MOTHER SAVES GIRL'S LIFE

Bite of Rattlesnake Has Little Effect When Treated in Heroic Fashion.

PIERRE, S. D., Aug. 30.—Murtie Olson, a 3-year-old girl of Lantry, was bitten in the leg by a rattlesnake and was hurried to her home. Her mother considered the case as one which required heroic action, and after using a mixture above the wound slashed with a table knife the place where the fangs had entered and washed out the wound with kerosene. Later she covered it with salt, then waited for a physician who had been called. The result of this treatment was that there was but little swelling from the bite and the child is walking about today. Little the worse for the experience.

WIRELESS OPERATOR IS HERO

Boy on Liner Rigs Up Second Station When First is Swept Away.

CONTINUES CALL THROUGH STORM Passengers and Part of Crew of Lexington, Stranded Off South Carolina, Taken Off by Revenue Cutter.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 30.—To the courage of Wireless Operator Scheetz, a 16-year-old lad, the liner Lexington's twelve passengers and crew of forty-four say they owe their lives. Storm-racked for twenty-four hours, its nose driven deep in the sea, dashing over it, the Lexington threatened to break up and fling its human cargo to death in the seething waters. But Scheetz, the wireless operator, persistently flicked out his call for help and kept the terror-stricken passengers from abandoning all hope. Finally a terrific wave swept the ship and wrecked the wireless station on board.

For a moment it seemed that hope was dashed away, but Scheetz climbed into the rigging and hastily fixed up a new station from the rigging and by means of the spray Scheetz sent out his plea for aid. Suddenly through the storm he was answered by the revenue cutter Yamacraw, which had heard his call and came on the way to save the lives of the Lexington's crew and passengers.

The passengers and four of the Lexington's crew were brought here today by the Yamacraw, which left the captain and the rest of the crew on board. Two firemen were reported to have been burned to death and a third terribly scalded when the vessel grounded. First Officer Chamberlain fractured his right shoulder.

Captain Stranded at Sea. The Lexington, tossed about for hours by the hurricane of Sunday night and Monday morning, Captain Connally, almost naked and half frozen, stood heroically at the wheel and the stokers worked desperately while standing up to their arm pits in water. They tried in vain to increase the small pressure of steam to obtain the Lexington to steer away from the treacherous shore, toward which they finally were blown and grounded. Captain Connally, a veteran in the service of the Merchants and Miners line, declares that the hurricane was the worst of his experience at sea.

All passengers were huddled in the social hall equipped with life preservers and not a few fervent prayers were offered that they might see the shore again.

When urged yesterday by the officers of the Yamacraw that he abandon his boat, Captain Connally declared he would remain with her until only a mast was left to hang to.

The United States revenue cutter Yamacraw finally got the passengers on board and carried them to Charleston.

Damage Over Millions. With street cars running, except on the line to the navy yard, electric power available for commercial purposes and telephone service resumed, conditions in Charleston are fast becoming normal. Thousands of men are clearing away the debris left by the hurricane of Sunday night.

The damage done here will total more than $1,000,000. Fifteen persons are known to have perished and it is feared that reports from exposed islands will swell the death list and the property damage is reported in excess of $3,000,000, torpedo boats being badly damaged and buildings injured.

Search for Disabled Vessels. WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A flying squadron of five revenue cutters is today searching the Atlantic coast from Key West to New York for ships which may have been caught in the hurricane on Monday.

While not classing President Taft with the progressives and not designating him one of them, Senator Brown believes that he has any ideas that are in accord with theirs and upon this subject he says:

President Taft has outlined a plan of action that is perfectly consistent with the ideas of the progressives, or insurgents, if they are sometimes called. My idea is that in 1912 he will represent the republican nomination for the presidency and will be elected beyond any question of doubt.

