

SCORE GERMAN CHANCELLOR

Pan-Germans Lead in the Attack on Von Kiderlen-Waechter.

WANTED A SLICE OF MOROCCO

Agreement with France Has Not Satisfied Any of the Political Groups at Home and All Denounce Kaiser's Adviser.

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—The decision of the chief points of the Moroccan controversy has brought with it a fresh crisis in the shape of a many-sided attack on the German ministry, and more especially on the foreign secretary, Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter. The agreement with France seems to have dissatisfied all quarters. The Pan-Germans are bitterly disappointed because Germany has not obtained a share of Morocco, even had it been at the price of war; the national liberals and conservatives, because German policy in their opinion has been too conciliatory; the socialists, because the country has from their point of view been led perilously near to war over a matter which was not worth the risk. The non-partisan press is adding to the outcry by condemning loudly the mystery which surrounded the negotiations from beginning to end.

How Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter will extricate himself from his unpromising situation remains to be seen. It is certain that he will be the subject of fierce attacks on the meeting of the Reichstag, and his resignation may be demanded.

Big Navigation Project.

One of the most important engineering undertakings now engaging attention in Germany is a plan to make the Rhine navigable from Biele, Switzerland, to Lake Constance. Three south German states and Switzerland are interesting themselves in the matter. While it has not yet been definitely decided to carry out the scheme, three companies now building dams for power purposes on the stream have been ordered to put in locks of at least 265 feet length to accommodate the large barges that are expected to ply on the stream. The most difficult technical problem in the way of carrying out the scheme is to overcome the rise of about eighty feet at the falls of the Rhine at Schaffhausen. Here it is proposed either to build two locks of about forty feet rise each, or to put in a ship elevator, similar to the one already in use at Hirshenburg, on the Dortmund-Kana canal, where barges are run into huge tanks, and these then lifted by hydraulic pressure to the level of the higher stretch of the canal.

Some Difficult Problems.

Another difficult point is at Laufenburg, some fifteen or twenty miles east of Biele, where the river rushes through a gorge and has a fall of about forty-five feet; and the water here is three times the volume at Schaffhausen. A dam is already building here and will be completed in a few years, developing about 50,000 horsepower.

A number of other power plants of smaller proportions will be built at various points along the stream to overcome rapids; finally a very large one will be built some ten miles below Biele by the Alsatian manufacturing city of Mulhouse. Manufacturing towns will spring up, it is believed, on both the German and Swiss sides of the river.

The total cost of the undertaking is estimated at about $10,000,000, apparently not including dam building. Of this sum the three German states of Baden, Württemberg and Bavaria are to pay $4,000,000, Switzerland, $4,000,000, and Austria, $2,000,000.

New Torpedo Net.

The Navy department has succeeded in improving the torpedo net for the protection of warships to such an extent that all the newer vessels are to be provided with it as soon as possible. Hitherto few ships have been protected in this way, as it had been found that speed was diminished by the attachment of nets and also that the old style of net was under way. A recent invention made by a naval officer, whose improvement has been kept secret, has overcome these difficulties and permits the vessels to steam at undiminished speed while the net is fully spread.

W. B. SCOTT GENERAL MANAGER

Latter Also Has the Title of Vice President in Charge of Operations—All Will Have Their Offices in Omaha.

Two Omaha men have been given promotions by the Union Pacific. T. M. Orr, assistant general manager, was promoted to assistant to President Mohler at the meeting of the board of directors of the road held in New York Friday afternoon. J. A. Munroe, who has been general freight traffic manager, was promoted to vice president in charge of traffic. W. B. Scott, assistant traffic director for the road in Chicago, is promoted to be vice president and general manager in charge of operations.

The promotion of Mr. Orr and Mr. Munroe will be effective at once, and Mr. Scott's promotion will go into effect November 1. Headquarters of the three promoted men will be in Omaha. Mr. Orr first started into railroad work for the New York Central in its freight office in Buffalo and worked there until 1887, when he came to Council Bluffs for the Union Pacific. He worked there for a short time in the freight office and then came to Omaha. Mr. Orr has been in the employ of the road from 1887, except fourteen months when he worked for the Gould Southwestern line in Texas. Mr. Munroe has been in the employ of the road since 1890, at which time he came here from Kansas City. In October of 1890 he was made general freight agent, prior to which time he was assistant general freight agent.

Sixty-Four Skilled Workmen Go to Work in the Local Shops

Sixty-four skilled machinists were placed in the Omaha shops of the Union Pacific railroad Saturday morning to fill the positions of strikers. They were brought from the east in a special tourist car and taken direct to the shops. Few strikers were about the shops when the "breakers" detained and entered.

