tots that are there given a chance for sunshine and open air, has proved to be an attraction of great interest to the children that live near the north end of Riverview park. Six little girls who saw the babies and wanted to do something to help along the enterprise earned $4 by giving a fairy play two weeks ago, and Thursday made a visit to the camp and presented the money to Miss Nan Dorsey.

Pleasures Past

Mrs. F. I. Ellick entertained at bridge this afternoon at her home. Her guests were Mesdames E. E. Kimberly, L. D. Uphan, W. L. Lighton, S. R. Rush, G. M. Durke, C. O. Talmadge, B. F. Miller, V. C. Peckenpaugh, F. W. Carmichael, W. E. Rhodes, O. P. Goodman, Allen Farmer, W. A. Pixley, Joseph Polcar, Royal M. Miller. Miss Frances Gould entertained at bridge for Miss Della Jacobson this afternoon.

Soups

WITH the excellent assortment of vegetables now on the market there should be little trouble in selecting a soup for dinner. There are any number of savory vegetable soups made with a single vegetable as the principal ingredient, or with a combination of these nutritious food stuffs from the garden. An old fashioned vegetable soup embodies enough nourishment in itself to eliminate the need for an extensive dinner menu, and the home table often is lightly bridged over from soup to dessert when vegetables are the foundation of the first course. Some good soup recipes are: Cream of Corn Soup—Put one quart of milk in a double boiler with a slice of onion. Score down the center of each row of grain on six ears of corn, squeeze out the pulp and add it to the milk. Remove the onion, then smooth two tablespoonsful of butter and two tablespoonsful of flour to a paste, add a little milk to make thin. Stir the paste into the mixture in the double boiler and keep stirring for ten minutes. Season to taste. Vegetable Soup—Use one quart of rich soup stock or a shn of beef. If the beef is used, it should be partially cooked before the vegetables are added. The water should be skimmed and when ready for the vegetables should measure about two quarts.

Wedding Bells

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday morning when Miss Ruth Miller became the wife of Raymond C. Williams, both of Omaha. The wedding took place at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Rev. Collar officiating. The bride was given away by her grandfather, Dr. Goodell. Reginald J. Williams, brother of the groom, was best man. Immediately after the ceremony luncheon was served at the Paxton hotel. Among the out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Jennings of Exeter, Neb.; Mrs. Harvey Williams, Ames and Miss Williams of Council Bluffs, and Dr. Goodell of Wilbur. Miss Mercy Baldy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Baldy, 739 Bristol street, and Mr. William Roberts surprised their friends by telling them today of their marriage, which they had quietly solemnized Wednesday evening at the rectory of All Saints church, Rev. T. J. Mackay officiating. There were no bridal attendants.

For the Future

A wedding was celebrated Thursday afternoon in Lincoln, when Miss Ruth Holmes, daughter of Judge and Mrs. E. P. Holmes, became the bride of Louis Vollentein. There were no attendants and only relatives were present. Mrs. Charles A. Hall of this city, sister of the bride, was present at the wedding. They will take a short wedding trip, after which they will reside in Lincoln. Wednesday morning Miss Vera Benson and Mr. James Love were married at St.

Kill the Flies

The campaign against the fly cannot be successfully carried on through individual effort alone. Individual activity is of great service; the fight against this summer pest has been waged for many years by the good housewife, who has her home screened and who swats the intruding fly whenever she sees him, and thus keeps her home as free from the dangerous nuisance as if he never existed. But this sort of warfare does not reach the root of the evil. Except for those comparatively few homes that are thoroughly protected, it is of no service. What is needed is organization that will effectively combat the malady at its beginning. It is the breeding place of flies that must be stamped out. In a number of towns and cities in the United States the initiative in the fly crusade has been taken by health officers, but in the majority of communities the health officials have to be stirred up. In a few communities, private practitioners have been the exciting cause of anti-fly work. Elsewhere, the beginnings have been made either by a single private individual or by some local organization, as a civic league, a women's club, or a town improvement society. Women's clubs have done very effective work in this direction. The first effort of such an organization should be to enlist the sympathy and cooperation of the health authorities of the community. This gained, every possible effort should be made to induce the controllers of the appropriations for the health officials to realize the importance of this work. Health officers without funds at their disposal for the employment of inspectors and for the carrying out of regulations are helpless, and therefore the first step, after the health officials are convinced of the desirability of the work, is to secure the funds. In some cases this has been done by private subscription, the money to be expended under the supervision of the health officers. In other cases private individuals with sufficient leisure have had themselves appointed as health inspectors without salary. The easiest way to get ammunition is to write to the secretary of the American Civic Association, Mr. Richard B. Westons, whose address is Union Trust building, Washington, D. C. The fly committee of this association, of which Mr. Edward Hatch, Jr., of New York is the chairman, has done some very energetic work, and the whole association seeks the opportunity to co-operate directly with civic societies of every character, such as women's clubs, local civic leagues, consumers' leagues, school improvement societies, and all organized bodies, in a direct crusade against the typhoid fly.

HIS WAS JOY OF GIVING

One of the Little Tragedies of Childhood Averted by Red Wagon. A little boy of perhaps 12 years had for more than a week made daily trips to the postoffice at Warsaw, Mo. He lived about five miles from town and usually walked the distance barefooted and over a rough road. The mother of this little boy was living apart from him, probably serving as a domestic with some family miles away. She had written him that she would send him a wagon—one of the miniature express kind, usually painted red. In some way the little fellow thought the wagon must come through the postoffice—that it could arrive no other way. And so each day he would walk up to the general delivery window and inquire if his wagon had come. Each time as the disappointing answer that nothing had come was given him the tears would come to the little fellow's eyes, but he would bravely brush them away and the next day return with his usual query. No doubt the little fellow tired of the long journey—no doubt his shoeless feet were torn and blistered by the rock road over which he came, but he made the trip every day, having implicit faith that his wagon must come by mail. A gentleman happening to be in the postoffice one day heard the little fellow's request—probably his sixth trip that week—and noticed that his voice broke with disappointment as the office attaches gave him the same old answer. Sympathizing with the little fellow, this gentleman came up town and for $25 bought the little fellow a wagon which met his every wish, which chased all the tears away. And in that happiness and contentment which thrilled the childish heart the act of this good Samaritan had its own reward.—Warsaw Independent.

WOULDN'T THIS JAR YOU?

Cruel Practical Jokers Took Up Man for a Wife Hunter. Determined to have a wife, a Beloit, Wis., swain advertised for one, and from letters received he selected "Miss Lulu Harris" of Rockford, Ill., who had $500 in bank. She was to go to Beloit on the 8 o'clock interurban and the bridegroom, who had missed the 8 o'clock car and would surely be on the 9 o'clock. The young man waited, surrounded by a big crowd that had gathered, and was rewarded by the sight of a distinctly comely lass who greeted him effusively. They repaired at once to the hall where the ceremony was to be performed, showered with rice and oatmeal, and were receiving a demonstration beyond their wildest dreams until some overenthusiastic person showed them with a big bag of oatmeal—rather tried to. His aim was poor, and a policeman standing at the edge of the walk got the full benefit of it. He spluttered, gasped, blew the fine stuff out of his mouth and started to clean up the crowd. The "bride" did not wait to be driven away. She gathered up her lingerie and started in a distinctly mannish run down the street, and the husband-to-be, who was nearly upset with a glimpse of a very neat pair of trousers that told the whole story. His "bride-to-be" was a clerk in a Beloit store.—Milwaukee Sentinel.
