

Sturdy Clothes for Sturdy Boys

Aply expresses the kind of clothes we sell for boys. Most boys are too busy to give much thought to their clothes, so we have done the thinking for them by selecting the sturdiest and most substantial suits.

All the vital parts which ordinarily are the first to show the strenuous wear which boys' clothes receive have been made doubly strong—they are as near wear-proof as good fabrics and careful tailoring can make them.

Norfolk or double breasted styles and Russians and sailors for younger boys. Prudent mothers will do well to bring the boy here for his fall outfit.

We specialize in suits at $5.00 and from that price up to $12.00 every suit is a splendid value.

We still have a number of fine Pocket Knives which we give free to boys—one with every suit. Your boy will like one—all boys do.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S OWN STORE
BINSON & THORNE CO.
1518-1520 FARNAM STREET

MANDERSON DIES AS STEAMER SAILS

(Continued from First Page.)

Permit was obtained from Governor Dennison, and with Samuel Beatty, an old Mexican war soldier and then sheriff of Stark county, the two recruited a full company of infantry. Mander son was elected an commissioned first lieutenant in May, 1862. Beatty, who was captain of the company, was made colonel of the Nineteenth Ohio infantry and Mander son became captain of Company A of that regiment. He took the command into western Virginia among the first troops occupying that section. The Nineteenth Ohio became part of the brigade commanded by General Rosecrans in General McClellan's army of occupation of West Virginia. The regiment participated with credit in the first field battle of the war, July 11, 1861. Captain Mander son received special mention in the report of the affair.

Re-enlists His Company.
In August, 1861, Captain Mander son re-enlisted his company for a three years' service. He rose through the grades of major lieutenant colonel and colonel of the Nineteenth Ohio and on January 1, 1864, with more than 600 men of his regiment, re-enlisted. In the battle of Shiloh he acted as lieutenant colonel and his coolness, nerve and personal courage caused his promotion to the rank of major, being mentioned in the reports of General Hoyle and General Crittenden for distinguished gallantry and exceptional service.

Colonel Mander son was in command of the Nineteenth Ohio in all its engagements up to and including the battle of Lovejoy's station on September 2, 1864. The regiment won particular renown for its part in the battle of Stone's river, or Murfreesboro, where it lost in killed and wounded 213 out of 449 going into the engagement. Special credit was given to its charge in the cedars, checking the enemy's advance and restoring the line of battle.

General Mander son was frequently mentioned in the reports for coolness and daring and splendid conduct during the war, his regiment participating in the following campaigns and battles: Shiloh, siege of Corinth, action near Farmington, movement from Battle Creek, Tenn., to Louisville, Ky.; Perryville campaign, Crab Orchard, Stone's river, Murfreesboro; Tullahoma campaign, Liberty Gap, Chickamauga, siege of Chattanooga, Orchard Knob, Mission Ridge, Knoxville campaign, Atlanta campaign, Casville, Dallas, New Hope church, Pickett's mills, Ackworth station, Pine Knob, Kulp's farm, Kenesaw, affair near Marietta, crossing the Chattahoochee river, Peach Creek, siege of Atlanta, Ezra chapel, Jonesboro, Lovejoy's station, Franklin, Nashville and pursuit of Hood's army.

General Mander son was severely wounded in the spine and right side while leading his demi-brigade, composed of the Nineteenth Ohio, the Ninth Kentucky and the Seventy-third Indiana, in a charge upon the enemy's works at Lovejoy's station, Georgia, September 2, 1864, in which, after a most desperate effort, the front line of works was taken and held. It was impossible for the surgeons to find the bullet and it remained unextracted. The general, being much disabled, was compelled to resign the service April, 1865. The war in the west was then practically closed.

Previous to his resignation he was breveted general of volunteers, date of March 13, 1865, for "long, faithful, gallant and meritorious services during the war of the rebellion." General Mander son was always very proud of the fact that this distinction came to him upon the recommendation of army commanders in the field and not by political influences.

