RUSSIAN LOTTERY THRIVES

State Has Now Extended Operation to Greater Limits.

PUBLIC TREASURY BENEFICIARY

Reform of Railroad Ticket Tax Proposed in Germany—Dr. Richter is Still Held for Ransom in Greece.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—The state of Prussia, which, unlike the United States, does not draw upon lotteries but derives no inconsiderable revenue from a state owned and managed lottery, has concluded a contract with Bavaria, Baden and Wurttemberg, extending the operations of the Prussian state lottery to these states. For this the Prussian lottery will pay Bavaria alone $504,000 per year for each of the first five years of the contract and thereafter $339,000 on every 50 lottery ticket sold in their territory. The arrangements with the other states have not been published. For this the three states which have hitherto had no lotteries of their own and have forbidden the operation of other lotteries, the arrangement gives a most welcome addition to their revenue without any corresponding risk or burden on their subjects, while for Prussia it is one step nearer the realization of the imperial lottery monopoly, toward which she has been striving since the foundation of the empire in 1871. Only Saxony and the city of Hamburg now remain outside of the fold and the absorption of their lotteries is thought to be a matter of only a short time.

While the price paid the southern states for their participation in the lottery is large, Prussia can well afford it, the net annual revenue from the state lottery being about $2,000,000. The annual receipts of the lottery, which now are more than $2,000,000, will of course be largely increased when the sale of the tickets can be pushed in the South German states, an increase from the present number of 200,000 tickets included in each semi-annual drawing to 400,000 or 600,000 being contemplated.

Parliamentary Program.
A lengthy program of legislative work has been drawn up for the Imperial Parliament to deal with on its resumption after the long summer vacation, although it is fully expected that most of it will be carried over to the succeeding Reichstag, to be elected at the end of the year. In the first place, a bill to reform the railroad ticket tax, which in its present form gives rise to considerable complaint, will occupy attention. Then comes a bill to provide for persons injured while rescuing others from peril, while better provision for sailors hurt during their duty aboard ship is to be asked for. Further bills deal with the liability of surface-car companies for accidents, and amendments of the espionage laws and the patent laws are to be presented. A very stringent measure for the punishment of fraud adulterators has also been filed.

LASCARS MAN BRITISH SHIPS

Chinese Sailors Also Being Called Into Service Numerously.

WHITE SAILORS IN ANGRY MOOD

Movement Being Organized to Force the Intruders to Quit—Japan and Russia Apprehended Concerning Manchuria.
LONDON, Aug. 15.—Forty-five thousand Chinese and Lascar sailors are employed on British ships. During the last two years 20,000 Chinese sailors have been brought into the country and the number increases every year. These are the figures published by the Seaman's union. Havecock Wilson, the head of the union, declares that British sailors must fight the Oriental competition. He does not believe in an appeal to Parliament, for many of the Chinese, and practically all of the Lascars, are British subjects, a fact which makes legislation against them impossible. His plan is to have the labor unions combine to prevent any ship employing Oriental hands from being loaded or discharged in the ports of the United Kingdom.
On the part of the ship owners the argument is urged that Chinese sailors are more faithful, more amenable to discipline and—a point which the English seafarers present bitterly—are more efficient. That

RUSSIA AND JAPAN APPREHENDED

The British and American governments have now agreed in detail, and Germany in principle, to the assurances to be given to Russia and Japan, who complained of the clause in the Manchurian loan agreement providing that future loans should be awarded to the same parties.

This Japan and Russia construed to mean a monopoly. It has now been decided by the three powers named, and France is expected also to comply, that either a clause shall be added to the agreement or that an endorsement will be made thereon, giving in detail the purposes for which the loan is to be used and assuring Japan and Russia that the clause complained of does not establish a monopoly in Chinese loans.
"Come aboard to join, sir!" With these words the prince of Wales, heir to the throne, made his formal entry into his majesty's navy on the first day of the present month, in this respect, as in every other, carrying out the forms and regulations prescribed for midshipmen joining their ship for the first time.
The prince, while he will have to perform the same duties as other midshipmen, and will have additional work to do, his being heard to coach and instruct him in all manner of subjects, is not likely to have the same rough work that fell to his father when he was in the navy. The great

The prince obtains his first experience afloat aboard the Hindustan, not one of the newest, but still a modern battleship. He is not a commissioned officer, but subordinate to warrant officers (gunners, boatswains, carpenters and artificers engineers), and with them the future "sovereign" will live and move in the gunroom of his ship. He will be assigned to a watch and will be allotted a subdivision of seamen, for whose behavior, smartness and work he will be held responsible by the lieutenant in control of the subdivision. However, his most important work is the acquisition of nautical knowledge to which the greater part of his time must be given. Shooting in the protectorate appears to be on the decline from the reports received by the colonial office.

Elephants were the most valuable game on account of their ivory, but under the licensing system it has hardly been worth while from a business standpoint for a man to go to the expense of killing the small number permitted. The governor of Uganda makes serious complaint of the elephant pest.
"Owing to the rapidly decreasing number of licenses which are being taken out, and the consequent immunity of the elephants from attack," he writes, "these animals, which have always been a source of danger to the inhabitants and of damage to crops, have become still more dangerous and destructive, and they are becoming bolder in approaching inhabited areas."
