CARMEN MAY STRIKE AGAIN

Des Moines Situation Acute, but Harrigan May Stop Walkout.

ARBITRATION SEEMINGLY FAILS

Manager of Company Proposes that Disinterested Business Men Be Asked to Settle Labor Difficulties.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 6.—(Special Telegram.)—Unless something new entirely unforeseen happens the street car war in Des Moines will be resumed Saturday evening by reason of the failure of the company to reinstate discharged men pending arbitration. The men are firm in their determination to start a strike and openly avow their belief that the company was only playing for time and never intended to enter honestly upon arbitration.

The street car men, numbering nearly 500, voted today to go on strike unless three members of the union recently discharged are reinstated by tomorrow forenoon at 5 o'clock. The City Railway company officials say they will not reinstate the men. Late this evening another arbitration proposition was made by the company, which may provide a way out of the difficulty.

Manager Harrigan refused the demand of the street car employes that the discharged street car men be reinstated pending further efforts at arbitration and made a counter proposition to the employes.

He prefers to withdraw his attorney as an arbitrator if the men will withdraw their arbitrator and both will appoint disinterested business men as arbitrators and they will select the third one.

Manager Harrigan states he is still very anxious to have the matter settled by arbitration and states that the action taken by the union yesterday was the first he knew of. He was dissatisfied with the arrangements with the arrangements.

There is an intimation that the court will again take a hand and declare that the men, if they strike tomorrow evening, are violating an order of the court and will be in contempt. The employes say that the company has already violated the court order and the agreement and that they do not longer feel bound.

It is regarded almost certain that in case of a new strike the militia companies will be used to protect the cars while being operated by new men.

OUTBREAK OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS AT RHODES

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Oct. 6.—(Special.)—With one dead and seven others sick, the details of a most unusual outbreak of infantile paralysis in the southwestern part of the county, near Rhodes, were made public here today. The unusual phase of the case is that in the opinion of the attending physician and the State Board of Health that the disease has been spread by flies that have feasted on the unburned carcasses of dead chickens which died of the disease. That the disease is prevalent among young chickens in many parts of the state is the statement of the officers of the state experimental station at Iowa State college, Ames.

Four-year-old Elizabeth Wignall is dead and there are seven other cases in five other families. The attending physician is authority for the statement that fully 1,000 chickens in the afflicted neighborhood have died. But the disease has not been limited alone to them. Fifteen or twenty pigs in the same neighborhood have shown symptoms of the disease and some of them have died. In one instance a calf was stricken and died, but as far as the disease has only appeared among the young animals, the older ones seem to have escaped.

While one or two of the sick children are considered to be in a grave condition it is thought that the worst of the epidemic is over.

It is said years ago, Joseph Clouse, sr., attempted to get an injunction to restrain his mother-in-law from entering his home.

TAFT LAUDS SUPREME COURT

Executive Assails Critics of the Greatest Tribunal.

NOTICE TO BIG BUSINESS

Prosecutions of Violators of Anti-Trust Law Will Be Continued Without Regard to Effect on Affairs of Trade.

POCAHELLO, Idaho, Oct. 6.—In a speech before the Chamber of Commerce here today, President Taft bitterly assailed the critics of the United States supreme court and asserted anew his views as to the relation of government to business. "I love judges and I love courts," said the president. "They are my ideals on earth that typify what we shall meet afterward in heaven under a just God. And when a court is doing its duty, when it is trying to interpret the law, as it ought to be, to have it condemned and attacked and its move questioned for mere political purposes, without any solid ground for attack, goes to my heart and I resent it with deep indignation."

President Taft spoke with more feeling than he put into his Detroit and Waterloo speeches, but along the same lines. He said he had received many criticisms on the point, but as yet he had failed to receive an answer to his challenge to W. J. Bryan and other publicists to cite a single case of combination in restraint of trade which ought to be condemned and which would not be condemned under the supreme court's interpretation of the anti-trust law in the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust cases.

Function of Supreme Court.
"What distinguishes this country from any other one," said the president, "is the supreme court that we have in Washington, that oft has stood between us and a disaster that might have been committed that would have been greatly injurious to this country, and to turn upon that court and to question its moves and to attack it, seems to me to lay the axe at the root of the tree of our civilization."

Mr. Taft referred to the supreme court's disposal of the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases as "two great decisions."

"They were two of the greatest trusts that existed," he said, "and in the working out of the decree the court had to make a remedy. The Standard Oil company presented all the phases of illegality and criminality necessary to establish a monopoly at a time when they did not feel the necessity for concealing their methods or their moves. The tobacco trust represented an organization made to anticipate the operation of the law, helped out by the advice of cunning lawyers. But against them both the decision of the supreme court has been pronounced."

Mr. Taft said it was unfortunate that the country had got into a condition that required a remedy like this. A remedy of any evil, he added, was bound to produce for a time, not business disaster, but a difficult situation that might make business slow. But after the solution had been worked out he saw no reason why the country should not go on to greater and greater prosperity.

Notice to Business.
"To one in my place," said the president, "there is no discretion with reference to the trial of cases brought to the attention of the executive as violations of the law. The prosecutions must go on. It is not for the executive to say he can withhold criminal prosecutions or any kind of prosecutions just to help business. Business must reform itself and these executive duties must be performed under the oath of office that I took and under the oath that those under me took."

"But when that part of the business community that thought that the anti-trust statute did not mean anything understands that it is to be enforced, then we may reach a solution that will enable the business community to settle down on a proper and legitimate basis. I hope the time is near at hand when we must get together for prosperity. We must eliminate, so far as we can, this desire to attack wealth earned by shrewd and gathered together by foresight, attention and industry, because that is to set up a feeling that bodes no good for the result. When a man attempts that he ought to be marked by the patriots of the country who understand that he is attempting to use some disaster to the country to benefit himself."

"I believe we are going on to a greater future. If we had allowed these combinations to go on and develop, the only remedy would have been to change by force the power thus concentrated in the hands of a few individuals to the state and then we should have had state socialism. It was the inevitable result of the movement toward trusts unless broken up."

Back to Competition.
"Now we can get back to competition. We must get back to competition as an element in this country. If it is impossible, then let us go to socialism, for there is no way between. I am not discouraged, as yet, in the hope that we may reach a legitimate and independent competition. I am an individualist and not a socialist."

Mr. Taft then pleaded for kinder feeling between various elements of the community. He declared the business of "muckraking" would cease if people would disregard the attacks upon motives until the motives are shown to be improper. Mr. Taft said the railroads were entitled to proper treatment and should be saved from the attacks of the demagogue or the man who would seek by the position of his victim to climb over his shoulders into popular esteem.
