

POPE'S CHOICE IS A SURPRISE

Distinction Conferred on Church in United States Causes Remark.

RECOGNITION OF HIGH PRELATES

Appointments Are in Line with the Policy of Pope Pius—Is Almost Without Parallel in Church's History.

ROME, Oct. 30.—The creation of three American cardinals has aroused intense interest in Rome. The fixing of the date for holding the consistory and the naming of fourteen other cardinals has been overshadowed by the announcement of the honors which are to go to the United States. Secrecy regarding the appointments was so well maintained that the great majority of the people of Rome only learned of the selection this morning. The warmest congratulations have been pouring into the Vatican today, many of them directed particularly to Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state.

The distinction conferred upon America is the highest in the history of the church, considering that that country until 1898 was still a missionary country. In the eyes of the Vatican and under the jurisdiction of the propaganda. Under similar conditions England is the only country which has ever had three cardinals at one time—Newman, Manning and Howard, whose entrance into the sacred college was due to their personalities. In the present instance, it is stated, the pope has decided to create three American prelates to the cardinalate in accordance with his oft-repeated assertion that he desired to show the great appreciation he has for the influence of America and the enlightenment of the episcopacy there.

The pope today recalled that when he was elected pontiff the first pilgrimage was an American pilgrimage; the first flag waved in St. Peter's for his election and the first he blessed were American. On that occasion he promised Cardinal Gibbons that eventually he would appoint not one but several American cardinals.

Will Send Biretta. To add solemnity to the honor conferred upon America, the pope, instead of having the new cardinals come here for the consistory, in November, will send them the red biretta by special delegations, each composed of a cardinal among the Italian and private chamberlains accompanied by a noble guard. The cardinals later will come to Rome to receive the red hat from the hands of the pope in a consistory to be held early in 1912.

The appointment of Monsignor Falconio will render the apostolic delegation at Washington vacant and this already has resulted in much discussion regarding Monsignor Falconio's successor. Those mentioned as most likely to receive this important appointment include Monsignor Stangl, apostolic delegate to Canada, who is well acquainted with the United States, where he resided for a time. Monsignor Agius, papal delegate in the Philippines, where he proved his sympathy for the United States in co-operation with the American officials, and Monsignor Aversa, envoy extraordinary to Cuba, who through a long residence in Cuba and Porto Rico has come into frequent contact with America and American people.

Others in Line.

The list includes Monsignor Prior, formerly rector of Buda college for Angeleno American affairs who is here now as judge of the Roman Tribunal, the Most Rev. Esther Denis Schuler, formerly minister general of the order of Friars Minor, but lately appointed a titular archbishop and finally, Monsignor Kennedy, rector of the American college in Rome, against whom might militate the fact that he is an American.

Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli expressed himself today as delighted with the pope's decision. Cardinal Vannutelli after the Eucharistic congress at Montreal in 1910, visited the United States and on his return to Rome, made an eulogistic report to the pope with reference to the condition of Catholicism in America and the extraordinary influence and prestige of the archbishops there. He urged the necessity of giving the great republic an adequate representation in the sacred college.

In speaking of the coming appointments, the cardinal said that indeed, he would have desired the appointment of even a greater number of American cardinals than three in order to give representation to the west. "But," he concluded, "this will be for another time."

Tariff Board is Busy on Schedule K

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The tariff board's much-discussed report on the woolen industry is to be transmitted to congress upon the opening of the next session in December and the board's report on cotton will follow probably before January 1. This, it became known today, is the administration's program with relation to the big tariff fight that will be waged in congress this winter.

A staff of fifteen clerks at the census bureau is putting the finishing touches upon the board's woolen report. Completion of the tables now being prepared will practically terminate the preparatory work on the report, and it is expected that it will be printed and placed in President Taft's hands in ample time for transmission to congress soon after Speaker Clark's gavel calls the first regular session of the Sixty-second congress to order December 1.

So far as can be learned no exhaustive investigation has been made with the idea of specifically attacking the tariff board's coming report, and democratic leaders now in the city said today that until the character of that report is known they cannot say whether they will assault or support it.

Aeroplane Great Aid to Italians.