Regarding the prospect of a strike by the railroad shippers of the country Senator Brown remarked that settling labor and their employees is something that does not come within the scope of his duties, but expressed the opinion that the time is coming when the government, through its representatives in congress, or otherwise, will have to step in and take a hand to prevent the progressive and the insurgent from the striking of others. The senator sees arbitration as a possible remedy and a preventive of possible strikes in the not very far distant future. He remembers the time when it was contended that it was not possible for the government, through its representatives to regulate freight and passenger rates, but this has been accomplished and he also looks forward to the time when labor difficulties may be settled by arbitration and that without the public suffering any inconvenience and without the railroad and the employees losing any of their rights.

Boys in Reformatory School Fight Fire

Blaze in Laundry at Randall's Island, New York, Imperils Lives of Hundred Women.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Two hundred boys, members of the voluntary fire department of Randall's Island, where the city has a reformatory school and other corrective institutions, fought a fire early today that imperiled the lives of 125 women employed in the big laundry building and subdued it after a two hours' struggle.

There was a panic among the inmates of the various institutions when the steam siren screamed the alarm. The employees of the laundry who slept on the top floor of the building crowded to the windows and got out by the fire escapes clad only in night attire. The blaze was confined to the ground floor of the three-story building. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Quarter Million to Gates' Nephew with His College Degree

Financier's Will Makes Conditional Gift—Estate Estimated at $38,000,000.

AURORA, Ill., Aug. 30.—Henry Baker, 21 years old, of St. Charles, Ill., only nephew of the late John W. Gates, can testify "that education pays."

By the terms of the late financier's will, just read in private today, young Baker will get $200,000 if he graduates from college. He is left $50,000 with which to pay his course through school. He intends to enter Harvard university this fall.

Mrs. Lucerne Angell, a blind sister-in-law of Mr. Gates, is left $100,000, while her daughter, Dolores Angell, 10 years old, is left $100,000 in trust. She gets the money when she is 21 years old.

C. J. Baker, who married a sister of Mr. Gates' wife, is left $21,000 and a farm near St. Charles valued at $50,000. His wife, is left $25,000.

Henry Baker, the young man to whom Gates had willed the provision for a quarter million dollars, was always a great favorite of Gates.

"Henry is a bright boy. He is a lad who takes an interest in foot ball as well as studies and that is the right kind," Mr. White once said. He told a friend: "I want the boy to go to college. He will find that an education will mean more to him than all the money in the world."

Faculty Changes at Dakota Wesleyan

Prof. Hardy Goes to Northwestern, Prof. Warfield to Denver and Miss White to China.

MITCHELL, S. D., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—Three members of Dakota Wesleyan university faculty will retire with the beginning of the fall term and will go to other places. Prof. C. D. Hardy, teacher of English and elocution, has been with the college for six years and is a graduate of it.

He goes to Northwestern university at Evanston and will have a fine place on the faculty. Prof. G. W. Warfield gives up his chair of political and social science and will be associated with the Denver (Colo.) university in the same capacity.

Prof. Warfield spent a year in Missouri under the direction of the Russell Sage foundation investigating the conditions of the poor of that state. Miss Annie Laura White leaves next month for some point in China, having been with the university for four or five years. She will be under the direction of the northwestern branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society. The local society of the Methodist church of this city will pay the salary and expenses of Miss White for three years.

POLITICS REVIEWED BY BROWN

one and one that will win at the polls next November. On the other hand, he regards the democratic ticket as a party that has no chance of success.

The senator has not made any arrangements relative to taking a hand in the coming political campaign, but while talking along this line, he remarked:

"If the service of the republican committee and if the members want me to take the stump, I will be ready to go out and make some speeches for the candidates."

FABLE OF UNWISE BROTHERS

How They Went to Prison for Stealing from Rich People.

NOT IN CLASS OF WALLINGFORD So They Delayed Game Until Contest Came to an End and Then They Went to Work for Wealthy with Wheelbarrow.

Once upon a time two brothers entered a great booklover's contest. They were the children of poor people, and it made their hearts glad to think that perhaps they would win an automobile and be able to take their old mother out for a joy ride.

"We will run over the haughty rich children that live in the marble mansion on the hill," one of the enthusiastic contestants said, "and read old mother will be so pleased!"

