SHOULD VOTE FOR BEST MEN

Bishop Scannell Says it is Duty of Citizens to Act Wisely at Polls.

HONESTY AND CAPABILITY

Advice of Prelate is to Vote for Best Man Without Regard to Party or Personal Considerations to Get Right Men.

Approx the election near at hand, Rev. Richard Scannell, bishop of the diocese of Omaha, dwelt upon government, and the quality of its candidates should be, and the duty of its citizens, at St. Cecilia's church Sunday morning. For his text he took "Render Unto Caesar the Things that are Caesar's, and to God the Things that are God's—Matt. 22, 21."

"To give to others what belongs to them is a precept of the natural law—of that law that was written on our minds and hearts by the Creator Himself and that is proclaimed by the voice of conscience to everyone who has the full use of reason," said the bishop. "This precept is emphasized and given a special application in the words of the text: 'Give to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's.'"

Who is Caesar? "Who is Caesar? And what are the things which we are commanded to give him? Caesar is the government under which we live, whether it be an empire, a kingdom, or a republic. Human society has God for its author, and it has received from Him authority to govern the individuals who comprise it. It is for this reason that St. Paul commands every soul to be subject to the higher powers for all power, he says, is from God, and they who resist the power resist the ordinance of God, Human society, however, cannot, as a whole and directly, rule its members. It chooses one or more persons whom it clothes with its divinely received authority, and these persons form what we call the government. No large masses of people have ever been able to govern themselves. Even our American government is not a government by the people, although it is said to be such. It is a government carried on by a few officials who are supposed to be chosen by the people from among a small number of persons who are themselves presented to the voters by a few politicians and party leaders, and very often the chosen ones represent, not the people, but themselves or their party. But it is the best we can do, and perhaps on the whole it is better than any other form of government that our circumstances will permit. But whatever its imperfection it is the government—it is Caesar, to whom we are commanded to give what belongs to him."

Law to be Obedied. "First, we are bound to obey the law, for the law is the proclamation of the will of the higher power and that higher power we are bound to obey. Without law there would be no order. Law secures liberty but prevents it from becoming license. It demands self-restraint, which is another name for obedience."

People Pay the Cost. "In the second place we are commanded to give tribute to Caesar. It is Caesar's office to guard the country from external danger and to keep order at home. For these purposes there is need of an army and navy, and civil officers and courts and prisons and the like, and it is the duty of the citizens to defray the cost of all these things; that is, they are bound to pay their share of the public taxes. To evade this obligation by dishonest means would be to offend against justice and to refuse to give to Caesar what belongs to him."

"In the third place, in choosing those who are to form the civil government, that is, who are to look after the public interests, we are bound in conscience to give our suffrages only to those who are fit to hold office. Two qualities are necessary in a candidate—honesty and capability. If he is not honest in private life it is not likely that he will be honest in public life; if he shows himself incapable of managing his own private affairs how could he be regarded as capable of managing public affairs of greater moment? To vote for such a man would be to fail in our duty to the body politic and to injure the public welfare. We are constantly complaining of our public officials, and then, when election time comes, we vote for a man, not because we judge him fit, but because he is a friend, or the friend of a friend, or because he belongs to our club, or our society, or our political party; that is, we put our personal interests before the common interests of the country. This popular incapacity is not peculiar to America—it is found in all countries. And yet the people assert that they are able to govern themselves, and that the voice of the people is the voice of God. But no people can govern themselves who do not take the trouble to vote intelligently."

"What are we to do, you will ask, if all candidates are equally objectionable? This is not likely to be the case. Vote for the best of them, without regard to party, or personal considerations. And if all voters were to do this the political managers would be more careful the next time, in choosing candidates for public office."

"But the great remedy, and the only efficient one, for all our social and political ailments, is to be found in the fulfillment of the second part of the precept: Render to God the things that are God's. Render to Him faith, hope and charity—by firmly believing the truths He has revealed by trusting in Him for eternal life and the means to obtain it, and by loving Him above all things. Those who do this will never fail to render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's."

Why We Can Undersell...

Every business man in Omaha knows that the quantity in which he buys goods governs the price—largest quantities securing lowest prices. He knows that if he could buy in larger quantities he could buy lower—therefore sell lower. This in turn would attract more trade—enabling him to buy and sell still lower. It's the universal law of business. "Operating" enables the big buyer to underbuy and undersell. Most every man knows that we buy clothing in quantities, far larger than any other Omaha store. It is, therefore, evident that we both underbuy and undersell. The big leading makers are eager to secure our large orders—so eager that they crowd extra values into every garment made for us—they can afford to give us better value even at lower prices—because they are selling in larger quantities—and we can afford to give you better values for lower prices because we both buy and sell in largest quantities.

Just now we're offering an extraordinary value in Men's Overcoats at $15 and $20. You can't realize until you examine our line at $15.00 and $20.00 the full advantage of our big buying—abundant styles for every need—ulsterettes, English box overcoats, belted backs, raglans and Chesterfields.

Have Faith in God if You Wish to Be Counted as Great

Rev. O. D. Baitly addressed the men's meeting yesterday afternoon at the Young Men's Christian association. The subject of his talk was "True Qualities of Strength." In part, he said: "Different people regard different qualities of strength the only means to success. Some people think physical strength is the means by which they can make a success of life. Samson, without a doubt, was the strongest man in the early days, but was he the greatest? Other people think shrewdness on their part will bring them success, but Jacob defrauded his brother, Isalah, and this trickery on his part brought him but little. Knowledge is considered by many people the only quality for success, while others think moral strength will bring to them the greatest returns, but Napoleon had one of the strongest wills man ever had and he eventually met defeat."

"The only qualities which a man has to have to be a success in life is faith and dependence on God. The men who had these qualities and were put down in history as great men are Martin Luther, Benjamin Franklin and Abraham Lincoln."

The Kountze church choir sang a number of hymns. The choir is made up of thirty-three voices. Joe Barton is director. About 125 men attended the meeting.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Health Talks

No man is stronger than his stomach. Make your stomach strong and you thereby fortify your system against the attacks of a long list of diseases which originate in the stomach and must be reached, if at all through the stomach. Thus torpid, or lazy liver, biliousness, dyspepsia, impure blood and various skin affections originate in weak stomach and consequent poor nutrition. The same is true of certain bronchial throat and lung affections.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery Strengthens the stomach, invigorates the liver, purifies the blood making it rich, red and vitalizing and thereby curing the above and kindred affections.

It's foolish and often dangerous to experiment with new or but slightly tested medicines—sometimes urged upon the afflicted as "just as good" or better than "Golden Medical Discovery." The dishonest dealer sometimes insist that he knows what the proffered substitute is made of, but you don't and it is decidedly for your interest that you should know what you are taking into your stomach and system expecting it to act as a curative. To him its only a difference of profit. Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If not promptly supplied trade elsewhere.
