districts in this country. It is a land over which it is easy to rhapsodize of American prosperity. Where once the farmers' teams stood for hours at the long row of hitching posts in Hastings their motor cars now line the curbs.

This is the prosperity on which Uncle Joe Cannon and other mandarins of special privilege love to dwell as the particular product of their policies at Washington, while denouncing the charge that they have been particularly engaged in fattening the nest for eastern trust magnates.

But prosperity has brought education and independent thought to farmer as well as to townsmen. It is said the Congressional Record forms a large part of the mail that goes out to the surrounding farms here during the sessions of the national legislature.

The independence of this electorate has been recognized for many years and this was one of the sections of the country in which republican insurgency first manifested itself. Representative Norris entered congress a progressive, and soon became one of the leaders of the rebellion against the old guard in the house. A desperate effort was made by the old guard to prevent the reelection of this leader of the insurrection, but Norris was returned to the house last year by the largest majority he ever received.

Views Differ on Reciprocity.

Norris is a candidate now for the United States senate in opposition to Senator Brown. The latter is also a progressive, but he is an ardent Taft supporter. Norris is opposed to the president. Brown voted for reciprocity, Norris against it. About as many republican farmers approve Senator Brown's vote for it as Congressman Norris' vote against it.

"I don't think reciprocity hurt Taft much around here," said one farmer. "I'm an independent republican, but I think Taft ought to be re-elected."

A business man who was talking with the farmer said he would "not vote for Taft again unless he changed his policies." He complained the Taft administration was too much influenced by big corporations.

"President Taft made an extremely favorable impression here," said A. L. Clarke, president of the First National bank. "Of course there are some farmers around here who did not like reciprocity, but, on the whole, Taft is decidedly popular in this community."

"There was not much enthusiasm for Taft, but it was not bad," said William Beach, a clothing and dry goods dealer who peddled papers in Chicago forty-five years ago. "I have been against him ever since he wrote that letter to Theodore Shonts calling him unpatriotic for giving up the Panama canal job."

Speech Wins Many Votes.

The proprietor of a little bakery said he had heard Taft on account of his failure to get the tariff reduced, but he had heard Mr. Taft's speech yesterday and now was inclined to think otherwise.

"I am for Taft, and according to the men with whom I have discussed the matter, he made many votes here yesterday," said C. E. Pratt, proprietor of a large plumbing establishment.

"Taft made a good talk here," said another. "I did not like reciprocity, but I don't know that it would have hurt us farmers much after all."

In a group of half a dozen farmers who were loading their automobiles with supplies from local stores the comment was varied.

"I voted for Taft last time," said one. "Don't know whether I will again. Folks around here seem to speak light of him."

"Taft is too good for helping out the millionaires," said another. "I'm for La Follette."

"Well, I think more of Taft today than I did day before yesterday," said still another. "I think he has some good arguments for reciprocity and his veto of the tariff bills."

Two democrats said the president "made a fine impression" on the people and one of them said he might vote for Taft if the democratic candidate did not suit him.

SPLIT IN TAX COMMISSION

Radical Changes Proposed in Iowa System Not Agreed To.

NINE NEW LAWYERS ADMITTED

Inability to Pick Third Arbitrator for Street Railway Difficulties May Reopen the Strike

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

DES MOINES, Oct. 5.—(Special Telegram)—Radical changes proposed in the taxing system by the temporary state tax commission brought about a split in that body. The first plan to be seriously considered in the new taxing scheme is for two centralized taxing authorities, a prominent state tax commission and a county tax supervisor. It is over the manner of selecting the county supervisor of taxes and the local assessors that the commission is said to have divided.

The general plan outlined is for a permanent state tax commission to have absolute and complete authority over all taxing matters, including the work now done by the state executive. A majority of the temporary commission favors the appointment of the county supervisor and the appointment of the local assessors, taking the position that better and more capable men will thus be secured.

The minority on the commission holds that at this age of demand for "size to the people" such a proposition will never be accepted by the people of this state.

ITALIANS SAID TO HAVE TAKEN CITY

Rome, was not inclined to accept the portfolio of foreign affairs.

Sixty steamers engaged ordinarily in emigrant traffic have during the last week been made over into transports.

The army of occupation is generally considered to be superior to the force actually necessary for proposed operations, but the war office has no intention of being caught napping and, moreover, the plan is to conquer the country rapidly with imposing strength, which will require a great display of troops for the triangle constituted by the province of Tripoli, which is nearly four times the size of Italy, each side being almost 1,000 miles long.

From the army of occupation the war office intends to form a special body to take over the province. All the officers of this body will be made thoroughly acquainted with the region and with the language and customs of the people.

