Voters of the city evinced little interest in the revision of the registration, which began Saturday at 10 o'clock.

In the second precinct of the Eleventh ward but the voters registered during the morning, while at the polling place at Fortieth and Cumming streets, but one registration was made up till 11 o'clock.

Dan Butler, city clerk, was busy during the day, visiting the various precincts.

In the second precinct of the Eleventh ward, but the voters registered during the morning, while at the polling place at Fortieth and Cumming streets, but one registration was made up till 11 o'clock.

One protest was registered, a voter living in the Third precinct of the Seventh ward stating that he was unable to register at noon because the officials had gone to dinner.

Figures will not be given on the registration until Monday morning. The polls will remain open until 9 to give the laborers a chance to get in line.

Saturday's registration will hold good for the August primaries as well as for the special elections on June 20.

The registration is for voters who have moved out of their old precincts since the last registration and for others who have moved into the city.

Omaha Physicians Forget to Inspect Miss Dorsey's Camp

One Lone Purveyor of Pills from South Omaha Responds to Invitation.

One lone doctor, and he from South Omaha, braved the threatening elements last night and hid himself out to the Fresh Air Baby camp at Eighth and Bancroft streets, where Miss Nan Dorsey and a corps of nurses hold forth and minister to the many wants of eleven little ailing tots.

Last night was set for the inspection of the baby camp by the physicians, but without exception Omaha purveyors of pills and medicines denied themselves the pleasure of seeing the innovation working in full tilt.

The nurses in immaculate white dresses, all togged out for the occasion, waited patiently for the expected guests, but as time slipped by nary a one with the Omaha trade mark knocked at the door.

As it drew near it took on the aspect of a real doctor. With joy the nurses flocked to the door to greet him.

He was Dr. A. A. Fricke, all the way from South Omaha. After an inspection of the camp and a visit with the babes, Dr. Fricke expressed his gratification at the work the nurses are doing.

"It is the finest thing imaginable," said he. "The nurses do more good work here in one month than would be possible in six months under other conditions."

Diplomas Are Given to Twelve at School of St. Cecilia's Parish

Six Young Men and Six Young Women Given Certificates by Bishop Scannell.

The class exercises of St. Cecilia's school were held in the school auditorium last night before a large and interested crowd of friends.

Two very pretty dramas were the features of the program. "The Triumph of Justice," a piece of some dramatic pretension, was the offering of the young men.

Just as worthy of commendation were the young women in their presentation of "Anima." Anima was a fairy-like creature personifying the human soul.

Pneumonia Takes Hospital Attache

Charley Martin, Head Orderly for the Last Twenty-Four Years at St. Joseph's, is Dead.

"Charley" Martin, long an employe at St. Joseph's hospital, died in the institution yesterday after faithfully serving in the position of head orderly for the last twenty-four years.

There are few patients who have been cared for in the hospital during the last quarter of a century who have not had a good word to say for Charley. He was almost 70 years old, but seemed to be as husky as a section boss until stricken with pneumonia a few weeks ago.

Charley was a bachelor and is not known to have any relatives in Omaha. He was said to have traveled extensively in his younger days, but, becoming tired of roaming, settled down to a quiet life in St. Joseph's before many of the present married folks were born.

The body was taken to the undertaking parlors of Healey & Healey, but no arrangements for the funeral will be made until all efforts to locate his friends have been exhausted.

Packing Firm that Pioneered in South Omaha History of Progressive Omaha Packing Company that Represents the Thrifty Spirit of Nebraska's Meat Center

With the organization of the stock yards at South Omaha in 1884 came the establishment of packing houses. The first plants, of course, were of the primitive type, but all were destined soon to take their places among the greatest in the world.

The stock yards company erected the first plant, which was small, but which served well the purpose for which it was constructed. The year was 1884. The G. H. Hammond company leased this establishment. Later this company bought over the entire plant and greatly enlarged it.

Fowler Bros. in 1886 erected the second plant, which was much larger than the Hammond one. A meat plant was opened by the Anglo-American Provision company in 1888. The company was reorganized in 1888, when it became the Omaha Packing company. This firm took over the Hammond establishment.

The Omaha Packing company is now the oldest of all the establishments in South Omaha and is one of the finest. From time to time since the two plants were merged in the late eighties, extensive improvements have been made. The plant of the Omaha Packing company now compares favorably with any of the most modern establishments in South Omaha and other packing centers of the world.

Four years ago the Omaha Packing company expended more than $1,000,000 in remodeling the Hammond house and making it over into a modern plant. The equipment of the establishment is all modern, and every facility is regarded as the best for handling meat products. For twenty years the company operated the old Fowler plant. In the new establishment there is the advantage of being close to the yards and raw material.

A feature of the new plant which has attracted great attention is the new hot house. It is one of the finest of the stock yards. The old packing plant is now used entirely for storage purposes.

The annual sales of the Omaha Packing company aggregate $15,000,000. The sum of $1,000,000 is expended each year on supplies. During the last two years the floor of the entire plant has been made of concrete. The general sanitation of the establishment has been bettered through this improvement.

When the work of remodeling was going on four years ago the government had just commenced its inspection activities. This situation permitted the company to build the plant along sanitary lines. The company was the first in South Omaha to install sanitary dressing and wash rooms for its employes.

VIEW OF OMAHA PACKING COMPANY'S PLANT.

At all times the Omaha Packing company has been a leader in the movement for the improvement of conditions in the yards at South Omaha, and always has given its aid to the betterment of the situation in the city of South Omaha. Its management is public-spirited and is always ready to assist in any move that will bring better results to South Omaha and its industries.

The Omaha Packing company has kept abreast of all the latest improvements in the packing house industries and has been engaged in bringing these to South Omaha as rapidly as possible. First on the ground, this company has had an opportunity for meeting every condition and for going ahead with the other packers in co-operating for a general advancement of the stock yards. Since the organization of the Omaha Packing company South Omaha has witnessed many changes in the packing status and has seen the city of South Omaha grow from a small village of only a few thousand people to the present progressive center of stock activity. Every line of industry in the city has prospered during the last few years.

The success of the Omaha Packing company in the first years of its life encouraged other packing concerns to come to
