OMAHA INVITES ALL TOWNS

Every Village Can Send Delegates to Municipalities League.

PROGRAM INTERESTING TO ALL
Object is to Promote the Best Methods of Municipal Rule and Legislation to Make Them Possible.

Every city and village in the state is invited by Secretary Ozmun of the League of Nebraska Municipalities to send delegates to the annual league meeting in Omaha, November 15, 16 and 17, whether they hold membership in the league or not. Thirty-two cities and villages are now members of the league and it is expected that this number will be multiplied several times at this fall's convention.

The program will include discussions of city administration, paving, water plants, prevention of fires and other subjects interesting to officials of every municipality, no matter how small. Plans will also be taken up for the introduction of bills in the next legislature in the interests of municipal government.

The objects of the league, as stated by the constitution, are as follows:
1. To perpetuate and develop the league as an agency for the co-operation of Nebraska municipalities in the practical study of municipal affairs.
2. To promote the application of the best of methods in all branches of municipal service by holding at least one convention annually for the discussion of problems in municipal administration and by circulating information and experience thereupon.

3. To secure legislation that will be beneficial to the municipalities of the state and the taxpayers thereof, and to oppose legislation injurious thereto.

Hall and Taylor Are Out With Creighton

A new candidate appeared on the Creighton campus Thursday night, wearing a blue and white uniform. It was Taylor, colored, a medical student. He is a Nebraska star of former years. He is big, fast and experienced and will handily fill in a line position, very probably at guard.

Even better than this is the announcement that Hall, Creighton's big center of last year, will again don the pads. This position has been robbily all season, but with Hall back on the job it will considerably steady the line. Balderson and Prouke are still on the hospital list and will scarcely be able to hold down the half back jobs, but with this exception, Miller will pit his strongest team against Omaha university in the first local struggle.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

H. E. Fredrickson, who has been in Omaha for the last few days looking over his automobile business, has returned to his ranch in Wyoming, where he expects to remain for the next three weeks shooting deer.

Former County Judge J. R. Rhodes of Ansley is in Omaha receiving treatment for an injury to his eye. While taking a shaft off a casting, a splinter sank in his eyeball. He may lose his sight.

Mr. E. P. Pittman, the banker from Chadron, is here attending the Land show.

Mrs. Theodore S. Couch and daughter, Mrs. W. E. Kirtz, of Ben. Wash, are visiting friends in the city.

Blotcky Refutes Assertions that Potatoes Are High

"I will buy any amount of Colorado potatoes, from ten to 250 cars, laid down at Omaha, at 70 cents a bushel," said H. Blotcky, replying to a statement in The Bee by E. A. Stanton of Greeley, Colo., that Colorado growers were getting almost nothing for their "spuds" and the retail price should be about 20 to 40 cents a bushel.

Mr. Blotcky says blight ruined the Colorado crop this year. He showed letters from the Potato Growers' association of Brush, Colo., saying, "We cannot sell you any potatoes. We will not have enough for our own market." Mr. Blotcky says he received similar letters from Greeley and Fort Morgan.

"The cheapest that good potatoes have been bought in carload lots by Omaha produce men," said Mr. Blotcky, "is 80 cents a bushel. With shrinkage to stand and sacks to furnish, this would mean 83 cents. Good stock has never been sold to Omaha retailers this fall for less than 90 cents a bushel. The retail firm that sold northern spuds last Saturday at 80 cents a bushel was losing 7 cents a bushel on the deal, using spuds as a leader.

"The potatoes that the mayor of Des Moines is selling at 65 cents are hollow and Omaha retailers wouldn't handle them at any price. Practically all the Iowa crop this year is hollow. The retailers of Omaha are demanding northern potatoes, and the freight from the fields to Omaha runs 17 to 20 cents a bushel."

Merchant Tries an Old, Wornout Plan

There is a good story now told of how an overzealous clothing merchant who, owning vacant stores on either side, rented them to enterprising competitors and then put a sign over his own door, reading, "Main Entrance."

This amusing incident has existed purely as a bit of fiction up to the present moment when an Omaha merchant of like enterprise attempts the identical trick on a competitor.

On Wednesday or Thursday of this week the local papers carried large advertisements announcing the opening of a new store under the name "Manhattan Sample Store," which announces men's, women's and children's apparel. The firm took the best location at hand, securing the Brown block, at the southeast corner of Sixteenth and Douglas streets, and proceeded to arrange attractive signs along the side of the Sixteenth street entrance.

The basement below the Manhattan company's store is another clothing shop. The Manhattan company announced "opening" suits at $9.99, when, behold, the goods in the basement immediately were marked identically $9.99. More than this, signs, together with "flats," point the way to the basement with the uncondemned quotation, from the humorous story, "Main Entrance."

This merely goes to show that enterprise is more important than income to merchants who strive hard for business. It recalls the policy of some of the 10-cent store companies operating chains of stores across the United States. It is known that these people never advertise, always renting a location between two regular advertisers, thus pilfering the benefits of their publicity. These 10-cent bargain stores know the value of newspaper advertising, however, and upon their opening in new locations plan every possible effort to get "news stories" into the newspapers. Children are "crushed to death" in the crowds; "women faint"; strong men weep—all of the old chestnuts go into their clumsy press agent attempts. On one occasion in the city of Omaha every newspaper was besieged in an effort to get into print stories of the "awful crush" at the opening of the new store.

OMAHA BOY IN SURGICAL FEAT

Dr. Carl Connell Has All New York Talking of His Work.

EDUCATED IN OMAHA SCHOOLS
Son of W. J. Connell Saves Piano Manufacturer's Life by an Emergency Operation at Hospital.

News of a remarkable surgical operation performed in the Roosevelt hospital in New York by Carl Connell, son of W. J. Connell of this city, upon Carl Peck, a wealthy piano manufacturer, was received this morning, and the young man, who was hitherto working in comparative obscurity, is now one of the most talked of surgeons in New York. Mr. Peck was inspecting a new building Monday afternoon, when a heavy beam fell from the third floor and struck him on the head, fracturing his skull and imbedding pieces of bone in the brain. His life was despaired of at the hospital, but young Connell, without waiting for the consent of the victim's relatives, operated successfully and with haste and removed the fragments of the bone, with the result that the patient will be able to leave the hospital in a few weeks.

The young physician was raised and educated in Omaha schools. He took up his work in the Roosevelt hospital in New York in a minor position, but by successfully performing the operation Monday he has won himself a place in the ranks of New York's best surgeons. The New York papers are loud in his praise, and according to the friends of Mr. Peck, who wrote local friends, the operation is the sensation of New York medical circles.

Moran Acquitted; to Be Tried Again

Acquitted in criminal court of the charge of holding up and robbing Howard Bliss on the night of June 28, Frank Moran was taken back to the county jail Friday to await trial for holding up and robbing Joseph Stollinski on the same night. Moran's acquittal was a surprise, for during the trial it developed that he was with Samuel Baxter and Charles Philbert when they held up Bliss.

Blaine Young, the Omaha golfer who distinguished himself by making a phenomenal low score the first day of the Transmississippi golf tournament, was ordered to pay Logan McMenemy $150 for a motorcycle he purchased from the lad by Judge Leslie in county court Friday.
