Family Scene Where Booklovers' Contest Holds Chief Interest.

Finally, Satisfactory Answers Found and Put into Blank Coupon—Papa Tells Youngsters to Watch for Puzzles.

When night has pulled its cloak over the city and the darkness is penetrated here and there by shimmering lights of the street; when the family is gathered around the library table after the evening meal, and a youngster is pushing his toes about the carpet—then that is the time to get out a copy of The Evening Bee and begin work on the Booklovers' puzzle.

With the opening of these cool September days man naturally clings to his home in the evening. During the hot days of summer he has been wont to leave the home for the invigorating air, but now that the winter is announcing its approach man must seek indoors to gather his greatest comfort.

An Easy Picture. It is easy to draw in one's mind an evening scene in any home where The Bee is taken. There is that table (every home has a table to which the parents and youngsters go after supper) where the family gathers after the evening meal.

"Here, you kids, have you solved this puzzle picture today?" he breaks forth. "Come here and we will get it now."

Harry and Mary clamber over to their side. Mamma looks up and asks to see the picture. When it is shown to her she sinks back into her chair to ponder over the view. Willie and the baby hesitate long enough to fathom what their father said, and then get back to their play on the carpet.

Finally all have taken a guess on the picture, and then one title is written down in the blank. "Better keep track of these sunny days, Mary," papa cautions, "and we may get a prize."

Cummins Calls La Follette Patriot

Gives This Opinion When Member of Tippecanoe Club Insists Upon It.

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 8.—Characterizing Senator La Follette as a patriot with an eye single to the good of the country and as one to whom providence has given a strong mind and inflexible purpose, Senator Albert B. Cummins addressed the Iowa Tippecanoe club here last night, in what was called the opening of the 1912 campaign in Iowa.

Senator Cummins had not intended to discuss Senator La Follette, but his opinion was called forth when a member of the club insisted that he state his opinion of the Wisconsin senator. His speech was devoted mainly to a discussion of the peace treaties pending before the senate, and he particularly advocated the adoption of the proposed amendment which leaves to the senate and President Taft to determine whether any controversy is justiciable, instead of to a joint high commission as provided for in the agreements.

TAFT WILL DINE AT EVENING

On His Coming Visit to Omaha He Will Seek to Avoid Display.

HIS REPRESENTATIVE IS COMING Arrangements Are Being Made for Visit of the President—Will Have Luncheon and Dinner and Speak at Auditorium.

Plans for the visit of President Taft to Omaha October 1 are being perfected by the local committee in charge, but will not be definite until a conference is had with Special Agent Wheeler, who is expected to cover the route as an advance agent, and to reach Omaha during the coming week.

The only expression of desire that has come from the president through his secretary is that he will prefer to have luncheon at noon and dinner in the evening rather than a noon dinner and an evening supper. Beyond that his personal wishes need not be consulted, except that the day be made one of rest as much as possible.

The committee has notified the officers of the Young Men's Christian association that the Auditorium meeting Sunday afternoon will be held under their auspices, and a program for that meeting is being worked out through a subcommittee of which Henry Kieseer is chairman. Besides prayer there will be several musical numbers. The president is expected to begin his talk on "World Peace" about 6 o'clock and the meeting concludes at 8 o'clock.

NEWSPAPER ATTACKS SHERIFFS

Says They Are Behind Scheme to Get More Money from the Public Treasury.

The Silver Creek, Neb., Sand has published an attack on Sheriff Milton R. Iler and the Nebraska Sheriffs' association, charging them with trying to find a way to collect bailor fees, to which the Sand says they are not entitled.

The Board of County Supervisors of Merriam county recently rejected a claim of Iler for $1,318.50 for jailor fees. The Sand compliments the board and says the sheriff's association is behind Iler, and will supply funds for him to make a test case over his claim. The law of the matter is that a county sheriff shall be paid a regular salary and shall turn all his fees over to the county and that he shall be paid an additional $1.50 a day for services as jailor when he is not allowed a deputy. The Sand says Iler is allowed a deputy and therefore should have no additional pay.
