

JUBILEE OF CHURCH PRINCE

Imposing Honors Paid to Cardinal Gibbons at Baltimore.

TWO ANNIVERSARIES OBSERVED

"Let Us Uphold America, Which Gives Liberty Without License and Wields Authority Without Despotism."

The golden jubilee of the priest, the silver jubilee of the cardinal, were combined in the ecclesiastical tribute to his eminence, James Cardinal Gibbons, in a series of celebrations, which occupied most of the past week in Baltimore.

An Impressive Picture. The picture was of superb dramatic effect, the purple berettes of the prelates, with their violet garniture; the acolytes, with their white and crimson cassocks; the deacons and ministers in creamy silk and gold, the high priest himself, chief object in this splendid array, from which all else radiated, now slowly ascending to the door of the tabernacle.

From the body of the church a stately and superb spectacle was presented, the altar glowing with the multitude of lights, the pale roses swooning from their stems and the white lilies rising from their cups, the perfume, mingled with the odor of the wax, diffused through all the recesses of the vast structure.

A similar scene was presented at the evening vesper service, when Archbishop Farley of New York pontificated and the eloquent Archbishop Blenk of New Orleans delivered the sermon.

The cardinal presided at the jubilee dinner given in his honor at St. Mary's seminary, Sunday afternoon. The accompanying photograph of this distinguished company was made outdoors by flashlight, after dark, and is the only one made at the seminary.

During the week days there was a succession of jubilee processions, receptions, banquets, presentations, and minor ceremonies, each in its way a testimonial of affection for Baltimore's distinguished son and churchman.

Ravages of the Years.

Cardinal Gibbons is 77 past. All the priests who were ordained for the Baltimore diocese with him have passed away. All his Episcopal brethren with whom he began his labors after consecration, forty-three years ago, have gone to their reward. With one solitary exception, the venerable Bishop Hogan of Kansas City, retired, Cardinal Satoli, who presided at the archbishop's silver jubilee in Baltimore, eighty-two years ago, and Father Rooker, bearer of the papal appointment to the Sacred College of Cardinals, are numbered among the dead.

The American spirit of Cardinal Gibbons was the principal feature of the many tributes paid to him by prelates and laymen during the week's exercises. In none of these in the spirit of the citizen as well as churchman so clearly and concisely stated as by the cardinal himself in his jubilee message: "Let us uphold America, which gives liberty without license and wields authority without despotism."

"To the young men of the nation I would say: Let more young men of education and virtuous ideals give themselves to the public service, and if they do so with clean hearts and hands the pregnant evils of government must be eliminated. In serving their country they are serving God. The better class of our citizens so often stand aloof from practical politics and the conduct of campaigns."

"On the other hand, obedience to lawful authority, where the laws are made by authority of the whole body of citizenship, rests upon all. A citizen has the undoubted right to criticize the official conduct of public functionaries, but this should be done with calmness, temperance and dispassionate judgment."

"Citizens of the United States should take a patriotic part in every measure that contributes to the progress of the commonwealth."

"No man should be a drone in the social beehive. No citizen should be an indifferent spectator of the political, moral and economic questions that are agitated around him."

Divorce a Dangerous Canker. "All of us, but the growing generation particularly—for the welfare of the republic—should be outspoken opponents of divorce. It is a canker which is eating into the very vitals of our life. Society—our whole civilization—uprears itself upon the sanctity of the home and the unity of the family. When you attack the family you attack government itself. Government must expunge from its statutes the criminal divorce laws, which the best of our life abhors."

"The people of the United States are a religious people, this notwithstanding the mistake made by many that we are not a religious country because there is no union between church and state. 'I maintain that no country in the world has a stronger religious basis than the United States. Our common law is taken from the common law of England, which is thoroughly permeated with the spirit of Christianity. Where is the Christian Sabbath better observed than here? 'May these blessings continue to be enjoyed. They are the products of a sound civilization which depend upon sound, popular education. 'Let us uphold America. As we all have a share in the blessings of the republic, so should we all take an active and loyal part in upholding the commonwealth, which gives liberty without license and wields authority without despotism."

BERLIN EATS HORSE FLESH

It is Article of Common Use Since Rise in Price of Meat. THIRTY-FIVE MILLION POUNDS Consumption for the First Six Months of Year is Nearly Equal to that of Mutton.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—The prices of all kinds of meat have risen to such an extent throughout the empire that horse-flesh has become an article of common consumption. In the first six months of this year 35,771,495 pounds of horseflesh were sold as against 45,533,533 pounds of mutton.

In view of the great agitation for a decrease in import duties on foodstuffs and the abolition of the export bounty system which raises the price of fodder, the Prussian minister of agriculture has issued a decree in which he points out the great difference between wholesale and retail prices, especially in regard to pork, which is the favorite meat of the Germans, forming more than half of the total of meat consumed. The minister enjoins the cities to endeavor to bring about an understanding with the retailers and if they are unable to do so to take effective action by selling meat, vegetables, fruit and more especially fish, themselves, and to this end he promises to arrange that reduced railroad freight tariffs shall be accorded to municipalities which provide retail food stores for the benefit of their citizens.

