

RUMOR OF FALLERS' RETURN

Man Asserts Has Seen Missing Toll Collector in Bluffs.

WIFE SELLS HOME AND LEAVES

Story Circulates Among Neighbors that Violent Quarrel in Family Occurred on Day of Fallers' Disappearance.

A rumor that reached the newspaper office yesterday announced the return of Horace E. Fallers, the missing toll collector of Council Bluffs who disappeared from the Douglas street bridge last July. The information was that Mr. Fallers had returned and had been seen in the vicinity of his former home.

A visit to the Fallers home, 2011 Third avenue, Council Bluffs, disclosed that Mrs. Fallers had sold her property and left the city several days ago. The neighbors had somewhat conflicting information concerning Mrs. Fallers' destination. One story was that she had gone to Montana to make her home with her mother and another that she had gone to Wyoming and taken up a claim. The house is vacant, but the fact was established that it was sold about a week ago and possession given a few days later.

No one could be found in the neighborhood who had seen Mr. Fallers and the inquiries concerning him were regarded with unconcealed incredulity. The conviction of all of the neighbors is that Fallers was murdered on the night of July 3 by three negroes and his body thrown into the river. The $5,000 of life insurance carried by the missing man has not been paid.

The story that Fallers had returned was put into circulation yesterday, furnished by J. C. Carson, who resides at 223 Fourth avenue, in the immediate vicinity of the Fallers home. He said he saw a man get off an Omaha car late the evening before at Twenty-sixth street and Avenue A, where he had seen Fallers get off many times, and walk in the direction of the old home. Carson said he walked behind the man for part of the way until he became suspicious of the man's behavior that he halted him and got into conversation with him. Carson said he was not personally acquainted with Fallers, but knew him by seeing him often at the toll house on the bridge. Carson said that after they separated the man walked directly to the vacant Fallers' home. It had become too dark to note what direction he went from the house or if he left it immediately after finding it empty. Carson refused to be dissuaded from his belief that he walked and talked with the missing man.

Neighbors who reside close to the former home saw nothing of the prowling figure in the dusk, and express the belief that if it was Fallers he would have made inquiries somewhere concerning his wife and children.

It was said by some of the neighbors that Mrs. Fallers had gone to Moorcroft, Wyo., where she said her mother lived. For the first time yesterday there came out a story concerning a violent quarrel that was alleged to have occurred between Mr. and Mrs. Fallers on the day of his disappearance.

ALEXANDER GOES BACK TO HIS NEBRASKA FARM

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—(Special Telegram)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, the pitching sensation of the Phillies this year, whose home is at St. Paul, Neb., has decided to go home to the farm because the Iowa team has refused to live up to his contract promise to pay him $3,500 a year. "The farm looks better to me than $3,500 a year," says Alexander.

Despite the rain and cold weather, Macaulia won the race again at the Brandeis last night, and the affairs of the Duncanson estate were satisfactorily straightened out. One shudder to think of what might have happened had any misfortune overtaken Macaulia before the race was over. It is a big load of responsibility they lay on that one little horse, bigger even than Cold Chollars carried many years ago when the race was run in full view of the audience. Just think what it would mean if Macaulia should lose and the Sassenach should triumph.

Meanwhile, the price of all other necessities of life having gone up, the New York managers are looking to a rise in the scale for theater tickets. David Belasco is the pioneer in the movement, and has boosted the charge per seat at his theater to $2.50, and the rest are watching to see how he comes out in order to follow if it looks good. Just what percentage the managers are to have out of this don't show on the surface, but the bet is good that the public is to be skinned if possible. Meantime, a current magazine is telling of actors who are millionaires, and of one who is taking in $60,000 a year, while Charles Frohman can afford to lose half a million annually in New York, and still keep on easy street because of his profits in America. To an outsider it seems that a more popular move for the managers would be in the other direction.

How to Banish a Double Chin and Wrinkles.

(Women's Fortnightly Journal.) In a few weeks time you will not know that you ever possessed wrinkles, "crow's feet," a double chin or enlarged pores if you go right now to the drug store and buy an ounce and a half of the modified jelly, and rub half a teaspoonful into your face until it is absorbed, and follow it with a wash of very cold water. After only one treatment your face will feel taut and refreshed. This old-fashioned home remedy really produces marvelous results, although its action is simple and natural. As you perhaps know, the fibrous tissues beneath the cuticle become starved and dried. These modified jelly feeds and nourishes these tissues and supplies them with the needed moisture. This it reaches, the real cause of aging, giving flesh and starts blood circulation to bring the clear blood again to its old-time smoothness and healthy firmness.

