TRIPLETS FRIDAY, THIRTEEN

Des Moines Woman Mother of Three in Clinical Room.

RECORD FOR MEDICAL SCHOOL

Commissioner Harlan of Interstate Commerce Body Will Preside at Rate Complaint Hearings to Be Held in Iowa.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 12.—(Special Telegram.)—James A. Donald and his wife, residents of this city, are fully convinced that Friday the 13th is an unlucky day for them, for they became parents of three babies this morning, all girls. All that was unlucky about the affair was that the nurse had made preparations for only one baby and this caused much embarrassment. The trio was born in the clinical room of St. Luke's hospital, and it is declared by the college authorities the first time in the history of medical colleges that any such feature was ever arranged for a clinic.

Commissioner Harlan of the Interstate Commerce commission will preside at the hearing of the Iowa & Des Moines freight rate complaints, which will be held before a session of the Interstate Commerce commission here. Persons interested were also informed that the hearing will begin in the federal court rooms here on Saturday, October 28, instead of on Monday, October 30, as was at first planned.

COURT SESSION AT GLENWOOD

Burlington Railroad Wins One Damage Case Growing Out of Overflow of Pony Creek.

GLENWOOD, Ia., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—The jury in the case of Charles Fisher against the Burlington railroad after being out all night brought in a verdict for the defendant. Eight other cases, the outgrowth of the overflow of Pony creek north of Pacific Junction in 1906, are pending and several already have been tried. The contention of the plaintiffs is that the bridge over the creek ditch obstructed the flow of the high water and caused it to flood their lands. The cases already tried have resulted in verdicts against the Burlington except this one. L. C. Adams secured a verdict for $2,300. W. C. DeLamatt for $2,500. This last case was appealed and affirmed. Dickerson against the Burlington judgment, $1,500, appealed and settled by the company.

Eighteen cases, all much alike, have been settled out of court. Estes against the Burlington, verdict for plaintiff of $2,122.42.

It is believed that there will be no more jury cases this term, which is in its fourth week.

CHALLENGE FOR FIRST TALESMAN

sworn G. Ray Horton of counsel for the state.

"I want to state in open court," said Mr. Darrow, "that this defendant is a member of organized labor."

"If you were a member of organized labor," continued Mr. Davis, "and you were a defendant, would you feel that a juror in the box such as yourself could give the defendant an impartial trial?"

"There is no evidence in the case on the subject of unions so far as I can see."

"In other words, you have such an opinion as it would make evidence to remove."

"Yes."

Mr. Nelson admitted that he had read newspaper reports of the case.

"Did you read O. E. McManigal's testimony before the grand jury as published in the Los Angeles Examiner?"

"I don't think I ever have, but I have heard of it."

"It is upon the statement that you have heard that O. E. McManigal gave before the grand jury and committee appointed by the mayor to investigate and investigate you made yourself that you form your opinion."

Mr. Horton objected that the question was too complex.

The court permitted the question to be answered.

"I formed my opinion from what little I have seen and the opinions of the general public as to how the explosion happened."

"Have you any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant?"

"I have."

"How long have you had these opinions?"

"Four to six months."

The ventriloquist added that he had by personal investigation formed an opinion as to whether the explosion was caused by gas or dynamite.

Juror is Challenged.

"We challenge the juror as being biased," suddenly said Mr. Davis and the prosecution resisted the challenge and began a cross-examination.

"Have you ever seen the defendant before, or are you acquainted with him?" asked Mr. Horton for the state.

"No."

"Did you ever talk with any one about the case who purported to be an agent for the defense?"

"No."

"Where were you on the night of the explosion?"

"At my home."

"You feel that you have an opinion not founded on newspaper reports as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner?"

"I wouldn't convict on newspaper reports or on rumors."

"In other words, if you were sworn and no other facts were introduced except as are in your mind from notoriety and rumor, would you find the prisoner not guilty?"

"I wouldn't want to."

"Have you any bias then?"

"Not personally."

"Would you give this defendant an impartial trial?"

"I believe I could."

"If you were sworn as a juror would you, independent of your opinion now, try the defendant impartially?"

"I try to."

"Your state of mind is such that you would resist the introduction of evidence to remove your opinion?"

"It would take evidence to remove my opinion."

"Entertaining the opinion you have of organized labor in the United States would that feeling bias you in an effort to reach a verdict?"

"To a certainty it would."

"In what way?"

"I can't say exactly."

"Are you in a state of mind that you could ignore your opinions?"

"Yes."

Here Mr. Horton concluded his cross-examination and asked that the challenge be denied.

The court began to interrogate Mr. Nelson to determine whether he had any bias.

"On Wednesday of this week you were asked whether labor unions are proper or are a menace," said Judge Bordwell, "and you said you had no objection to them as organized. Are you prejudiced against labor unions?"

"No," was the reply.

"Have you any prejudice against the defendant as a man?"

"No."

"Have you any question that the Times building was destroyed by dynamite?"

interposed Mr. Davis for the defense.

"No, it is my opinion," was the answer.

"You have no doubt about it?"

"No."

"It would take strong evidence to remove your opinion."

"Yes."

"That is all," snapped Mr. Davis.

"But your mind is open enough to receive evidence against that?" asked Mr. Horton.

"Strong evidence."

During the interrogation Mr. Darrow walked about the bar, his hands in his pockets. Occasionally he leaned over the chairs of the assistants to the district attorney and jested with them in a low voice.