Wilmersdorf and other suburbs of Berlin have already started municipal fish stores which are a great success, and Berlin has just decided to open seventy stalls for a similar purpose in the public market. Many provincial cities are following suit.

School for Consuls.

Following the United States Department of State, the German government has established a regular school for candidates for appointment in the consular service. Funds for the school were largely provided by exporting firms, whose co-operation in the instruction of the future consuls has also been sought, the aim of the department being to give them practical business training and experience instead of the bureaucratic education they hitherto received as attaches for a year in the commercial section of the ministry. Business men and professors from the universities and technical schools will co-operate in the training of the future consuls.

Gun for Heavens Prince.

KEEPING WARM IN THE YUKON

Problem of Heating When the Mercury is Down in the Subcellar. The winters in the Yukon territory are from seven to eight months long, during at least five of which the thermometer ranges from zero to 70 degrees below.

The larger number of buildings are frame, and the price of wood, principally soft spruce, is 110 to 115 a cord. Consequently different schemes have been devised in order to take advantage of as much of the heating capacity of a cord of wood as possible. The stoves used for heating purposes, writes G. C. Woodward in Consular and Trade Reports, are made of sheet iron and known as upright heaters. In some cases these are purchased on the outside, having cast tops and bases, but they are ident Fallieres of France, the rifle, a repeater of the Mauser type, is likely to appeal more to the future emperor of Abyssinia, where hunting is still the sport of kings.

It is not only a weapon of the highest quality, but is highly ornamented in silver, the signature and crown of Emperor William being inscribed in this metal.

These drums in some cases are placed immediately next to the stove and in others as far as thirty feet—stant, according to the size of the room. They are also placed in different rooms from that which contains the stove, and in some cases on the second floor. In this way a great heating surface is obtained and at least 50 per cent more heat besides the distribution of the heat throughout the house, while the fire in the stove need not be so hot. It has also added to protection from fire, as the pipe is not hot where it goes through the roof.

The one disagreeable feature is the collection of creosote, which formerly was largely consumed by the intense heat of the smoke as it left the pipe. This has been overcome by making the bottom of the drum drain toward a hole in the center, permitting the creosote to run into a pan placed below for that purpose. As much as from one to four gallons of this creosote will collect in twenty-four hours, according to the size of the stove. So far no use has been found locally for this creosote, with the exception of a small amount used by gardeners for the destruction of plant insects and worms. The drums, being built within six inches of the floor, draws a certain amount of the cold air from the floor of the room and carries it off.

Catholic Books at Library Are Listed

The Knights of Columbus of Omaha and South Omaha have been instrumental in issuing a list of Catholic writers represented in the Libraries of Omaha and South Omaha. While the actual work of compilation was done at the Omaha Public Library, it is through the Knights of Columbus that the list has been printed and made available to the public in a neat pamphlet of thirty pages. The foreword was written by Father P. C. Gannon, who takes pains to explain that all books by Catholic writers cannot be recommended without qualification, as several writers who are ranked as Catholics became so only after much of their literary work had been done. Father Gannon further says that errors of inclusion and exclusion may without question be found in the list, but in cases where doubt existed the authority of similar lists compiled by the direction of other councils of the Knights of Columbus has been accepted. The books are classified under general heads, as philosophy, religion, sociology, education, etc. In the case of fiction, only the author's name is given, as in many cases the library has all of the works by that author and it did not seem necessary to quote by title.

Kaiser Thrives on Hunting.

The emperor's sojourn this year on his favorite shooting estate at Rominten, where he usually stays during the latter part of September and the first half of October, is proving enjoyable and invigorating to his majesty. He is accompanied by several intimate personal friends, including Prince zu Dohna-Schloditten and Count Henskel von Donnersmarck. These are occasionally joined by several other guests, those invited this year comprising Herr von Schorlemmer, the minister of agriculture; Admiral von Tirpitz and Freiherr Speck von Sternburg, while the officers of the neighboring garrisons are often asked to join in the shoot. On these occasions the emperor is in a most genial mood. After the day's shoot, the guests all sit down with him and the chief foresters to a hearty dinner, followed by a glass of beer and cigars. Sometimes a "sing-song" is indulged in, at which the guests join in the choruses of hunting melodies. The emperor sometimes takes his turn and

The Player Piano That Represents the Farthest Step Forward The CABLE-NELSON

In the beginning, and for several years thereafter, manufacturers of automatic players were experimenting. In making the Cable-Nelson player piano the Cable-Nelson Piano company has reached the farthest point in this field and today has on the market the highest type of player piano. It is perfecting after experimenting. The Cable-Nelson is an instrument which brings the best music of the world into your home and plays it in detail so exact that one must wonder how marvelous is such an instrument. The quality of tone, the grade of workmanship and the thoroughness of construction give the Cable-Nelson player piano a unique place in the field of automatic players. When you buy a Cable-Nelson you are getting the last word—the highest achievement—in player piano.