State is Trying to Check the Dreaded Disease of Anthrax

Precautions to check the spread of the deadly anthrax among cattle and humans along the Big Pappo were taken yesterday by Dr. C. C. Hall, assistant state veterinarian, under direction of State Veterinarian A. Rostrom, following a breaking out of anthrax among cattle of Charles Klomogor, a farmer living near Bennington. Persons failing to help check the spread of the disease will be prosecuted.

The Klomogor farm is the third on which the disease has shown itself. Joseph Mackland, who was attacked by anthrax about two weeks ago as a result of his skinning a cow which had died of the disease, has almost completely recovered. August Steinbuck, a neighbor of Mackland's, who also was attacked, has recovered. The deadly germs did not get into his blood.

Assistant State Veterinarian Hall vaccinated six cattle on the Klomogor farm yesterday afternoon and will vaccinate about 1,000 cattle along the Big Pappo within the next few days.

On order of the state veterinarian the following notice has been posted and its publication in The Bee requested:

An outbreak of anthrax along the Big Pappo river has occurred in three different places and it is probable that it will spread along that river unless all precautions are taken to prevent it.

It is absolutely necessary that all dead animals should be either buried or buried deeply covered with lime and at least four feet of dirt. Anyone found throwing any dead animal in this river will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

MERRY-MAKERS IN COLLISION

AUTOMOBILE STRIKES CARRIAGE

Reckless Chauffeur of Car Occupied by Lieutenant Muncaster Causes Runaway—Mrs. J. L. Burr Dragged Through Mud.

Two parties of merry-makers en route to the Ak-Sar-Ben ball last night suffered a thrilling experience when Lieutenant J. H. Muncaster's taxi-cab, piloted by a reckless chauffeur, collided with a carriage occupied by Mrs. R. S. Parker, 528 Davenport street, and her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Burr and Miss Ella Droste, 518 Park avenue.

In a runaway which followed the three women miraculously escaped serious injury or death, and their beautiful gowns were ruined, and the driver of the vehicle was dangerously hurt in being hurled from the cab seat by the impact. As soon as his progress was stopped by the collision, the chauffeur jumped to the crank of the machine, restarted it, and whirled away with Lieutenant Muncaster and the young woman who was accompanying him, imprisoned in the closed car, through streets, boulevards and alleys in a frenzy to escape.

Mrs. Burr sustained the most thrilling experience, yet escaped with only a few minor scratches. In turning the corner of Twenty-fourth and Webster in the runaway, the cab struck a lamp post and was split in two. Mrs. Parker and Miss Droste were thrown out into a pool of mud. Mrs. Burr clung to a bit of upholstery on the back seat of the cab while the vehicle, bouncing on its side, dashed from curbing to curbing.

"It was that I would be killed if I attempted to jump, so I just held on, expecting every minute to see the bar connecting the front and back wheels break and let me fall," she said. "The team turned up Burr street and went west along the car tracks. At Twenty-third street I saw a man standing on the corner. I screamed to him to stop the team. By the time he had started in pursuit the horses struck the mud and could go no farther.

"When I got out I saw my mother running toward me. She had not thought of her own injuries and I wasn't hurt very much. I was dragged about eighty feet in the mud and my ball gown—my wedding gown—was ruined."

Mrs. Parker was cut over the left eye and badly bruised about the body, though not dangerously.

Mrs. Burr wore a beautiful white satin dress and white slippers. Mrs. Parker's pale lavender silk dress and a handsome gray opera cloak were torn and mud splattered. Miss Droste was gowned in yellow silk. Her clothing suffered the least.

The carriage was going north on Twenty-third street near California when struck by the machine, coming from the east. The collision occurred at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Burr intended meeting her husband at the Den. He had gone early to participate in the grand march.

E. H. Hoover, driver of the automobile, was caught in front of the Loyal hotel by Emergency Officers Emery and Wheeler. He was charged with reckless driving and drunkenness. The automobile was owned by Llewellyn Boone, who operates the Loyal hotel taxicab stand.

Isadore Plotkin, foreman of the A. Meicher livery barn, 1115 Leavenworth street, was driving the cab. He was badly bruised and lacerated about the head and shoulders and is thought to have sustained concussion of the brain.

Proving That Beauty Is Only Skin Deep

(From Dramatic Circle.) A very interesting proof of the old adage has lately been brought to the notice of fashionable women at Newport and Atlantic City. It has been discovered that even the blottiest and muddiest complexions are merely masks that cover perfect pink and white skins which may be easily revealed. All that is necessary is to rub on ordinary pure colored balsam, which is kept in stock at all up-to-date drug stores; the purifying and cleansing properties of colored balsam become active at once, and the outer skin quickly flings off its particles and presto! there is the bright young complexion of sweet sixteen, as if it had never been impaired at all.

Of course, all such blemishes as sallowness, pimples, liver spots, freckles, etc., come off with the removal of the outer skin.