After the war General Mander son went back to Canton, O., and again took up the practice of law and entered politics. He was twice elected district attorney of Stark county and declined a nomination for congress in an Ohio district then republican, by several thousand majority, this occurring in 1867.

General Mander son came to Omaha in November, 1869. He soon became prominent in his profession and in politics. He had the honor of being a member of the Nebraska state constitutional convention of 1875, and again of a similar body in 1874. He was elected to these positions without opposition and had the nominations of both political parties, being favored by a singularly rare good fortune that seemed to mark nearly all of his political activities.

General Mander son served Omaha as city attorney from August, 1870, to April, 1882. During these six years he achieved marked success in the trial of important municipal cases. He left the office with a high rank as a lawyer.

For many years General Mander son was an active comrade in the Grand Army of the Republic and for three years was commander of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the District of Columbia.

He was elected United States senator from Nebraska to succeed Alvin Saunders, his politics then, as throughout his life, republican. His term began March 4, 1882. In 1888 he was re-elected to the senate without opposition and with exceptional and unprecedented evidences of approval by the legislature of Nebraska. When his second term expired March 3, 1895, General Mander son declined to be a candidate for the honor again, announcing his intention of leaving public life.

In the senate General Mander son soon became a figure of national interest and importance. The most remarkable evidence of esteem paid to him while there was in the second session of the Fifty-first congress, when he was elected by the senate as its president pro tempore. He had no opposition. The office had been declared by the senate, after full debate, to be a continuing one. This unanimous election to the presidency was without a precedent and was the highest compliment that could be paid by the body to one of its members. In March, 1888, the political basis of the senate having changed, General Mander son resigned the presidency and was succeeded by Isham G. Harris of Tennessee.

General Mander son, while in the senate, was chairman of the joint committee on printing and an active member of the committees on claims, private land claims, territories, Indian affairs, military affairs and rules. He was a shaping and directing force in making legislation of importance relating to claims, the establishment of the private land claims court, the government of the territories, the admission of new states, pensions to soldiers, aid to soldiers' homes, laws for the better organization and improvement of the discipline of the army and for the improvement and better methods in government printing.

When he retired from the senate General Mander son was offered the position of general solicitor of the Burlington system of railroads west of the Missouri river. He entered upon these duties April 1, 1888, and continued in the position to the time of his last sickness and death.

General Mander son was known as one of the most interesting conversationalists and pleasing after-dinner speakers in the west. He was a member of the Omaha club and for years presided as toastmaster at the annual Washington birthday dinners. He was a lover of literature, travel, art and the assembling of rare articles of historic and sentimental value. Several years ago he wrote and published a romance of civil war times called "The Twin Seven-Shooters," the plot and incidents of the story having come under his own personal observation, and in which, to a degree, he was a participant. This book excited favorable comment both because of its literary qualities and its value as an addition to trustworthy writings of the war time period.

Warm Friend of Schley.

Among his friends of General Mander son was one who exceptionally prominent in the public thought was Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, whom the general had known for many years. A strong friendship existed between them and when, in his controversy with Admiral Sampson, it became necessary for Schley to have the services of counsel, Admiral Sampson immediately called upon General Mander son. The latter, with great regret, was restrained by his personal affairs from accepting the call.

Out of his busy and prosperous career General Mander son contrived to accumulate a fortune of a modest size, though he was not what would be classed as a wealthy man. For many years the dis-

- $15.00 Ladies' Serge Coats in all colors and sizes, $5.98
- $15.00 Willow Plumes, sizes 2x2 1/2, $8.98
- $3.00 and $4.00 Ostrich Feathers all lengths and sizes, $1.48
- $2.00 Ladies' Crepe Kimonos, assorted colors, 89c
- 75c Ladies' striped and checked waists, open front, 25c
- 75c Ladies' Ribbed Union Suits, 39c
- 50c Corset Covers, at 19c
- $1.00 black and tan Silk Hose, 39c
- 50c Flannel Petticoats, at 23c
- $1.00 Tailored Waists, assorted patterns, 59c
- $4.00 Black Silk Petticoats, at $2.24
- $1.50 and $2.00 Ladies' Sample Shoes, at 50c
- 50c Leather Hand Bags, at 23c

DON'T WORRY--WATCH US GROW.

