Style Show Opens in All Big Stores in Omaha Monday

Omaha merchants, who in former years were on the constant qui vive lest some other merchants should arrange a "fall opening" a day or two earlier than their own, are resting easy this year with the assurance that the display of new styles will be opened to the public in all the stores at the same hour. Monday is set for the time for all.

Too Many Register from Same Place

Charge against James Wilson, who is accused of illegal registration of voters in the first precinct of the third ward, has been filed by County Attorney English on complaint of J. J. Mahoney, clerk of the police court and candidate for police judge. Mahoney accuses Wilson, who is a member of the registration board, of having entered the names of twenty men on the books, each man giving his residence at 801 North Sixteenth street, where Wilson is a clerk of a rooming house, whereas but eight men live there and but eight lived there on September 5, the date the offense is said to have been committed.