Clash at Peace Conference.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(Special Telegram)—The Turkish delegate of the council of the Union of the Interparliamentary union, acting under the advice of other members of the council today telegraphed to the porte suggesting that Turkey offer directly to Italy to arbitrate all the differences between the two governments as both are signatories to the Hague convention. If Italy refuses, as Bostana Ellindi considers probable, it will, he believes, be further placed in the wrong before the world.

The council of the union met yesterday to discuss the matter of a place for the next meeting. The session was a stormy one, the Italian delegates taking offense and threatening to withdraw from the adoption of a resolution setting forth that the international conference which was to have been held in Rome in September had been postponed on account of "the epidemic of cholera now existing in Italy."

In a heated debate the Italian delegates denied that cholera was "epidemic" in Italy and clashed with the Turkish delegates regarding the counter grievance of Italy and Turkey.

Count Compans, who had retired but for the intervention of other delegates who, by conciliatory speeches prevented a break in the international body.

War Extends to Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—A score of Italians attacked Thon Bengas and Alvis Demosten, Turks, in a west side street today when the Turks attempted to pass by a minor Italian district garbed in red blouses and purple sashes. The Turks filed to a police station and were locked up until the crowd dispersed.

TAFT IS WELCOMED TO UTAH

Governor Spry and Congressmen Meet President in Ogden.

ADDRESS AT SALT LAKE CITY

President Talks to "Old Folks" at the Tabernacle and Drives to Fort Douglas, Where He Reviews Troops.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 5.—President Taft was given a most enthusiastic reception when he arrived this morning, accompanied by Governor Spry, the Utah members of congress and others who had bid him welcome to Utah at Ogden. Escorted by the Fifteenth United States Infantry and a detail of the National Guard, he was driven to his hotel, where he rested until 10:30, when he addressed the "old folks" in the tabernacle.

President Taft spoke in the Salt Lake Tabernacle here to several thousand "old folks" gathered in the Utah capital in annual reunion. Probably the majority of them crossed the plains and the mountains from the east before the days of railroad and the telegraph, for when a request was made that all who had come west afoot or in wagons or on horseback stand up, thousands of gray bearded men and white haired old women rose to their feet.

President Taft chose peace and arbitration treaties for his subject and at the conclusion of his address United States Senator Smoot announced that he would not oppose the ratification of the proposed treaties with Great Britain and France. Senator Smoot is the fourth member of the senate to signify his intention of supporting the treaties since the president began his present trip.

Mr. Taft's address was largely like those he has made before on the subject of arbitration, but he explained in a new and humorous way his failure to understand the attitude of those who oppose the treaties.

"Senator Taylor of Tennessee told me a story," said the president, "that I think fits the case. He said that he once knew an old man down in the mountains of Eastern Tennessee who owned an old clock. The clock was a little peculiar. In speaking of its peculiarities its owner said: 'That clock's useful because I have come to understand it. When the hands point at 6 o'clock and it strikes 1 o'clock I know it is just 20 minutes of 2.'

"And," continued the president, "I don't exactly follow the logic of that or of those who oppose the treaties."

The president received a telegram from United States Senator Sutherland of Utah regretting inability to be here, and another from the Utah Japanese society extending a welcome to the state. He lunched at the Alta club and drove immediately to Fort Douglas, where he will attend a review of United States troops. At 3 o'clock he will drive to the state fair grounds, where he will deliver his principal address in Utah. At night he will attend a banquet at the Commercial club and a concert at the tabernacle, leaving at midnight for Idaho.

PANAMA POLICY IS DEFENDED

should proceed with the work in spite of Colombia's opposition and indeed had prepared a rough draft of a message to that effect when events on the isthmus took such shape as to change the problem.

"There was no need of any outsider to excite revolution in Panama. There were dozens of leaders on the isthmus already doing their best to excite revolution. It was not a case of lighting a fuse that would fire a mine—there were dozens of such fuses being lit all the time; it was simply a case of its ceasing to be the duty of the United States to stamp out these fuses or to longer to act in the interest of those who had become the open and malignant foe of the United States and of civilization and of the world at large.

Panama Now Prosperous.

"We recognized the republic of Panama. In consequence Panama has for eight years enjoyed a degree of peace and prosperity which it had never before enjoyed during its four centuries of troubled existence.

"Be it remembered that unless I had acted exactly as I did there would be no Panama canal. It is folly to speak of devotion to an end and at the same time to condemn the only means from which the end can be achieved. Every man who has at any stage opposed or condemned the action actually taken in acquiring the right to dig the canal has really been the opponent of every effort that could ever have been made to dig the canal."
