PREMIER ASQUITH IS HOWLED DOWN

caused a momentary cessation of the verbal tornado and Asquith got out a couple of sentences, asserting that the principle of the parliamentary bill was affirmed as far back as 1871 and afterwards was confirmed at the general election.

Interruptions followed, the unionists shouting "cannot we hear the dictator?" Asquith went on:

"The House of Commons carried a resolution in favor of the bill in 1910 by a large majority, and but for the death of King Edward—

"Keep the king out of politics!" "who killed him—you did," roared in the opposition benches.

King George Intervenes.
LONDON, July 24.—King George has actively intervened in an attempt to steer the warring political factions to a peaceful goal. None is more anxious than he to avoid swamping the historic house of peers with a battalion of new creations, and if his personal friends' influence can effect it he will arrange some plan for overcoming the present deadlock.

The political situation is so out of gear that the king postponed his intended departure for Goodwood, where he was going today to visit the duke of Richmond and attend a four days' race meeting.

It was announced that his majesty would not leave the capital until the probable outcome of the unionist insurrection against the government's plan for enacting the veto bill could be clearly determined.

Premier Resumes His Talk.
During the next half the premier resumed:

"But for the death of the king and the temporary truce (cries of a 'bright sort of truce!') would have been passed at that session through all its stages. The constitutional conference proved that with the best will a settlement by agreement was impossible. This bill was presented to the lords. It was laid aside in favor of an alternative scheme put forward by Lord Lansdowne on behalf of the responsible leaders of the opposition."

The premier referred to criticisms of the lords' amendments and said: "A situation has been created (cries of 'by Redmond!'), from which there is only constitutional escape. That is unless the lords consent to restore this bill with, if you like, reasonable amendments consistent with its principle and purpose we shall be compelled to invoke the prerogative of the crown."

At this declaration the tumult was renewed in all its early strength. There were shouts of "His majesty is disgraced; you are no prime minister."

Asquith concluded and sat down he received an ovation from his supporters.

Mr. Balfour then rose and cries of "hush!" came from the ministerial benches, and the stillness was marked.

Adjustment Is Taken.
"I frankly regret that I was unable to hear the prime minister," began the opposition leader. "Everybody will understand that such proceedings as those in which his majesty's ministers have indulged cannot but excite the deep and passionate feelings of the great mass of the community."

"Nevertheless, my own feeling is that, however deep and passionate may be the resentment produced by that line of policy, however deep and just may be the indignation which we feel against those responsible for it in this house, at any rate, it is desirable that we should discuss them."

Here Home Secretary Churchill interrupted with: "Who set the example?"

The unionist had advised Balfour to ignore Churchill, but the leader declined the suggestion and said:

"I remember him when he was the ring-leader of a gang of disturbers."

Balfour continued: "The government has by this one stroke missed the prerogative of the crown to destroy the second chamber. The premier has arrogated to himself by the advice which he gave the crown the powers which no republican dictator has possessed. He has put himself above the constitution."

Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, at this point moved an adjournment. Frederick B. Smith tried to speak, but the radicals howled him down and the speaker suspended the sitting until tomorrow.

HINES BRINGS IN BOUTELL

him the president was anxious to have Lorimer elected. Mr. Aldrich last testified that he told Mr. Hines the president merely said Lorimer was "not objectionable," as a candidate.

Hines was asked about his efforts to induce senators to vote in favor of Lorimer retaining his seat last winter.

"Did you ever threaten any senator if he didn't vote as you desired?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"Absolutely no."

"This year you talk with Senator Borah on the Lorimer matter and in an unfriendly manner?"

"Oh, it was pleasant. He didn't vote as I wanted him to do."

Senator Kern called attention to a telegram Hines received from Lynn H. Dinkins, a banker of New Orleans, dated February 11, 1911. It read:

"Do you want Mississippi's support on reciprocity or the Illinois matter?"

Mr. Hines said he had talked in Washington with Mr. Dinkins, who probably had confused the Lorimer case and their reciprocity talk. Hines said that he had sought to influence the vote of the Mississippi senators on the Lorimer case.

NEBRASKA MAN DIRECTOR OF AGRICULTURE IN PHILIPPINES

FREDERIC W. TAYLOR

tered into with White for the publication of the article.

"Can you tell me what the cost to the Tribune is of this investigation?" asked Attorney Marble of the committee.

"About $20,000," Herz said. "They are the vouchers."

DEMOCRATS SEEK TO MUZZLE FIGHT

leaning toward the present incumbent of the White House say that if he is given time; the stand taken by him on reciprocity and tariff matters may yet prove justifiable.

Some Want La Follette.
But there are other republicans among the first crowd to rush here who do not look at the administration in the same light. Progressive Republican league officials and men who come from notably progressive communities, are just as firm in the belief that the present administration is at fault as they were several months ago.

Some of these speak "right out in meeting" what they have to say, while others are a bit more discreet and declare that they will express themselves through the medium of the ballot. With all, however, there is the one sentiment of La Follette for president, and one and all are loud in their praise of the Wisconsin senator for the next occupant of the White House.

Most republicans are certain, however, that all will end well in their convention, and that every delegate will return to his home renewed and strengthened for the fight which is to come this year and next. While they admit there may be a hitch as to presidential endorsement in regard to resolutions in the committee, they say they hardly believe it will attain sufficient dignity to be accorded a place on the floor of the convention.

Demos Fear Dissension.
In the democratic camp, however, there is a distinct cry for harmony in addition to those who passed through this city on the way to the convention are united in asserting that strenuous efforts should be made to get together, if possible. It was intimated by some of the visitors that the convention should be deliberately starting an affair and that both sides would have to fight from their present positions before the desired end could be reached.

