MANUAL TRAINING MAKES MEN

Technical Course in Omaha High is Bringing Good Results.

BOYS MAKE USEFUL ARTICLES

Off-Repeated Complaint of Older Generation that Graduates of Present Day Are Good for Nothing is Refuted.

Serious consideration of the good that will come to a boy or girl in undertaking a course of study in the Omaha High school is always an important point, but in manual training the question is even more pertinent.
 Manual training and mechanical drawing, which constitutes the technical course, consists of partial training in the use of tools in the grade schools, and two years of practical work in the high school. The high school work demands that the student shall become practical with tools, but shall make a drawing of everything he produces.
 In the end the boy is usually capable of making for himself a useful article, such as a settee, a table or a chair. Some of the boys undertake more elaborate work, turning out clocks, cabinets, and pieces of furniture demanding the most exacting attention of the craftsman. Bought at a furniture store such articles would bring high prices.

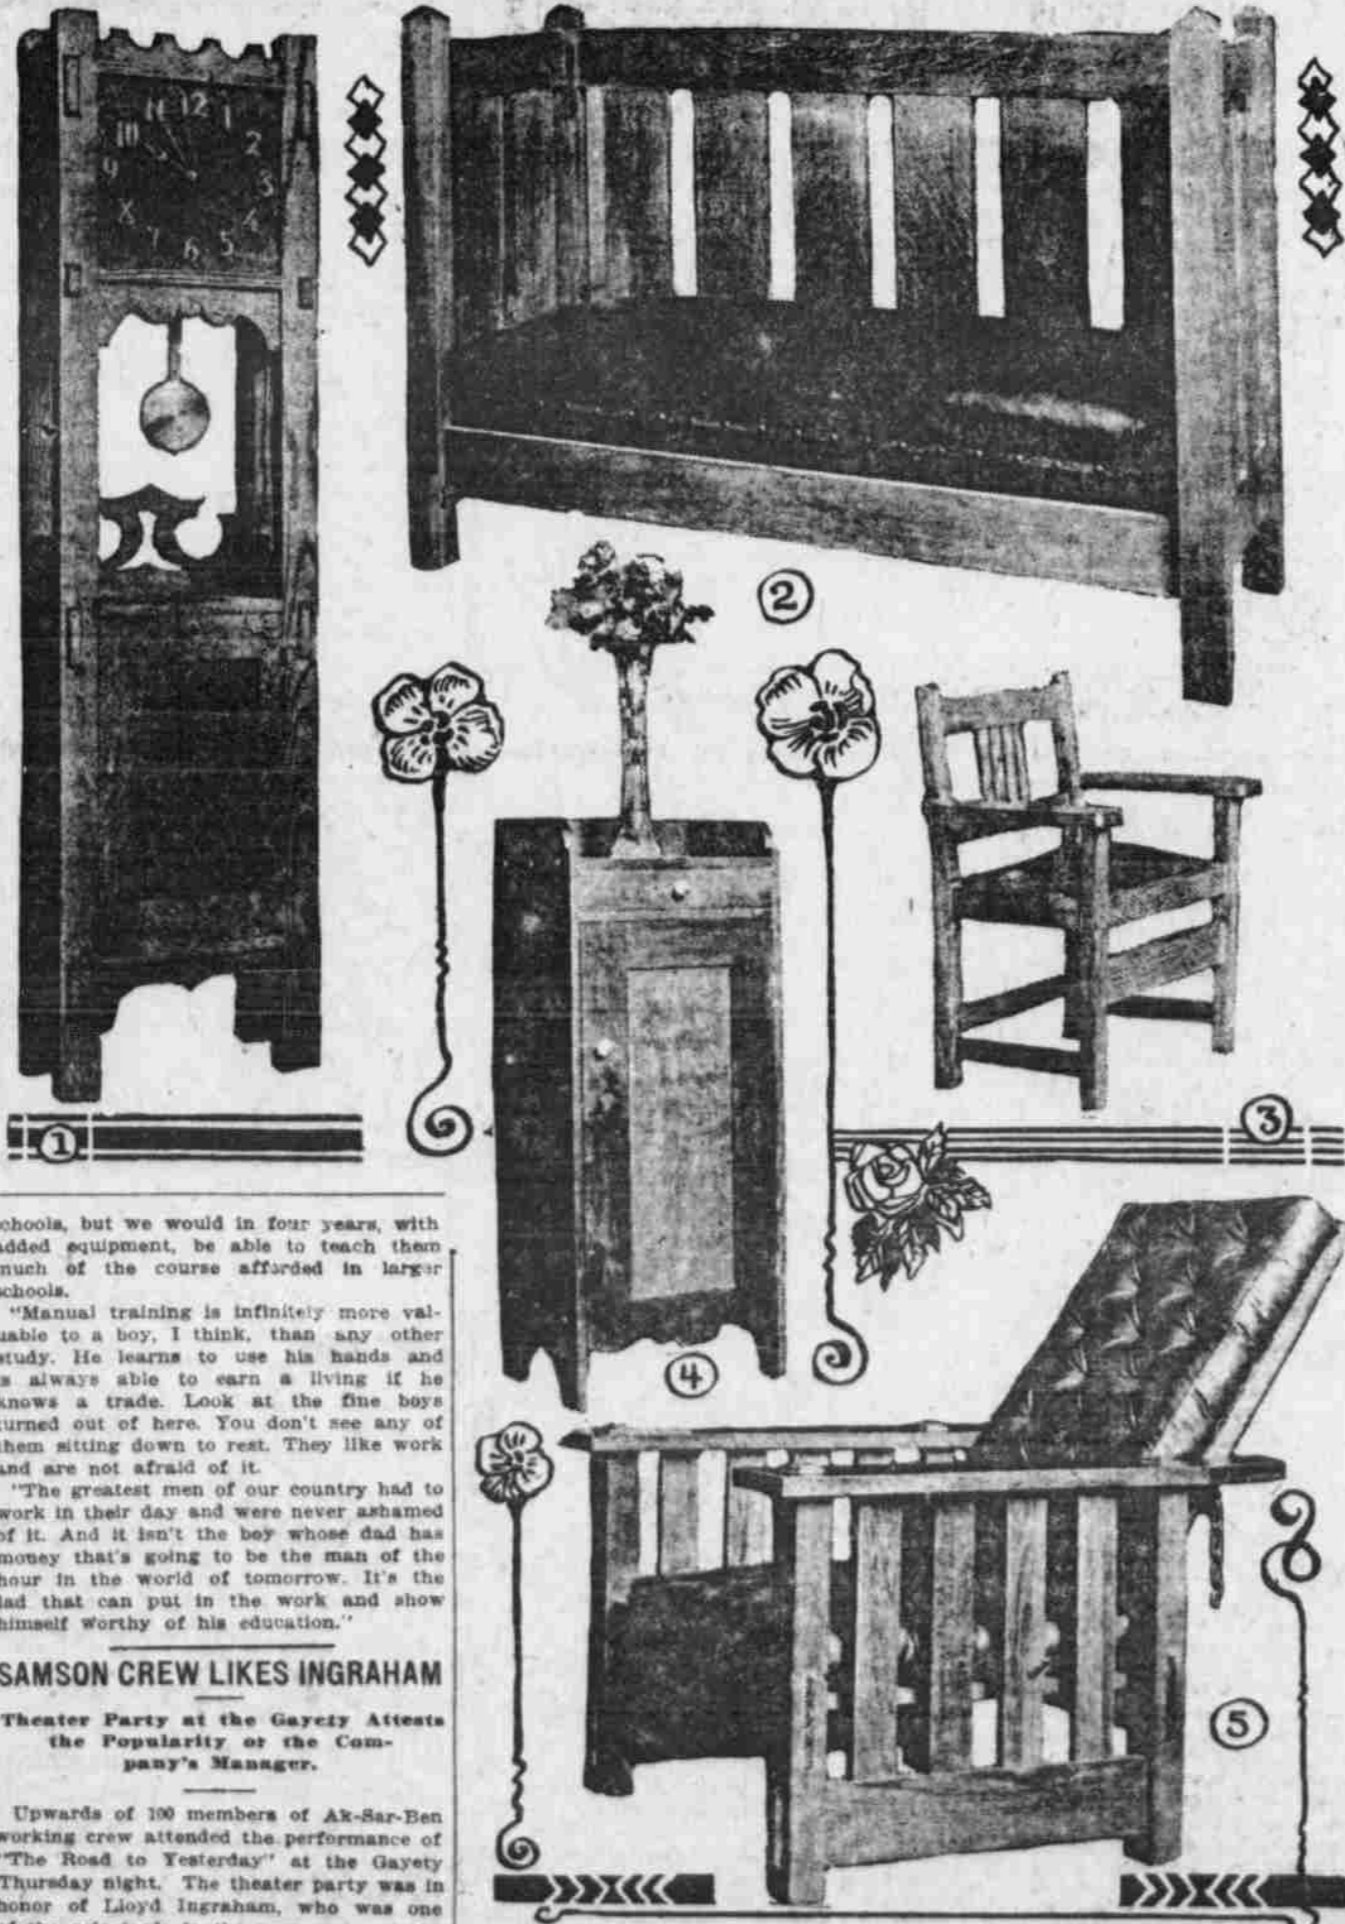

The oft repeated complaint of the older generation that a boy who graduated from the high school nowadays, is good for nothing, is answered well in any of the lads who has completed his two years of manual training. Not only is he able to do common carpentry or machine work with tools, but he is generally capable of doing difficult cabinet work in a style that would do credit to many an older man of the trade.

He Learns to Work.
 But most of all, the lad who has been two years in the department, under Prof. John E. Wigman, has learned to work. Mr. Wigman was never afraid of work himself, he declares, and he does not see why a lad who has enrolled in the manual training department should learn loafing under him. And ask any of the boys who have received credit for two years of completed work under him, and he will have only the highest praise for the man who has made him work, and through his system taught him that one great asset, industry.