ROME, Via Frontier, Oct. 30.—Official reports from Tripoli describe the great value of the aeroplane in the war. By their reconnaissance it has been possible to learn several hours in advance the movements, the strength and sometimes the efficiency of the enemy. In this way the Italian commander has been able to distribute his troops in such a manner as to make almost certain the repulse of an attack from any direction whatever.

Military critics here are of the opinion that when a signaling system from the aeroplane has been perfected the real direction of engagements will devolve upon officers in these machines. According to further official reports the Turks have resorted to all methods of opposing the invaders, including the poisoning of wells. This, however, has failed of its object, as in compliance with the orders of General Caneva, nobody is allowed to touch water without its first having been scientifically examined.

He Wrote "Goodbye" and Turned on Gas

An hour or so after she attempted to wake Nils Shriver, a lodger, yesterday noon, Mrs. K. E. Tanner, 2223 Dodge street, detected the strong odor of gas in her house. Shriver had refused to answer when she called him. After knocking again on his door and getting no answer, Mrs. Tanner called B. A. Brown, another lodger, who broke down Shriver's door. The gas jet in the room were open. Shriver lay dead on the bed.

A note he left said "goodbye." Police Surgeon Harris found that the man had died several hours before. It is thought he turned on the gas when he retired Saturday night, after returning from the theater. The body was taken by Coroner Crosby.

Albert Chesman, a laborer, was almost killed by asphyxiation early yesterday morning when he accidentally turned the gas on in his room before retiring. He was found at 1011 Pacific street. Mrs. John Asher, proprietor of the house, smelled gas and found the roomer who had engaged the room just the afternoon before lying on the bed apparently dead. The police were called. After two hours of work Dr. Criss managed to bring the young man out of his stupor.

AFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Fred Hoye Addresses Large Meeting of Lithuanians.

RECEIVES HEARTY WELCOME

Three Young Bandits Escape From Detention Home and Cannot Be Found—Robbery of Clothing Store.

Carrying the war into the heart of the enemy's country, Fred Hoye and several of the other candidates yesterday afternoon addressed a strong republican gathering of the Lithuanian voters in the Old Settlers' hall at Thirty-sixth and Q streets.

The meeting was held in the Seventh ward, which is admittedly one of the democratic strongholds and the local republicans claim that there has never been such an enthusiastic outpouring at a republican meeting in that section. Captain Lynch was chairman of the meeting and introduced Judge Ben S. Baker, who emphasized that the republican candidates were friends of labor. He showed that while Felix McShane was regarded as a "good fellow" by his friends and intimates, his friends and intimates had always been of the gilded youth, and not of the horny handed sons of toil. The speaker in closing admonished the laboring men to remember that election day would show whether they were true to their own friends, or deluded by those who had never professed or shown their friendship until the days of campaign.

Following Judge Baker's speech, the chairman introduced Fred S. Hoye, "next sheriff" of Douglas county. Hoye's appearance on the platform was greeted with applause and many of those present voiced their loyalty to him and the ticket.

Hoye Makes Address.

Mr. Hoye recalled that the first position ever held by him was that of a laborer in a packing house. He recounted to the attentive ears of his audience the struggle of his life, when, as a boy, he had been forced to spend in toll the days and hours that other boys had been privileged to spend in the school room. For fifteen years he said he had carried the hod and "worked on the wall" as a bricklayer. With the assistance of a trial workmen with whom he had associated himself he had risen to be a contractor who never forgot that he was first a laboring man.

Hoye asked the audience if they, in their good judgment, could afford to elect to office McShane, a young man, a rich man, a man who had never been forced to look at a dollar from the wage-earner's point of view.

The speaker concluded by telling the audience that he had come to talk to them in the plain blunt speech of one man to another. He had not sought to influence them by the use of high sounding terms or lurid rhetoric. Just as one friend of labor to another he asked their vote at election.

Hoye's speech was listened to attentively by those who were present and his emphasis on his fealty to labor won much applause.

George McBride, candidate for county surveyor; Frank C. Best, candidate for county commissioner; George Dewey, candidate for county clerk, and Charles Abstadt, candidate for police judge in South Omaha, addressed the meeting.