ESTABLISHED 1892

The Fair

1119-1121-1123 FARNAM ST. OMAHA, NEB.

By Order of the Court

Constable H. D. Pierson sold to us at a public auction the entire stock of Men's and Women's Silk Raincoats, Cravenettes and Slip-Ons of the Goodyear Raincoat Company which for the past three years conducted the only exclusive raincoat store in Omaha, at 223 North 16th street, Hotel Loyal Building.

This entire stock will be sold at

40c on the Dollar

Sale Commencing

Friday, Sept. 29, 8:30 A. M.

$10.00 and $12.50 Coats will be sold at $4.98

$15.00 and $20.00 Coats will be sold at $7.98

$22.50 and $25.00 Coats will be sold at $9.98

50c Dressing Saques, at 19c

$35.00 Ladies' Suits, at $19.98

$75.00 Ladies' Fur Coats, at $49.75

75 cent Corsets, at 39c

Look for Large Blue Sign Front of Building.

ESTABLISHED 1892

The Fair

1119-1121-1123 FARNAM ST. OMAHA, NEB.

Southeast Corner 12th and Farnam Streets.

- $2.00 Men's Sample Hats, all shapes, including Derbys, at 85c
- $20.00 Men's Suits, at $9.98
- $4.00 Men's Goodyear Welt Shoes, at $1.95
- $4.00 and $5.00 Boys' Suits, sizes 3 to 17, at $1.98
- $3.00 Children's Teddy Coats, Sizes 2 to 6, $1.48
- 75c all Wool Children's Sweater Coats, 35c
- $2.50 Children's Dresses, at $1.24
- Children's Hats, at HALF PRICE
- Ladies' Hats, at HALF PRICE
- $25.00 Ladies' Caracul Coats, $12.48
- $15.00 Ladies' Caracul Coats, $6.98
- $25.00 Ladies' Plush Coats, $9.98
- $20.00 Ladies' Satin Coats, $8.98

way they would be lacking in their duty if they did not prosecute them. They are under my orders to treat the prosecution of trusts like the bringing of any other suits which are within the scope and duty of the Department of Justice, and I must decline to admit that there is any discretion which would enable the attorney general and his assistants to stay the hand of the government in respect of such violations of law. I do not think it need be long continued, because I believe that the business community itself is rapidly taking in the effect of the decisions of the supreme court, and that we may expect a revolution of feeling on the attitude of business men toward this step.

The Anti-Trust Law.

"I have heard the severest criticism, from some men engaged in business, of the anti-trust law. It is difficult for me to argue with them, because I don't understand how their position can be supported in the slightest. They seem to think that there ought to be some measure making legal the control of competition and limited monopoly, some statute enacted which shall establish a line between those monopolies that are reasonable and those that are not—those that are benevolent and those that are unconscionable. No such line is possible, and the supreme court has expressly so decided. Mourning over a condition which is inevitable is useless, and until they realize that their views in this regard must be radically changed their complaints must fall upon deaf ears.

"The business of the country today rests upon the protective tariff basis. Everyone knows this, and everyone must be aware that a change of tariffs in such a way that those businesses that are dependent upon protection for their existence shall lose it must injure present conditions in all business, whether dependent on the tariff or not. The change, therefore, from a protective tariff to a tariff for revenue only is necessarily hostile to existing business, and must lead to business depression and at least temporary business disaster. But there are many, and I am among those, who believe that protection in the past has been too high, and that it is possible to lower the tariff so as not to interfere with business, give a living rate of protection to existing enterprise and yet prevent excessive prices growing out of excessive rates. In carrying out such a policy and maintaining such an attitude, it is essential that the interests of business should be guarded by close investigation into their needs as to a protective tariff, and this emphasizes the importance and vital necessity of the maintenance of a tariff commission and of its ascertainment of the facts with respect to business and the difference between the cost of production here and the cost of production abroad before tariff changes are made.

