

MAKING COMPLETE REVISION

Jobbers Greatly Benefited by Classification Committee.

MANY SUBJECTS CONSIDERED

As Interest of Omaha Jobbers J. M. Guild Pools with Others to Put Through Several Important Matters.

Commissioner J. M. Guild of the Commercial club returned from Milwaukee Saturday morning where he attended the meeting of the National Industrial Traffic League. In reference to the meeting Mr. Guild said: "What is almost a complete revision of the western classification is being made at Milwaukee. There the classification committee has been in session for several days, hearing the masters and shippers of the 1,000 odd items covered by the docket. The attendance is the largest in the history of classification work and the meeting itself is a milestone in that history. There are thirty-six general freight agents there and I left last night over 300 shippers already been heard, with a large number still to appear. The meeting will continue all next week, but will be of an executive nature to decide what action shall be taken on the presentations made. The extraordinary number of subjects considered is due to the fact that no meeting has been held by this classification committee for a year and a half and in addition to the usual changes asked for by the shippers themselves were the recommendations of the uniform classification committee towards a complete remodeling of the classification along uniform lines. For instance, the new classification when issued, will show 22 entirely new items not hitherto provided in specific manner. There will be little semblance to the present classification, which in the Milwaukee meeting has been completely gutted. "Any advances made will be offset by reductions in some instances and in the revision of the classification system attention has been paid to making it conform to commercial conditions and practices. One innovation will be the dropping of the term 'not otherwise specified,' which will be superseded by the use of the term 'not otherwise indexed by name.' The new classification will have an index so complete that any difficulty in locating a commodity will be impossible and the shipper will not have to locate a general heading and then hunt for a specific item through several pages as heretofore.

Protest Men There. Western jobbing interests were strongly represented, Kansas City by G. W. Wilson, commissioner Commercial club; St. Joseph by H. G. Krake, commissioner Commercial club; Sioux City by George T. Bell, commissioner traffic bureau; Omaha by J. M. Guild, commissioner Commercial club and Denver by F. W. Maxwell, secretary Colorado Manufacturers' association. These pooled their interests and being vitally interested in over fifty subjects, divided them equally among the five representatives, so that each man spoke to only ten or a dozen and spoke for all five points so that duplication was avoided and better results obtained.

In the interest of Omaha jobbers and manufacturers were presented the following five basic principles:

- Opposition to all less than carload reductions where no corresponding reduction is made in the carload rating.
- Objection to any extension of the mixed carload privilege.
- Approval of an high minimum weights as can reasonably be loaded in a car and reduction to the lowering of minimums in general.
- Objection to the elimination of L. C. L. and C. L. ratings now carried and the substitution of "any quantity" ratings.
- Objection to the cancellation of any carload rating existing here in continuous session for several days analyzing the proposed new rules. Their findings were incorporated into the resolutions, favoring some, disproving others and recommending innumerable modifications or changes."

Shallenberger Calls on Mayor Dahlman

But the Outcome of Their Meeting is Kept a Profound Secret—Convention Gossip.

Before Mayor J. C. Dahlman opened his office to the public Saturday, Ashton C. Shallenberger, ex-governor and ex-opponent now strangely enough a political ally, called upon him. He went on his way a short time later and as far as anybody has been able to discover outside of the secret councils of Dahlianism no offensive or defensive alliance was accomplished. As was remarked by one politician later in the morning: "It will take more than a common opposition to Metcalfe and Bryan to make Jim and Shallenberger travel in the same harness."

However, in spite of the fact that Shallenberger cannot hope for the support, which, according to his friends, is lacking, Dahlman in his fire eating reversion, there is a common ground of meeting in opposition to the "peerless" and Shallenberger assured Mayor Jim that he would be on hand at Fremont. He is on his way up into Wisconsin to fill chautauque dates, but will return to take his part in the battle of Fremont.

It is now about settled that the Douglas county delegation will take anti-Bryan resolutions to Fremont and if there is a ghost of a show of getting them through they will be offered to several members of the Dahlman club who offered to fight them through single handed whether anybody out in the state wanted them or not, but that is hardly in accord with the willness of Dahlman, who will not spring anything in a tight crisis unless he is reasonably sure of holding the convention in a vice as he held the Douglas county gathering. The resolutions are to be prepared by the same people who drew the new famous ones and if they ever see the light they will be interesting reading.

Fifty-One Bushels to Acre.

ONAWA, Ia., July 22.—(Special.)—Perhaps the largest yield of wheat ever threshed in this vicinity was that on the Huber farm near Onawa, occupied by Julius Waldner. On what has been closely estimated at forty-four acres there was threshed 2,500 bushels of winter wheat, making an average of fifty-one and one-fourth bushels per acre. The straw yield was also something enormous, there being eight settings. This land has until this year been a hard land pasture, but was tilled last year with five-inch till 100 feet apart. The cost of the was about $20 an acre, but the gross

DEMONS FIGHT SHY OF FREMONT

Big Duns Goes Fishing and O'Connor Loves Peace.

O'CONNOR TELLS OF MESSAGES

Recounts Wild Tales of the Fish He Caught in the Beautiful Trout Streams of Wyoming Near Saratoga Springs.

John J. O'Connor, lawyer, capitalist and long-time democratic war horse, has returned from a fishing trip to Saratoga Springs, Wyo. He was accompanied by his son and they caught speckled trout until they were tired of pulling them in. "But they won't allow you to carry any away," said Mr. O'Connor, "and I greatly regret we could not have brought a few mossed heads to our friends."