The questioning was a slow process, numerous objections supported by quotations from ponderous law books being interposed. Repeatedly the ventriloquist said he had reached conclusions about the case, to alter which it would require strong evidence.

Judge Bordwell then admonished other ventriloquists in the room not to read papers or converse about the case among themselves.

Those in the jury box as well as the ventriloquist then were asked by the court to leave the chamber until 2 o'clock while argument was being conducted between counsel for each side as to what extent the court could interrogate ventriloquists.

Argument on Challenges.

"This is the first juror," began District Attorney Fredericks, "and I doubt whether we will ever get a juror who has not formed some opinion on this case."

He then cited California cases in which challenges were not allowed where jurors had declared they had formed an opinion.

Judge Bordwell declared he would welcome extensive arguments on the subject.

"Nelson has a prejudice first against labor unions," said Mr. Darrow, "then he has a fixed opinion in the case which would not be removed except by strong evidence. Any human being can see by his answers that he has studied the case. He has an opinion, too, that the building was blown up by dynamite. I say he is, therefore, an incompetent juror by California law, and the law of any civilized community."

The prisoner sat unconcerned through the argument.

Mr. Darrow, citing a case where a ventriloquist admitted strong prejudice and had been disqualified, fairly shook.

"It would be hard to find a juror more prejudiced anywhere on any case than this man Nelson, and yet the state would ask that the challenge be disallowed."

Mr. Darrow condemned the possibility of admitting as jurors ventriloquists such as Nelson.

"The common law," he declared, "would not allow such jurors and affords the defendant protection. And he needs it if any defendant ever did in the state of California."

Mr. Darrow also added that a case of bias instanced in the state supreme court Claims of selling "Better Clothing" are heard on every hand--but what other store in Omaha can submit as strong proofs as does Browning, King & Co.?

The clothing sold by this store is better because--

Every garment is made in our own New York workshops under the personal supervision of master tailors, whose duty lies not in seeing how many garments can be turned out, but in seeing as to the superior character of the garments that are turned out.

The materials are the cream of several mills, many patterns being made exclusively for us. These cloths are acid tested all wool—and must come up to the severe quality test of the Browning, King & Co. standard before being accepted. The linings and findings are of the best possible quality, in keeping with the cost of the garment. Our staff of designers are second to none, their style ideas are used exclusively in B., K. & Co. clothing.

More than sixty years of practical experience in clothes making goes into every suit or overcoat bearing the Browning, King & Co. label.

We submit these as advance proofs that our clothing is better—but the final and convincing proof is best developed by the wear—it's only then that you can truly appreciate the service and satisfaction to be derived from a Browning, King & Co. Suit or Overcoat.

they are in a position to cope with any opposition.

Parties of government troops which are removing here from time to time are met promptly by revolutionists who endeavor to persuade them to join the movement. If they refuse they are allowed to withdraw beyond the limits of the city. American Consul General Rodgers S. Greene crossed the Yang Tze river to Wu Chang today accompanied by the commander of the American gunboat Helena, the Associated Press correspondent and two Chinese interpreters. The party went unarmed and entered the gates of the city after they had been opened for a squad of rebel artillery to pass out.

The party interviewed Colonel Li, the rebel commander, who treated them with every courtesy and assured them of their safety while in the city.

Consul General Greene gathered up forty-four foreigners who had not yet left the city, including Americans, Englishmen and Italians and took them back to Hankow. The missionaries were accompanied by 50 of their Chinese protectors. The party was unopposed on its way through Wu Chang, being escorted all the way by a squad of rebel troops.

Dr. Sen in United States.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—Ng Poon Chew, editor of the local Chinese paper, Chung Sai Yat Po, informed the Associated Press this afternoon that Dr. Sun Yat Sen has been in this country for the last four months, lecturing in behalf of Chinese revolutionists. Recently Dr. Sen was in Pacific coast cities and is now thought to be somewhere in the middle west.

Well informed Chinese here say little is known regarding Li Yuan Hung and that he probably has been elected to the presidency of the newly proclaimed republic only temporarily. He is said to have received an European education and to have graduated from the naval academy at Tian Tsin. He was a lieutenant commander of the imperial navy army, which revolted.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, whom Peking advisers state the revolutionists hope to see president of a Chinese republic, is well known here. He claims to be a citizen of the United States and has repeatedly been admitted to the country on his representation that he was born in Hawaii.

General Li Yuan Heng, described as the military leader of the revolutionists, is not known at the Chinese embassy or to the State department officials.

SECOND TRIAL OF RUDOLPH BRANDENBURG BEGINS

DAVENPORT, Ia., Oct. 12.—The second trial of Rudolph Brandenburg, aged 21 years, formerly of Omaha, charged with the killing of his stepfather, Claus Muenster, last year, began today in the Scott county district court before Judge Letts.

The jury in the first trial disagreed. Brandenburg claims that the killing was in self defense and occurred during a quarrel during which he claims Muenster grossly defamed the character of Brandenburg's mother, Mrs. Muenster.

Alleged Bank Robber Bound Over.

HARLAN, Ia., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—"Fatty" King, the alleged attempted robber of the Panama (Ia.) bank was given a preliminary hearing before Justice Dunlavy Wednesday and bound over to await the action of the grand jury. Several witnesses testified that they saw King in Panama on the night of the attempted robbery.