Currency System Weak.

"We have a very lame banking and currency system. There ought to be some central authority that could take over the quick assets of banks in the form of business paper and issue bank notes on the faith of it to meet the exigency arising at any time in a demand for money. If invested in one person or set of persons, the business can be intelligently done, panics avoided, and money sufficient for the purposes of business constantly kept on hand. The present proposition of the monetary commission, which I believe will be recommended to congress, is that this authority shall be provided by a combination of all the banks of the country, reserving to the smaller banks a power of selection greater than the ratio between their capital and the capital of the larger banks, in which board of agency the government shall have a representative, not so that it may control, but so that it may have a voice in the management.

"I have considered these points with a view to an appeal to the public in behalf of reasonable, moderate action, and treatment for the purpose of encouraging the investment of capital and of promoting prosperity. I deprecate vindictive feeling against railway corporations, against the competing parts of trusts after they have complied with decrees of courts, disintegrating them, against a reasonable treatment of the business dependent on the tariff, or against the solution of the monetary question, which appeals to all reasonable and experienced men.

Work of Demagogues.

"We in this country are in the same boat. Speeches made in one part of the country to arouse the people of that region against the enterprises or business of another are made by the blindest men. Let there be prostration of business in one large section and that prostration will spread quickly to all the rest.

"What makes men happy? What furnishes shoes and clothes and good, wholesome food to the family of father and mother and children but prosperous times, in which labor is in high demand, wages are good, sales are plenty, prices are normal, and everybody is sharing in the general prosperity?

"In attempting to rid ourselves of the evils that were growing in business so as to put dangerous power into the hands of concentrated wealth, we had to do many things that savored of hostility to capital, at least to the capital which was engaged in those things that it was thought necessary to enact—statutes to condemn. I am no defender of those evils. On the contrary, I have been as strongly in favor of their suppression by statutes made effective as anyone; but I think we have arrived at a time when the people themselves ought to acquire sufficient perception into the operation of economic forces to realize that a sectional prejudice leading to legislation against the interests of one part of the country will be certainly redound to the detriment of another as night will follow day. We are in the same boat. We are all tossed by the same waves. Why, then, should we allow the political fortunes of any man or set of men to mislead us into a hostility toward parts of the country is certain to work injury to all?

Meaning of Progressive.

"It is not a progressive policy in any true sense to be hostile to prosperity of any part of the country. It is not progressive to be against a railway corporation because it is a railway corporation. It is progressive to take measures by statutes which shall regulate railways and prevent them recurring to evils of which they have been guilty in the past; but, assuming them to be engaged in lawful business, it is of the highest interest that we should secure to them reasonable rates, so that their shareholders may have a profit, and that we should not enact legislation in a spirit of hostility and that merely because we have hit a railway corporation and injured it we have done something for the public good. Any other view is lacking in sanity, and it is that spirit of unreasoning and unreasonable antagonism which political exigency seems to develop and against which the complaints of business men with propriety and good reason be directed.

"Of course, we are all anxious to prevent the acquisition of undue profits by anybody, whether in the form of discriminating rates and rebates or by a combination in restraint of trade, or by any other means which is unlawful or improper; but we ought not to allow our fear that something of that sort may happen to lead us on to a general attitude of enmity toward the accumulation of money by thrift and foresight and to its lawful investment in great enterprise for reasonable profit.

Misfortune of Situation.

"The misfortune of the situation I perfectly realize. It is one of the inevitable consequences of a deep-rooted evil. You can not eradicate it by popular movement without the movement becoming so very strong as to be carried for the time beyond the median line of common sense and into the extremities of unreasonableness.

"We have reached a point where we can call a halt, not in the progressive movement to keep business free from these abuses, but where we can call a halt against appeals to a spirit of pure hostility to prosperity on the theory that no one can be prosperous without being dishonest or a violator of law in securing the profits of his business.

"Let us put our shoulders together in a movement to promote the business prosperity of the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital in the country by frowning down those attacks that are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses, but by a wish to arouse in the people an unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital