MRS. FREEMAN TO RELY ON AN INSANITY PLEA

Attorney for the Defense Lays Basis for it in His Opening Statement.

Temporary insanity as well as the "unwritten law," will figure in the defense of Mrs. Lizzie Freeman facing a charge of first degree murder before Judge Estelle in district court for the killing of her husband on April 17, last. Earl Freeman was with another woman when his wife found and shot him, and the inference has been steadily drawn that Mrs. Freeman would rely almost entirely upon "the unwritten law" in her defense

In his opening statement to the jury Tuesday morning, Isadore Ziegier, her attorney, laid the basts for a plea of insanity. He characterized the murdered man's treatment of his wife as "unnatural, inhuman and brutal, such in its effect upon her that she was irresponsible and incapable of understanding the meaning and consequence of her act."

CITY MISSION TOTS PICNIC

Over a Thousand Have Plenty of Fun at Courtland Beach.

STREET CARS FILLED

Lunches Provided for All-Children Engage in All Sorts of Games and Enjoy the Concessions of the Park.

Over 1,000 boys, girls, men and women traveled out to Courtland Beach, Carter lake, Tuesday morning as guests of the Omaha City mission at its annual picnic. The picnickers came from all parts of the city and about 200 South Omaha children were in the bunch.

It was a day made for picnics and long before the time set to meet, 9 o'clock, large crowds began to gather at Tweifth and Douglas streets, where nine chartered cars. furnished by the street car company, waited for the big crowd. And none too many cars were sent either, as every one was packed to the guards. Miss Neille Magee, who was in charge of the picnic, flitted about in the crowd on the corner, caution ing the children not to go near the water when they arrived at the park.

Little children looked upon the kindly woman with confidence, and were greeted, smile here, a kind word there and cheer ful greeting to all. She gave instructions to all who were to assist her in watching the little ones, and solicited the aid of all mothers present in administering to the needs of the little ones. Mogy Bernstein was also there and took charge of the boys. Every type of humanity was in evidence at the picnic. > It was a tired lot of girls who gathered around the festive board when a huge dinner bell was rung. Boys, both large and small, deserted the generosity of the park managers and crowded the lunch counters. As if in anticipation of an enormous crowd Miss Magee had planned for a thousand lunches, and when all had eaten to his or her capacity, the picnic baskets were a sorry looking lot. Sandwiches of every known variety, pickles, fruit, potato chips, lemonade and cookles were all exhausted. In the afternoon the program was changed.