Mayor P. J. Tanner commended the candidates present and the whole republican ticket to his old friends and neighbors, whom he thanked for their attention.

At the close of the meeting, nearly 20 people repaired to the Polish stage, where the candidates received a cordial welcome.

Annexationists Issue Letter.

The committee in charge of the annexation publicity bureau issued a circular letter in part as follows: "People of South Omaha, do you realize what it means to be a part and parcel of a great city like Omaha? Do you realize that if South Omaha is annexed to Omaha that the value of your property will increase, which is something it has not done during the last ten years?"

"These are pertinent questions. They mean much to every man who lives in South Omaha, no matter whether he is a real estate owner or not.

If there is anything you do not understand about the annexation question come to the headquarters in the Hannan building, Twenty-fourth and M streets, and let the committee go over the matter with you."

Young Bandits Perish.

Toney Zager, Joe Brady and John Rabyn, three boys under 16 years of age, escaped from the detention home in Omaha Saturday night and proceeded to South Omaha, where they robbed the clothing store of M. Steinberg at Thirtieth and Q streets.

The robbery was discovered by Charles Avery at 5:30 yesterday morning. Avery was on his way to work when he noticed the boys wrestling in the place, which presented the appearance of having been sacked. He hastened to call the police but the young bandits escaped through the window and fled, taking with them $15 worth of goods.

The three were arrested on Friday last for robbing two stores early in the week. When taken, they confessed and some of the loot was found in the barn of Jetter's brewery. They were taken in charge by the juvenile officers, from whose custody they escaped a few hours later only to put up a new "job."

Late yesterday afternoon Detective John Zaloudek discovered some of the goods stolen from Steinberg's store in a carpenter shop near the Jetter brewery. The boys are still at large.

Hugger Gets Busy.

Jack, the hugger, is in town—the northern section of town, to be exact. He appeared last Monday night when he attacked a young woman at Twenty-fifth and E streets. A few nights later on the trained nurses is said to have been seized as she neared the South Omaha hospital after dark.

The police are withholding the names of the young women attacked, but it is asserted that the miscreant has been active since the forepart of the week. Jack made his last appearance Friday.

In connection with the appearance of Jack, the hugger, the police have an account of a strange man who called some days ago at the hospital where by his peculiar manners and conversation he frightened the young nurses of the institution.

The caller is alleged to have brought flowers to the nurses, to whom he also delivered a dissertation on the beauty of their profession. He said that he had often wished to be a woman so that he might become a nurse. He added that he had a preference for brunettes with rosy cheeks. The police are inclined to think that this is the same man who now appears as Jack, the hugger.

William Burns Injured.

William Burns, proprietor of a coal yard at Forty-fifth and Q streets, slipped and fell in his coal yard yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, fracturing his right leg in two places.

Burns had been out in the coal yard and was returning to his office when he slipped upon a board walk in such a manner that his leg was caught between two boards. One fracture was caused immediately below the knee and one above the ankle of the right leg.

Dr. John Kotsky was called and sent the injured man to his residence at 2811 Q street.

Youthful Burglars Caught.

After having escaped from the Detention home where they had been held since Saturday for some robberies committed earlier in the week, Joe Brady, a 12-year-old lad residing at Twenty-sixth and Jefferson streets, and Toney Zager, aged 14 years, residing at Thirty-first and Monroe streets, committed a new robbery Saturday night and another one last night for which they were arrested at 8 a. m. this morning by Chief of Detectives James Sheahan and two officers.

On Saturday night the boys after having made their escape from the Detention home, came to South Omaha where they deliberately planned and carried out the robbing of a clothing store at Thirtieth and Q streets. The alarm was given to the police early yesterday morning, but the two young bandits had already made their getaway.

Nothing daunted by the fact that the police were scouring the town for them, the two boys last night broke into and robbed the store of Louis Lundgren at Thirtieth and V streets.

As soon as the police received the news of the latest depredation, Chief of Detectives Sheahan took a couple of his men and went out on a still hunt. At the home of the Zager family it was found that the boys had been there, but were gone again.

The police after an hour returned to the house and the two young burglars were found playing marbles in the kitchen of the Zager home.

The police are amazed over the desperate conduct of the boys, who do not look over 12 years of age.
