AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Possibility New Packing Concern Will Build in This City.

STOCK YARDS MAY BRANCH OUT
Desired by Local Company of Deal to Get Control of More Land—May Enforce Charter as to Unions.

A persistent report is in circulation that the Nelson Morris Packing company of Kansas City and Chicago will build and equip a plant on the Evans tract south of Swift's plant somewhere on L between Thirtieth and Thirty-third street.

North of L on Sharp street it is asserted the firm of Schwarzhild & Sinsberger will build for the Missouri Milk association a large cannery of housing in the neighborhood of the stock yards.

It is also said that the Union Stock yards is in the market for that portion of land extending from Q street to Twenty-ninth street.

Thomas Hector, the real estate agent said to be handling the deal for the stock yards people, could not be reached yesterday afternoon and one of the stock yards officials when asked about the proposed extension denied all knowledge of the matter.

J. P. Muldoon of Rabbits admitted that he was in the market for the property in question, but said he was acting in the interest of his own family. He denied all knowledge of the Nelson Morris deal.

One of the best informed men of the city, in speaking of the matter, said: "These are solid facts. It may be that the company in question are not ready to give out the information as yet, but the reports are no less true."

Unions for City Employees.
The fire and police board must now meet the demands of laborites that they enforce that clause of the city charter requiring all employees of the city to be affiliated with some such organization. The board, it is understood, will be called upon to force the firemen and police to join with them.

The latest development is the outcome of a steady policy maintained by "Federal Union No. 111" to enforce the charter requirements looking to the enrollment of all city employees.

Wednesday night the school board in deference to petitions from the "Federal union" offered a resolution endorsing and recommending that all teachers and employees of the school district affiliate with the laboring men of the city.

"If the charter means anything," said Thomas Conroy, president of Federal Union No. 111, "it means that its mandates are to be obeyed. It is not a question of preference with the board, it is a question whether or not they will enforce the requirements of the city charter in the departments under their jurisdiction."

"The employees of the city are asking to join with us or we will know the reason why."

All the Newest Novelties.
IN LADIES' FOOTWEAR WILL SOON BE IN.

CRIBBY.
Joe Lechick Comes to Life.

Joe Lechick, the man who was declared dead by the coroner and police a few days ago revived sufficiently yesterday morning to bring a charge of selling liquor without a permit against his erstwhile boss Mike Bonovina of 122 E. street.

City Attorney Murphy, acting for the prosecution, examined Joe.

"Your name?" asked the attorney.

"Joe Lechick."

"Oh, but you're dead," interposed Justice Callahan. "The police reported you dead, you're dead."

But Joe would not remain dead for anyone. He said that Mike Bonovina, his quondam boarding boss, was in the habit of selling beer and whisky at 122 E. street. Mike admitted that he had not a license. Joe said the beer cost 10 cents a bottle.

"That's better than I can do," said the city attorney.

Justice Callahan concurred with the opinion of Mr. Murphy. "It is mighty cheap as that," said the justice.

Mike after protesting to his former tenant that it was terrible to tell lies against innocent men, blantly explained to the court that he always gave away beer and whisky in honor of those who left his boarding house for the old country, and of spreading the partying power function. When Bonovina deposed that his sense of generosity compelled him to serve free beer to honor of penniless countrymen bound for the old country, the outraged sense of the court's credulity rose up in rebellion and Mike got 10 and cents.

Immediately after the trial Mike stippled his intention of suing Joe Lechick for rent.

Woolens

One of the greatest industries of this country is the woolen industry. Different qualities are made but some "woolens" would die from fright if they saw a piece of wool. Some cloths with some wool and mostly cotton are called "commercially" all wool. There is a method of determining whether a piece of cloth is strictly all wool or not. By using caustic soda we can easily determine the amount of wool in clothing. The process is called the "boiling out" process. It is employed by all reputable concerns as a protection to their customers. When a garment is sold as wool there is no reason why it should be nearly so. It should be only all wool. We call a spade "a spade."

RECIPE TO FIND FRESHNESS

New a Branch Cub Reporter Got Stuck in the Loyal Hotel Office.

"Anything fresh this morning, Tagger?" said a broad nose reporter for a local paper to Manager J. J. Tagger of the Loyal Hotel. "Nothing but arranged himself upon a convenient radiator in the managerial office and prepared to talk over with mine but the day's hotel happenings."

Tagger thought a lot, and then seeing the reporter's mood, he fairly shouted, "Yes, the plant on that radiator is pretty fresh. And it was as the journalistic fledgling found out when the clearest told him that it would be largely impossible to restore his ramment to anything resembling a wearable condition."