Speaking of messes, Mr. O'Connor let it be understood that he will not attend the democratic state convention at Fremont next Tuesday.

"No, I am not going," he said. "I am a man of peace, and my greatest pleasure is to see all the brethren dwell together in grace and unity. In the old days the democrats were the exemplars of the very best citizenship, and as is well known we always managed it so that harmony was the expected thing in our conventions. Now the other policy seems to prevail, and the fussy controversialists jumped into the limelight at every opportunity. So I willingly forego the joy I might otherwise feel at the chance to participate in a democratic convention, and will await results in calmness and with an open mind. I understand, though, several orators will be present to touch off a few remarks that may add to the pleasure of the observant people, especially the republicans."

CEPHALOPOD, WHAT IS IT?

Those Who Attend Ak-Sar-Ben Carnival Will Likely Find Out.

SAMSON AFTER ATTRACTIONS

Cephalopods Are Only a Few of the Many Interesting Freaks to Be on Exhibition During Samson's Week in October.

Cephalopods, what are they? No one seems to know just exactly, except Samson, lord high chamberlain to his majesty, King Ak-Sar-Ben, and even in fear of less majesty some have been bold enough to broach the theory that in this specific matter of the Cephalopods his assumption of knowledge is also more or less of a bluff.

In any case the Cephalopods are to be one of the numerous attractions at next fall's carnival, which opens this year on September 27, to run the usual ten days. Whether it be ignorance or only the eternal policy of mysterious silence in all affairs of the realm that bristles the tongue of the chamberlain, he keeps his own counsel in the weighty matter of the Cephalopods and all the subjects of the ruler of Quivera must wait until the carnival before their curiosity can be assuaged.

Under the relentless questioning of a group of reporters the chamberlain did relent enough to furnish the single crumb of information that the Cephalopods were 300-pound monsters from Panama. The con-

WESTERN PART OF STATE GETS A SOAKING FRIDAY

Alliance and Sheridan Divisions of the Burlington Get Some Good Showers.

The frequent rains of the last week has brightened up the corn prospect considerably. The present condition of the corn is very encouraging and a good crop is expected if conditions improve as they have during the last week.

The western part of the state received good soaking rains Friday, which improved all the crops greatly. Good showers fell all along the Alliance division of the Burlington route. From an inch to three inches were reported on the Sheridan division. The eastern part of the state appeared to have been forgotten, as only two or three towns reported rain and these were only light showers. Portions of Colorado received good showers, while Kansas shared the same fate as eastern Nebraska. The following towns reported rain Friday:

Edgemont, Hill City, Deadwood, Upton, Gillette, Clarmont, Newcastle, Siding, Bridgeport, Ardmore.

SHIRTWAIST SPOILS ROMANCE

Buttons Up the Back, Started a Row and the Wedding is Off.

One little rent in her embroidered shirtwaist prevented Miss Freda Walls of 22 Boyd street from carrying out a plan to elope with Willis Meredith, son of G. W. Meredith of 301 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn. The little rent, or rather a shirtwaist that buttoned up the back, was arrested for the young elopers getting arrested and later being sent home.

The couple decided to go to New Cumberland, W. Va., and get married unknown to their parents. Walking down Fifth avenue, young Meredith discovered a rent in Miss Walls' shirtwaist, and did not know what to do.

"It will never do to get married in that shirtwaist. We must hurry and get another one and then for the train and the wedding bells," he said.

They went to a Fifth avenue store. So anxious was the bride to get the train that Miss Walls just selected one and did not notice where the buttons were located. She then went into the ladies' retiring room in the Fifth Avenue arcade. Suddenly there was a shrill sound from behind the curtains: "Oh, Willis, come and help me; this shirtwaist buttons up the back."

Willis was on the job, all right. So was the lady in charge of the retiring room. She refused to allow him to enter. He persisted, and Miss Walls declared she would not have anyone interfere with Willis.

The woman in charge called an officer and the young elopers were hustled to Central station in a patrol wagon. Young Meredith finally secured his home on the telephone. His uncle, Thomas Meredith, later called and put up a forfeit for his release on a charge of disorderly conduct. He would not do as much for Miss Walls. Several hours later someone called and put up the necessary $30 to secure her release. She said: "Just to think my Willis allowed me to remain in here while he went away, I would not marry him now."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Mid-Summer Prices That Create a Desire to Buy

THE first three weeks of our July sale brought greater results than we expected. The hot weather, we thought, would keep buyers at home. So it did to an extent, but the bargains we offered brought forth the most reluctant—we actually created a desire to buy. Our prices were so low that sagacious buyers could not resist them. WE DID MUCH MORE BUSINESS THAN ANYONE COULD HAVE ANTICIPATED FOR JULY, AND WE PLEASED HUNDREDS OF CUSTOMERS.

Just another week of this sale remains—we have cut prices on new articles and expect the largest week's business of the year. You will wait a long time before you will witness another sale like this week's. We recognize that buyers insist on big cuts for hot weather—we have done deep enough cutting to satisfy the most hard-to-suit. Those beautiful and substantial furniture pieces have received the lowest possible prices consistent with the honest policy of a reliable house. On rugs, linoleums, curtains and draperies, in some instances, the prices have gone to actual cost. We will not need to argue if you will inspect these goods and their prices. You cannot leave this store without commenting on the wonderful values in that handsome furniture, pregnant with historic sentiment; in those soft, harmoniously colored rugs; and in those cool-looking draperies.