Technical training is in the high school merely a starter of what a boy with a leaning for such work wishes to take. Upon graduation many boys go yearly to the north side to build, when it will be shifted again to a new home.
 Prof. Wigman has long wanted a four-year technical course in Omaha and is preaching that today. His ideas, gained from a study of the work in larger cities in the east, would enlarge the space allotted the boys taking the manual training and mechanical drawing, and if possible place them in a separate building.
 "Omaha is far behind other cities in its technical course for its boys and girls," declared Mr. Wigman. "Not that we lack anything for a two-year course, but that is not enough. The boy merely gets well started in two years."

Four-Year Course Needed.
 "If it were possible to have a separate building for the students in the technical courses and allow them a four year course of study, we would not have to send our boys east at great expense to gain this kind of an education. The two years' training the boys receive now qualifies them for entrance to the big technical

SAMSON CREW LIKES INGRAHAM

Theater Party at the Gayety Attests the Popularity of the Company's Manager.

Upwards of 100 members of Ak-Sar-Ben working crew attended the performance of "The Road to Yesterday" at the Gayety Thursday night. The theater party was in honor of Lloyd Ingraham, who was one of the principals in the near-ops at the den last summer. Mr. Ingraham made a speech of appreciation and was presented with a large bouquet. The Ak-Sar-Benters sang many of the songs in this season's opera, between the acts. A feature of the evening was the attempt to arrest Captain Dana of the police department, who has the role of "King Sakonuts" at the den this summer. Someone shouted "police," and the Gayety's house officer promptly responded, but the captain refused to be "pinched," much to the disgust of his colleagues, who did not believe him possessed of so mean a disposition.

IT STAGGERS IMAGINATION

File of Answers to Puzzles Taking On Immense Size.

WISHES GREAT GAME COMPLETED

One Man Says His Wife Gets Supper Late and He Thinks of Going West for Temporary Residence in Reno.

It quite staggers the imagination to think of the study represented by the mass of documents piled up in the huge vault on the second floor of The Bee building. This mass is composed of hundreds of answers to Booklovers' puzzles that have come in during the last four days. There are rather loose and carelessly prepared packages, and there are others of wonderful and meticulous neatness, in which toll and trouble and expense have not been spared. Here is one package in which every coupon with its picture and its exquisitely engraved title and name have been mounted on excellent paper and bound in what looks like parchment. The edges are decorated.

But here is another entirely the opposite. Some youngster has rolled his coupons together and tied them with a strong cord. The titles and names of books are scrawled in a bold, irregular hand. This condition of his coupons is no sign, however, that he has not as many answers correct as any of the others. This talk is simply about the appearance of the package.

Blue Ribbon on One.
 On the top of one stack is a package tied with blue baby ribbon. There are some heavy parcels. One has stiff paper enclosing the coupons. Some are enclosed in plain large envelopes.

Never before has such a couple of cords paper represented such a mass of effort. One gazing on the big pile would say there must be 5,000 of these packages. Yes, it looks as though there were 5,000, and there will be many more before the contest closes.

"I'll certainly be glad when this Booklovers' game is over," remarked a genial man in the business office of The Bee yesterday afternoon. "If it does not stop soon, there is going to be a Reno stunt in my family. I don't know whether my wife is going to live with me any longer or not. Since the contest began I haven't had supper on time, not once."
 "My wife and the woman next door are so interested in this contest that they get

MAN WHO ABUSES FAMILY IS SENT TO ROCK PILE

William Gerheart, Employed at the Y. M. C. A., Draws Fifteen Days.

William Gerheart, 22 years old, an employe of the Young Men's Christian association, was sentenced to fifteen days on the rock pile by Judge Crawford in police court Friday morning, charged with abusing his young wife and mother-in-law. The Gerhearts live at 2318 South Twenty-ninth street, and William has been working as general utility man at the Young Men's Christian association building for the last five months. His mother-in-law testified that whenever he drew his monthly pay of $35, it has been his custom to blow the money in for drink and then come home and abuse his wife, mother-in-law and two little babies.

BABY CAMP IS FOUND TO BE SELF-SUPPORTING

With the Contributions Already Made Camp Can Care for Itself.

With the contributions made at the entrance the baby camp has proven itself self-sustaining since its opening about three weeks ago. This fact was brought out at the monthly meeting of the visiting nurses, which was held in the Paxton hotel Friday morning.
 The report of the secretary showed that running expenses of the camp to date have been $35.50, while the receipts, including contributions and collections for care of babies, have been $31.50. The report showed that there are ten babies in the camp at the present time, and all doing well. The camp was discussed at the meeting at some length and a few minor changes in the detail working of it proposed.
 There will be no more meetings of the visiting nurses, aside from the executive committee this summer. During the last month 210 visits have been made to ninety-seven patients.