The organization of the party is believed to stand for a Harmon endorsement, while the Bryan followers are staunch in the belief that the convention should take no action in that line.

On the probable action of the convention, to which he is a delegate, George W. Borge says that he does not look for any open quarrel between the Bryan and the anti-Bryan forces. He says that he cannot conceive of any deliberately starting anything of the kind. He declares that if anything intended as a slap at Bryan is started there will be the liveliest time seen at a political convention in many years.

Devine for War.
John M. Devine, who represents the radical anti-Bryan element of Lancaster county, is stirring up his loins for a conflict, but is not sure anything will happen. It is in the nature of a dig at the year, but he will present all the same he does not require a vote to make his influence in any democratic convention felt.

Senator Morehead Talks.
Senator John H. Morehead of Falls City, whose designs on the gubernatorial chair are said to be well defined, asserted today that he did not see why any of the democrats should want to stir up a row in regard to any proposition that might come up.

"I have known Mike Harrington a long time and know him well. I have confidence in the man, and feel that he will perform the duties of chairman of the convention in tip-top shape. Mike isn't going around with a chip on his shoulder, and I do not think that he will be inclined to start a fray as some people have predicted. If the democrats, not any particular faction, but every one of them, have a genuine desire for harmony, he money will be present at Fremont, and you can't get around it."

"Certainly by this time men of every party know that the wider a breach in party ranks becomes, the harder it is to mend. It would hardly be showing good judgment to make an attempt to widen the breach in the democratic party at the present time, if there is one, simply because one side expects to get even with the other side."

Democrats all over the state are closer together than they have been for some time and by tomorrow night I forecast that they will be even closer. We have a presidential fight coming on and we can win out if we pull together—and we will. The country and the party are too large for differences on state matters to thrust themselves in the way of a united and concentrated action."

Doctor Tells Cause and Cure of Wrinkles

(From Boston Transcript)

"Stop to consider what produces wrinkles and sagging of skin," said Dr. Elizabeth Elin at the Woman's Club last evening. "Premature aging, mal-nutrition, etc., cause the flesh to shrink, lose its youthful plumpness and firmness. The skin then is too large for the flesh underneath; it sags fit tightly and snugly as it used to—it wrinkles or sags."

It must be plain that to tighten the skin, make it fit the face perfectly in every place, will effectually remove the hateful wrinkles and bagginess. This is easily and harmlessly accomplished by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel and using the solution as a face lotion. The ingredients you can get at any drug store. The result is surprising. The skin immediately tightens up, becoming firm and fresh as in youth. Every wrinkle and sag is affected at once."

CONSTANTINOPLE HAS BIG FIRE

on the south and the Bosphorus on the east, with the Golden Horn an inlet of the Bosphorus has a sea front of eight miles. On the west it is walled. This district contains the Seraglio, the sultan's palace, the principal mosques, the museums, the public offices, the baths and the bazaars and the remains of ancient Constantinople. Here chiefly reside the Turks, Jews, Armenians and Greeks.

LONG RECORD OF COSTLY FIRES

Constantinople has frequently suffered from conflagrations.

Constantinople has a long and disastrous fire record without going further back than the nineteenth century. In 1816 a large part of the city was destroyed—12,000 dwellings, besides warehouses and other structures, went down before the flames. The value of the property destroyed on this occasion could not be estimated, but was not so great as would have been occasioned by a fire of like proportions in other cities, the greater part of the dwellings and shops in Constantinople being flimsy, wooden structures. In 1823 the city was again fire swept, 15,000 buildings being destroyed, with great loss of life. Some 2,500 shops and 500 houses, including several palaces, were destroyed in 1848. Again, in 1870, the greater part of the suburb of Pera was destroyed, including the English embassy and 7,000 houses.

There has been no fire department in the Turkish capital worthy of the name, the engines being the old-fashioned hand-pumped and the hose but little larger than that used in lawn sprinkling. Great improvements in the municipal machinery of the city had been projected by the new government, but it is evident the fire fighting division, if modernized at all, was as helpless in the latest disaster as the department was in the disasters of the last century.

STRIKE RIOT IN CLEVELAND

Two Men Wounded in Exchange of Shots at Garment Factory

CLEVELAND, O., July 24.—More than sixty shots were exchanged between strikers and guards in a garment strikers' riot today. Two strikers were wounded and the police made many arrests and restored order. The rioting occurred at the home of Charles Sperling, father of E. Sperling, of the E. Sperling & Co. cloak makers.

Why Should I Use Cuticura Soap?

"There is nothing the matter with my skin, and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles.

For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps.

It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical.

Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. G, Boston, for a liberal sample cake, together with a thirty-two-page book on the skin and hair.

Harry Haskell Has New Position on Bee

Thirty-Eight Years of Continuous Service as Foreman and Superintendent Just Ended.

After thirty-eight years of continuous service with The Bee, and seeing it through its fortieth anniversary, H. A. Haskell has been relieved of the responsibility devolving upon him as mechanical superintendent, and Thomas F. Doyle, night foreman, succeeds to the work.

The change does not mark the retirement of Mr. Haskell, but practically puts him on the emeritus list in recognition of his valuable service to the paper. Mr. Haskell will continue at the old stand, but without the necessity of keeping the strenuous pace of newspaper production. Mr. Haskell first came into the employ of The Bee in 1873. He is a stockholder and one of the directors of the corporation. During the twenty years he has had supervision of the composing and mechanical departments he has always had the good will and most cordial relations with those working under him.

Bigger, Better, Bustier—That is what advertising in The Bee will do for your business.
