The accused man was Felix Dworsky, a reason to suspect his wife's fideilty and eventually made certain she was unfaithful to him. Thereupon he set about devising his scheme of revenge. The wife, however, suspected there was some scheme afoot to injure her lover. She did not know for certain what it was, but shrewdly suspected the means her hauband would deep in his usual room at home test some harm might overtake him. The man laughed at her fears. He scouted the idea that the husband would dare to attempt to interfere with him. That night when he was in bed he was aroused by a slight explosion in the room. Jumping up he was a bomb concealed in a basket of saw clouds of smoke rising from a flower basket on the window still, Ho seized the basket and just at the moment a homb concealed among the flowers exploded with terrible violence, destroying his left hand and three fingers of his right hand. When Dworsky was arrested he admitted he had placed the bomb in the basket with the intention of blowing the old man to pieces, but he denied that the motive of the crime was jealousy. He aleged he had placed the bomb at the order of a secret society.

ury sympathized with Dworsky's marital troubles and acquitted him. BATTLE WITH MIAMI INDIANS
