Mr. Timberman jumped down from as the woman, after talking of her hus-band, concluded: "I have nothing more the pursuer approached. He attempted to to live for," and placed the deadly tablets stop the woman and was struck over the head with the sprinkling can, which cut a long gash in his scalp, necessitating the calling of a surgeon.

Breaks Plate Glass. After attacking Timberman Anna Reynek continued to the front of the house, where she smashed a plate glass window with the can and then raced out onto the street, where she chased passersby. Going back to her mother's house, she threw the can away and grasped her mother by the throat and choked her until the latter was black Wilcox had recently visited, were talking in the face. Then with a flendish yell she ran through vacant lots to her house, where she closed all the shutters and barred her doors.

When the police knocked at her door she threatenued to kill them if they came in the house. One officer went to a window and the crazed woman threw it open, exhibiting herself in a dismantled condition, wellding a large club, threatening to kill the officer if he tried to enter. ### Strategy In Advertising The Climax of Salesmanship-in-Print

The battles of advertising are not won today by men with the largest

Three times in five they are won by men who start with but limited resources. Five times in five, when rightly directed, they are won without any large risk. In a good many cases there is no stake at all. There is no long waiting no serious uncertainty - no drawn-out period when expense overtops result. One gets his answer immediately. Most successful advertising pays dividends from the start. Impossible things are not started at all. And a pretty large part of modern-day advertising finances itself.

Nation - wide distribution and a profitable sale are attained in two months, sometimes.

Weeks do the work of years. Midgets grow to monsters with amazing rapidity. Trade conditions are changed Formidable competition, long intrenched, has been almost wiped out by a single maneuver.

All because of a new-born science, called Strategy in Advertising.

An advertising campaign of the modern kind is based on exact information.

The attitude of consumers is learned by house - to - house canvass. Trade conditions and competition are learned by a dealer canvass. Selling points are developed by actual selling.

Ten thousand sources are sometimes searched for light on a single problem.

The well-advised advertiser of 1911 ventures nothing on guesswork and Selling methods today are based on others' experiences, garnered by a wonderful system.

Problems are solved by learning how others have solved them. Pitfalls are avoided by knowing others' mistakes.

Each new undertaking is piloted now by a myriad recorded experiences. As a result, men are sure of their ground. Errors rarely occur. One takes the short way to his object.

How all this is accomplished is told in a book-a remarkable book which gives a new aspect to advertising. This book, for the first time, puts into print the secrets of our success.

To show how things can be done it cites countless examples of how things have been done.

Any man with a selling problem is welcome to this book. And every such man should have it.

Cut out this reminder; put it in your pocket. Then, when convenient, write us for the book.
