onds and Hack made a fake dive at Gotch's legs, but he did not connect. During the first five minutes neither man secured an effective hold. They tugged and pulled at each others legs and arms, each seeming to test the other's atrengib Gotch made three passes as though he intended to obtain a knee hold, but all of them fell short. Gotch wore a grim smile.

Hack, however, appeared more serious. The Iowan's smile was not always one of good humor, but a contortion of the lips due to the fact that an impediment in his nasal passage compels him in moments of supreme effort to breathe through his

The crowd was very quiet, until suddenly after eight and one-half minutes Gotch suddenly got a knee hold on the Russian and both went to the mat on their knees. Gotch grasped the Russian's left foot, although he was in no condition for a toe hold. The crowd cheered wildly. Hack fought hard with both his hands and tried to break the hold and finally succeeded in getting out of it and lying flat on the mat. He gained his feet in a few seconds, but scarcely had he done so when Gotch seoured another knee hold and sent him to the mat. Gotch, however, did not obtain an effective hold that time and the Russian was sooon standing. Hack then obtained a body hold on Gotch and the Iowan dropped to his knees. He was up in an instant, smiling good naturedly.

Gotch Wins First Fall. took Gotch just 14 minutes 15% seconds to get a reversed body hold on his bulky antagonist, and the crowd split the airs with their yells and cheers. The Russian fell to the mat with Gotch holding his legs in the air and pinning the Russian's big shoulders to the cushion. Hackenschmidt crawled through the ropes paler than ever and submitted immediately to the ministration of his seconds.

Gotch turned round and grinned. Although the referee announced that the winning hold was a reverse body lock, and this was later confirmed, many persons in the stand thought the fall had been accomplished with a half nelson and crotch

Frank Gotch won the first fall from Hack in 14 minutes 1815 seconds, with a grotch and half nelson hold. Gotch won the second fall with a toe lock in 5 minutes 32% seconds.

Great Joy in Humboldt. ed its joy when the announcement of Frank Gotch's victory reached here this afternoon. A large crowd had gathered in the downtown streets and when the flash "Gotch wins" came over the wire at the telegraph office there was pandemonium among the "home folks." Gotch's neighbors shouted their delight, and many of them really danced as the significance of the second victory dawned on them.

Mountain Sheep in the Bad Lands

Flor master on Battle Creek Captures Twelve, Which He Will Exhibit in Rapid City.

RAPID CITY, S. D., Sept. 4 .- (Special.)-That mountain sheep still exist in the Bad Lands, a theory long ago abandoned, has just been proved by Jimmle Reynolds, a sheepman who resides between the mouths of Spring and Battle creeks on the Chevenne river. Reynolds now has a herd of twelve of these wild sheep corralled with his domestic animals and will keep them. Reynolds was herding his sheep when he ran across the mountain sheep. They saw nose.
