D. O. CLARK TO LEAVE OMAHA

Head of the Union Pacific Coal Company to Retire.

BACK TO PENNSYLVANIA HOME

Has Been in the Coal Business in the West for Forty-Three Years-- Was a Pioneer of the City of Omaha.

D. O. Clark, head of the coal service department of the Union Pacific, leaves Saturday for Pennsylvania, after forty-three years of work in the coal business of the west.

Mr. Clark came west when the Union Pacific was still unconnected with the western branch. Trains ran as far as the western border of Wyoming.

As a member of the old Wyoming Coal company, he came into the Union Pacific service when that company was consolidated with the railroad.

"Omaha has certainly grown in a marvelous manner since I first came here," said Mr. Clark Friday.

Many old-time railroad men will be at the station to say goodbye to Mr. Clark as an Omaha railroad man and a pioneer of Omaha.

Broad Outlet Furnished for Sugar, with Recent Dealers Are Enjoying Best Inquiry Noted in Several Months.

Drothy conditions in the east and exceedingly hot weather following rain-falls in the middle west were held responsible for the present unsatisfactory conditions in the market for canned peas, tomatoes and small fruits.

Housewives are busy canning fruits and are furnishing a broad outlet for sugar, with the result that sugar dealers are enjoying the best inquiry noted in several months.

Tomato plants have suffered severely from drought, and even a second planting has failed to bring about satisfactory results in many sections.

AD MEN TO STORM MR. SAMSON

Minions of the King Look for a Lively Time Monday.

JOBBER TO BE ON HAND, TOO

Samson Makes a Special Plea for the Wholesalers and Manufacturers to Come Out for This Initiation.

Wholesalers, jobbers and manufacturers are to participate in Samson's little weekly stunt at the den Monday night, also the Ad club.

In the matter of the latter, Samson gives it out that from the live-wire reputation of the club, he rather looks for his own minions to be engulfed in the excitement, adding as an afterthought, however, that he has assimilated a number of their kind before. In order to fully live up to its reputation, the Ad club depoters have been working overtime and promise some "doings" that will be more than full of the usual Ad club ginger.

To the wholesalers, jobbers and manufacturers, whom it is advised, come in a body from the different concerns, Samson issues an especially strong invitation, part of which runs as follows:

"We do this that we may get in closer touch with the men who are the bone and sinews of Omaha's business strength, and that we may convey to them the appreciation we, and all Omaha feel for their activities in building up our position as a market and shipping center. It is for them more than for any other class that Ak-Sar-Bee work is carried out, for we entertain their out-of-town customers through the summer and bring in thousands from outside districts in the fall, who make their purchases for the winter.

"During the recent convention of the Nebraska Press association, at which Omaha's hospitality quite won the hearts of the newspaper men, probably no entertainment pleased them better than that at the Den. Omaha took a large stride forward in the affections of the state at that meeting, for on the temper of the country press depends to a great extent the feeling of the people of the state towards us. Auto is Destroyed When Tank Explodes

Machine Owned by Charles Howard Goes Up in Smoke, Causing Loss of Fifteen Hundred.

A touring car owned by Charles Howard, who conducts an auto delivery at Fourteenth and Farnam, blew up and was destroyed by fire Thursday night at 10 o'clock while the driver, Doc Davis, was returning with a party from the grocers' and butchers' picnic. The machine was valued at $1,500.

No one was hurt, the members of the party having been out of the car at the time while repairs were being made by Travis. The accident occurred at Forty-second and Center streets. The stop was made necessary because of a leak in the gasoline tank.

WORLEY NOT HELD FOR IMPERSONATING OFFICER

Crawford Holds Private Detective May Display Authority as Legally Authorized.

When a private detective operating under authority of a regular agency incorporated under the laws of Nebraska claims to be an officer he is not impersonating a policeman.

Such was the decision of Judge Crawford in police court Friday in the case of Claude Worley of the Omaha Secret Service Detective agency, managed by E. E. McGinnis. Worley had been arrested Wednesday night for refusing to "move on" when ordered to by Policeman McCarthy. After displaying his star and commission he was hustled into the patrol wagon and locked up at the police station.

When the charge of impersonating an officer was heard by Judge Crawford, Attorney Charles Britt moved for the defendant's discharge on the ground that he was a legally authorized officer, acting

WOMAN BADLY BURNED TRYING TO SAVE HER MONEY

Flame from a Gas Explosion Moves Too Quickly and the Money is Lost.

While trying to save a roll of $75 in greenbacks during a fire at the residence of T. L. Jolliff, an employee of J. J. Hanighan, plumbing and heating contractor, Mrs. G. W. Packer, mother-in-law of Mr. Jolliff, was seriously burned about the hands and body at 125 1/2 Harvey street shortly before noon Friday.

The blaze started from an explosion of gas in a little stove in the kitchen on the second floor. The burner had inadvertently been left open and the flames from another burner ignited the escaping gas.

Mrs. Packer first attempted to extinguish the flames, which were fast spreading to the wood work and the dining room adjoining. Although an aged woman, Mrs. Packer made some fast moves to head off the flames and save her little store of money that had been stored away in a china receptacle in the dining room.

The fire gained such rapid headway that Mrs. Packer was powerless to save her roll of bills and she was obliged to look on while they were converted into ashes. The loss on the furniture will exceed $50, which is believed to be covered by insurance.
