(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 2.—(Special.)-J. A. Cable, who is one of the five commissioners of Kansus City, Ean., was in the city today investigating the local water plant's plan of conducting municipal water affairs. According to the visitor the commission form of government is very popular with the Kansans, and though they have enjoyed it but little over a year they have no desire to revert to the use of the old system of city government.

When told that Omaha was voting or the adoption of a similar system today Mr. Cable asserted that he believed Omaha would find the system remarkably well adapted to its needs. "I anticipate that when Omaha gets a good taste of the commission form of government." said he. "It will never want to go back to the old style of running its municipal affairs."

Fire Warden Keeps Busy. State Fire Warden Charles A. Bandall and his assistants have inspected buildings in Wahoo and as a result have condemned twenty structures. Farmer Cowles Back Again. Land Commissioner Cowles has returned from a visit to the asylum at Norfolk, Contrary to his usual custom he did not take a garden fork and dig a few hills of potatoes and bring the samples back with him. He brought some good apples which were grown on thirty-five acres rented by the state. The crop of apples will be more than enough to supply the institution. Mr Cowles watched the housekeeper can 600 gallons of apples to be stored in the cellar for winter use. Another improvement that meets with Farmer Cowles' approval is a silo constructed on the asylum farm for the purpose of supplying dairy cows with green fodder during the days when the blizzards come and the wind howls around the corners of the barn and the hired man's fingers freeze.

Jasper L. McBrien Resigns Position for Lyceum Work

Director of University Extension of State Institution Decides to Leave Public Payroll.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 2 .- (Special.)-J. L. McBrien, who has been director of the university extension bureau, and who has been assailed frequently since he has been in that position, has announced that he will leave that department of the state's work October I, for the purpose of becoming actively connected with the National Lyceum bureau, the headquarters of which are in this city. In offering his resignation to Chancellor Avery, Mr. McBrien says that undoubtedly the place offers a great future. but he believes his new line of work offers a great future and he cannot withstand the emptation to enter the lyceum field. The dissolution of the university extension department was the purpose of a resolution introduced and passed in the senate at the late session of the state legislature. The resolution was fought through the upper house by Senator Tibbets of Adams county, but was defeated when it was taken up in the lower house. Charges that the bureau had catered too freely to the political ambitions of certain men features the Tibbets resolution.