And they grew so cheered, thinking over their dreams, that they hid behind a fence, and when the haughty rich children came along in their dog cart the two poor brothers soaked them with rocks and went home rejoicing over the discomfort of the idle rich.

Wanted Title Catalogue. Now, both brothers wanted to buy a title catalogue and one of them wanted to give several extra answers to the pictures; but neither of them thought it advisable to spend the money at once. So they kept delaying. Then they both decided they did not need the catalogue, but that they would spend their money for extra coupons. Extra coupons were bought. Now, of course, they were wise in buying the extra coupons, but they also were unwise in purchasing a title catalogue.

"I will win this automobile without the use of a title catalogue," said the older of the brothers, for, of course, not being twins, one of the brothers was older than the other.

"I will win the California land," remarked the other brother, full of hope. "While you are riding away in your machine, giving the idle rich the honk honk! and making your motor roar, I shall be in California turning the rich soil into golden dollars."

But both brothers were figuring incorrectly, as you shall see.

Came to an End. Well, the contest came to an end--all contests, as well as everything else, must come to an end--even as the administration of one great political party must come to an end, even as W. Bryan's running for office will come to a close. When the contest did come to an end, the brothers began answering their extra coupons, but they found they were not getting along very well. They did not seem to have the right answers. So they decided to buy a catalogue, and then they discovered there was no money.

Their old mother had taken it for food! Finally the brothers took the money their mother had made at washing for the rich family in the mansion on the hill and made a few lines for the postoffice to send for a catalogue.

But, alas, contrary to the story books, the letter did not reach the business office in time, and the brothers received their catalogue too late to return the answers.

Lost Out on Prices. So the poor children did not get their prize. Instead of getting an auto, they had to work while the rich people who stole the money from them. Finally they sank so low that they stole back the money the rich children had stolen from them.

For that, of course, they were sent to prison.

At the very end of the contest, the brothers were told that they were not to be considered for the contest, and that they were to be sent to prison.

Do forewarned--that's forewarning enough for any one. If you cannot be a J. Rufus Wallingford, you have no license to attract the attention of George M. Cohan. He wants live ones.

Those title catalogues which the poor children did not get soon enough are on sale at the business office of The Bee for 25 cents. They will be mailed to any address for 5 cents extra. Remittance must accompany all orders, either for catalogues or coupons.

Answers to Booklovers. Will you please advise through your paper whether any of the pictures represented in this contest will have the same answer as in the previous contest--Omaha.

To answer this question with a "yes" or "no" would be giving contestants the titles of seventy-five books which would or would not be used. None of the drawings in the first contest will be used, though some of the same titles may be selected or they may not be selected.

SOUTH DAKOTA FARMERS WHO JUMPED TOO SOON

One Tenant, Seized by Death, Abandoned Crop Which Sold for Twenty-Five Hundred.

PIERRE, S. D., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—Local papers over the state are recording a number of instances where farmers in South Dakota jumped too soon on account of the weather conditions in June and early in July. One such in Faulk county sold his crop to two young men early in July for $50 and left the state. The purchasers secured 77 bushels of wheat from the tract they purchased at that price. Another instance is that of a family which came from Iowa last spring and leased a tract in southern Hughes county. They were scared by the June and July outlook and started back for Iowa about the middle of July, turning over the crop to the owner of the land for any claims he might have against them for the lease of the land. Now the owner of the tract places the value of the crop so left at from $2,500 to $2,700, and he is ahead that much, and the tenants out that sum, including their moving expenses and putting in the crop. Just a few days more would have meant profit in both these cases to the people doing the seeding, but they were afraid to hold on.

Adding the Daintiness. No matter how well gown ed women are, they seem to require an added touch that fashionable jewelry gives in order to secure that daintiness which one calls to mind in the ideally a t t i e d person. The jewelry acts as an accompaniment in giving beauty to a woman's appearance. In society centers earrings are worn extensively, and the women without them cannot be so fashionably dressed.