Two carloads of strikebreakers arrived in Omaha Saturday morning en route west. They came on No. 33. At Omaha they were all placed in one car and then the journey was resumed. A complete absence of disorder has marked the strike for the last week. Local labor leaders and Union Pacific officials seem united in the effort to prevent trouble. Another meeting was held by the strikers at Wolfe's hall Saturday morning and the strike situation discussed.

BIG LAND SHOW WILL OPEN ITS DOORS MONDAY

hibit of fruit, grain, grasses and minerals that is second to none, showing what state is doing in the way of holding out an invitation to men and capital to come within its borders.

The exhibit of South Dakota is largely grain, but there is enough of the horticultural to show conclusively that state is not taking a back seat for any of its neighbors.

Fine Nebraska Exhibit. Of course, Nebraska is the "old reliable," and is showing an enormous quantity of grain, alfalfa and other forage plants. Corn is featured and the eyes of the visitors will open wide when they gaze upon the enormous and varied display of this cereal. Then, too, Nebraska is not so far behind in the way of showing fruits. It is "there with the goods."

The three tents outside the Coliseum are given over to the exhibitors of farm and ranch machinery. In them there are steam engines sufficiently large to carry a half dozen plows; great pumps for raising water to spread over the land for irrigation. Then there are scores of machines that are in the nature of labor saving devices, intended to make the work of the farmer and rancher easier. The interior of the Coliseum never was as attractive as now. It was only a few days ago that the Ak-Sar-Ben coronation ball was held and the Land Show management has made arrangements with the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben so that most of the royal trappings and decorations have been left in place. Their bright colors, mingling with those of the fruit and the golden grain, form a picture that the most skilled artist would envy.

The illuminations of the building are something that is most artistic, as well as beautiful. Besides the myriad of tricolor electric lights, typical of the Ak-Sar-Ben festivities, there are thousands of incandescents, which, when turned on, will illuminate the building until its interior at night will be as bright as at noon. To light the building, besides the numerous areas and hundreds of fancy lights around the booths, there will be 4,600 sixteen-candlepower incandescents arranged in the ceiling and in festoons around the walls and up through the center.

The great doors at the south end of the Coliseum will be used as the main entrance to the building. When entering these the spectator will get an impression that will be lasting. Up through the center of the great building for a distance of 300 feet the spectator will walk through a colonnade twenty feet wide. This colonnade consists of twenty columns, white and in imitation of marble, set twenty feet apart and each surmounted by a life-sized allegorical figure. The columns are twenty-seven feet high.

Walking from the south entrance up the colonnade to the north, as the visitor approaches the stage, he will be confronted by a panorama of moving pictures, or rather one picture painted upon a canvas sixteen feet in height and 1,300 feet in length. This picture moves in three directions, up and down and to the left. On it is painted by eminent artists scenes portraying the development of the west. The artist lets his imagination start with the time when Lewis and Clark passed up the Missouri river on their voyage of discovery. Then step by step he takes up the development of the central and the Pacific west, finishing with the conditions as they exist at the present time.

Street Car Fares Not to Be Raised on Omaha Lines

The Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway company has no thought of increasing street car fares, as recommended for the national organization of street car companies at the recent meeting, according to Assistant General Manager R. A. Leussler of the local company. "It probably will be necessary for some companies, in eastern cities that have ceased to grow, to raise their fares," said Mr. Leussler, "but there is no necessity for raising them here. If Omaha were at a standstill, we might have to do it, but Omaha is growing rapidly and we look for rapidly increasing business for money to pay our dividends."

"Professors" Named to Instruct Voters

In regular session Saturday, the Board of County Commissioners established a "school of instruction for voters," naming James Allen, F. E. The duty of the professors will be to appear when called upon and at such places as may be designated and tell voters how to operate the voting machines. Commissioner Lynch was the only member voting against the establishment of the "school."

MANY REPUBLICANS ARE VISITING IN OMAHA

Numerous republican visitors continue to arrive at the headquarters of the state republican central committee at the Millard hotel, coming from out in the state. And all bring reports of indications of republican victory all along the line at the November election. Saturday J. C. McNish of Winier, county chairman of Cuming county, called upon Secretary Allen and a little later William Husestetter of Linwood, Butler county, dropped in. Mr. Husestetter was formerly chairman of the state committee and is taking just as much interest in Nebraska politics as when he was directing the affairs of the party. Chairman McNish is well pleased with conditions in Cuming county and has the party lined up for the whole ticket, state and county. Butler county, according to Mr. Husestetter, is almost certain of rolling up one of the largest republican majorities in its history.
